Given under my Hand and Seal, at Government-house, Sydney, this sixth day of December, One thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven.

(L. S.) KENNETH SNODGRASS.

By His Excellency's Command,
E. DEAS THOMSON.

THE following Addresses were presented to His Excellency Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., at Government House, Sydney, on Tuesday, the 3th instant, namely:—

To His Excellency Lieutenant-General, Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., Commanding Her Majesty's forces in, and Governor of, New South Wales, &c. &c. &c.

SIR,—On the eve of your return to Europe, we beg to assure you of our deep regret at your retirement from the distinguished station of Governor of New South Wales, and at the same time to convey to you the expression of our admiration and gratitude for the real and faithful service you have done, for the many plans of public utility you have accomplished, and for the firm and temperate authority, but above all, for the impartiality with which, for six years, you have presided over this important and distant Dependency of the British Crown.

Previously to the arrival of Your Excellency, the vast resources peculiar to this and the Sister Colony, from its Convict population were not understood; much less had they been systematically applied to the immense benefits of the Colonists, and indirectly to that of the Mother country. Before that auspicious era, whether we look to the system of Government in regard to the free inhabitants, or to the Convict population, it was in either respect, vacillating, erroneous and referable to no fixed ascertainable principles; the consequence of which state of things was an immense deduction from the sum of public and private happiness. Religion and education were at a low ebb, and hence as an inevitable consequence, ignorance, violence, and rapine, with every species of vice and its concomitant misery stalked the land; and this now rapidly improving country destined to become, if not already, the brightest gem in the British Crown, was the seat of poverty and discontent, and a dead weight and encumbrance to Great Britain. It is to your Excellency's ability and virtues, we are indebted for the establishment of order out of these chaotic elements, as well as for a comprehensive and philosophical system of Government, founded on the unerring principles which are the basis of Britain's elevated rank among nations—the principles of law and reason—a system which excludes all caprice and passion and injustice—and which equally respects and preserves the rights of all from the highest to the lowest.

It may seem invidious where so many inducements to contentment and thankfulness present themselves to mark for specific mention and praise, any of those acts which create these dispositions in our minds; but as in all well-wrought compositions some features stand out prominently, so it may be permitted us to have our attention arrested by the contemplation of a few of those advantages which you have conferred, and left behind as memorials to endear your memory to this country, and to perpetuate your fame.

You assumed the Government divested of the power enjoyed by all your predecessors, of granting land to private individuals. In addition to the loss of this power, and the influence it gave, Your Excellency voluntarily divested your Government of another powerful engine of support, by breaking off all connexion with the Colonial press, a portion of which at a lavish expenditure, had employed the exclusive patronage of former administrations. Another source of great power and prodigious influence in this community, the exercise of the right of the assignment of Convicts, enjoyed and used by all former Governors, was also surrendered by you for the public good, and regulations for their disposal and management were framed with a judicious and impartial regard for the general wants of the country. Public confidence was further inspired by the publication for the first time of regular quarterly accounts of the Colonial Revenue, estimates for the expenditure of the Government for each succeeding year were drawn up, and explained in candid and explicit minutes, and so far from any art of concealment being practised, public attention may be said to have been invited to the criticism of the public accounts.

We would instance further your laws and regulations respecting the Convict population, by which you have endeavoured to elicit two most important objects, namely, the greatest degree of labour, and the progressive reformation of the Convicts themselves. The means too by which these great objects have been sought to be accomplished are perfectly clear and simple. These consisted in bringing before the Magistrates, in one act, the whole subject of Convict trial and punishment; the mode and amount of punishment, were regulated and determined by law: the labour of the Convict for misdemeanors and minor offences, instead of being unprofitably wasted as heretofore by transportation to penal settlements, was converted to the benefit of the Colonists by the substitution of labour in irons on the roads; the confusion, errors, and inconsistencies, abounding in the four Acts of Council previously in force relating to summary process, and punishment in the case of Convicts were corrected, and the power of Justices in the discharge of their various functions was simply and clearly defined. This, together with Your Excellency's enforcement of salutary laws already in existence, respecting the food and clothing of this large class of the population, and the judicious instructions to Officers in charge of the gangs employed on the roads and public works, are the principal features in this branch of your wise and vigorous administration. The result has been that the law, plain, consistent, and suited to its purpose, has been efficient in its operation; its spirit of justice, and its wholesome rigour have inspired respect and dread in those for whose controul it was designed; and it has mainly contributed to the repression and prevention of crime, by providing for the certainty of its punishment.

