The births of 1,429 children, viz., 738 boys and 691 girls, were registered in Greater Melbourne during the month of January. In the month of December, 1,489 births were registered, or 60 more than in the month under review. The births were 342 above the average of the month during the previous ten years, but only 51 above that average if allowance be made for the increase of population.

The deaths registered in January numbered 776, viz., 413 of males and 363 of females; the births thus exceeded the deaths by 653, or 84 per cent. The deaths were fewer than those in December by 121, and than the average of January during the previous ten years by 22; if, however, allowance be made for the increase of population, they will be found to have been less than that average by 236.

To every 1,000 of the population of the district, the proportion of births registered was 2·91, and of deaths registered 1·58.

The highest temperature in the shade recorded at Melbourne Observatory during the month was 99·5° on the 22nd, and the lowest was 47·2° on the 9th. The mean atmospheric pressure (29·866 inches) differed from the average by a very small fraction only.

Rain fell on 7 days, the amount of rainfall being 0·86 inch. The average rainfall in January during the previous ten years was 2·12 inches, or 1¼ inch more than in the month under notice.

Males contributed 53 per cent., and females 47 per cent., to the mortality of the month. Children under 5 years of age, contributed 53 per cent. to that mortality, as against 50 per cent. in January, 1891; 48 per cent. in January, 1890; 57 per cent. in January, 1889; 53 per cent. in January, 1888; 53 per cent. in January, 1887; and 54 per cent. in January, 1886.