You have wisely, Sir, considered that a virtuous population constitutes the riches of a country. Hence those sagacious plans of immigration, by which the revenue arising from the sale of Crown Lands is made to encrease and fructify for the good of the community that produces it, by the tendency of those plans to encourage the immigration not of the idle and discontented, but of the industrious and energetic, who will bring into the country of their adoption, habits and mode of life which cannot fail to be productive of most salutary influences.

And whilst wise encouragement is thus given to Immigration, your Excellency has secured to all, that—which, to the upright and sincere, is the most precious of privileges—liberty to profess their faith with unrestricted freedom of conscience. Your legislative enactments have afforded great encouragement, and equal facilities to all classes of professing christians, to construct Churches and places of public worship, as well as Schools throughout the Colony according to their respective exigencies. Thus, whilst due provision is made for the religious advantage of all, these enactments have rendered this a charmed land, which the demon of intolerance dare not touch; and if the Colonists be but true to your principles and their own interests, the curse of religious persecution can never rest on this happy country.

Your statesman-like despatches evince that the important business of National Education has occupied a large portion of your attention. In a mixed community such as ours, whose mutual harmony and good-will are to be promoted, and where children of different creeds have to be educated, you have seen that the leading principle of any system of public education should be, to afford equal advantages to various denominations, and, without interfering with the religious opinion of any, to secure the religious and moral instruction of all.

In this enumeration of your more prominent services, we cannot omit to notice the vast improvements your taste and judgment have made in the principal town of the Colony. How far you have promoted this object, according to your opportunities and your means, abundant evidence is supplied by the public markets, combining elegance of structure with suitable convenience—the levelling of many of our public ways, and changing them in some instances, from rugged roads and hills into commodious streets, vying in accommodation and regularity with those of the cities of Europe—the projected Circular Quay—and the projected Exchange, as well as other public buildings, either already completed, or in progress of erection. To these should be added the important benefit of securing and improving Hyde Park for the health and recreation for the inhabitants of Sydney.

Whilst Sydney thus shared your attention, the interior of the Colony was not neglected. The beautiful and fertile district of Illawarra, heretofore but partial known and cultivated, may be said to have been added to the Colony from the facilities afforded of travelling through it, by the construction of roads and bridges, and by the spirited work recently begun of making the harbour of Wollongong a safe and available port for our colonial marine. The arduous mountain-passes on the Bathurst Road—the extension of new lines of road in various directions—the erection of Lansdowne Bridge and other similar constructions of stone (being the first introduction of substantial bridge building into New South Wales,) further testify your attention to the wants and wishes of the community.

Under your sway too, it should be borne in mind that whilst the flocks and herds of the Colonists rapidly increased, you provided by suitable enactments for the safe and advantageous occupation of the extended pastures which this public exigency required.

We beg leave further, Sir, to acknowledge, that to your promptitude and decision, we are mainly indebted for having secured to New South Wales the noble domain—millions of fertile acres, which encompass the waters of Port Phillip. Impartial history will yet record with what vigilant anxiety you watched the machinations of those who, under the pretence of fictitious sales and artful representations, endeavoured on terms injurious to the rights and interests of the Colony, to make a monopoly of those green and boundless plains, which at no distant period are destined to be covered with our multitudinous flocks and herds.

Among the many public services for which this Colony is more particularly indebted to you, we have also to record your establishment of the Saving's Bank on an enlarged basis of usefulness, which is testified by the fact of its deposits having increased under your administration from £7,000 to £55,000. Your institution of the Land Commission by whose labours the general and natural anxiety of parties for the safe tenure of properties on which they had made extensive and costly improvements, has been allayed, and claims to very valuable estates, as between the Crown and the subject set at rest for ever; your introduction of that birthright of Englishmen—Trial by Jury—after its almost total deprivation since the first institution of the Colony—your entire abstinence from any interference with the administration of the laws; your paternal protection of all classes in the enjoyment of their rights, and your encouragement to them in all lawful pursuits without regard to nation, sect, or party; your financial measures whereby the Revenue has increased in a fourfold degree under your administration; your promotion of the interests of commerce, which has extended itself into new fields of enterprise, and opened new sources of wealth; by the combined merit and usefulness of all which measures and services, you have the gratification of knowing, that, at this moment of your departure, the Colony, though suffering in some degree from a participation in the sudden mercantile convulsion in Europe and America, is in a condition of unprecedented tranquillity, and in an unexampled state both of present and prospective prosperity.

In so noble a career of public service as that through which you have passed, it is not perhaps to be wondered at, that you should have been assailed by unmerited vituperation. We admire the fortitude you evinced and the lofty disdain with which you disregarded the implacable rancour of these attacks. Your administration does not furnish a single instance of a criminal information for libel upon your person or government, although countless provocations for such a proceeding were given with an audience that knows no parallel.

We have now, Sir, succinctly adverted to some of the more prominent acts which crowd the foreground of an administration distinguished alike for its wisdom, vigour, and impartiality. The numerous important ameliorations and improvements thus accomplished in so short a period, in the social, moral, political, and physical condition of the Colony, though of themselves sufficient monuments of your fame, we know were only the precursors of still more extensive benefits in contemplation. While we deplore the determination which has interrupted a career so glorious to yourself, and of such wide usefulness to your fellow-men, we cannot but feel how irksome and repugnant it must have been to a noble and philanthropic spirit, to be continually subjected to the unjust aspersions of any portion of a community, for whose general good you have so sedulously and unceasingly laboured. But you will recollect, Sir, that contemporaneous ingratitude has been the reward of some of the most signal benefactors of mankind; and that it has been in many illustrious instances left to a more grateful posterity to do them justice. To be viewed through the mist of a party, passion and prejudice seems to be the inevitable lot of high political station. These, however, are but the vapour of a day—and we venture on no doubtful prophecy in predicting that a grateful and unanimous Colony will soon place with acclamation your name where it deserves to stand—at the head of its public benefactors.

We now, Sir, bid you respectfully farewell! In doing so, we wish you a safe and pleasant voyage to Europe, and may we hope, though relieved from the anxious charge of presiding over us, you will extend the superintendence of your genius and your influence to the advantage of our service and the completion of your own reputation. We would fain believe, that even in a private station, you will take some interest in a community whose welfare you spared no study to understand and no zeal to promote, and which now takes leave of you with the deepest regret, mingled with sentiments of respect, veneration, and gratitude.

In conclusion, Sir, we respectfully solicit the honour of being allowed to place your statue, as a lasting memorial of your public services, in some conspicuous part of a town which, together with the Colony of which it is the Capital, has risen into such rapid wealth and importance under your Excellency's administration.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following Reply:

GENTLEMEN,—I accept most thankfully the high honor you propose to confer on me, by placing in your capital a Memorial of my Administration. At the same time, I beg to assure you, it will owe all its value in my estimation to the feelings by which it is prompted, and which are expressed in so distinguished and gratifying a manner, in the Address which has now been presented. Without adopting all its praises as my just dessert, I may be allowed, without presumption, to feel and avow the purest satisfaction of which a Ruler is capable, in finding what have at least been honest and sincere efforts for the public good, thus highly appreciated by those whose welfare and gratitude must ever prove their best reward.

The tenor of your Address shews that you agree with me in the high value which I place on the principles of Civil and Religious Liberty, and on the diffusion of Education, as generally and effectively as any measures consistent with these inviolable principles, can possibly accomplish. It will ever be my fervent desire that these elements of greatness, virtue, and happiness, may flourish among you and your posterity to the latest times, and it will be to me a source of pleasing reflection to find that I have by any measure of mine contributed either to prepare or introduce, or foster them in this early and experimental stage of your National Institutions.

Here, Gentlemen, I might conclude, were I not anxious before we separate, that you should distinctly understand the motive which led me to tender the resignation of this Government. It might have been expected, that in the flourishing state of Colonial affairs, and supported by the large body of the Colonists who signed the Petition to the House of Commons in the last year, approving the measures of my administration in terms of which I have such just reason to be proud, it might have been expected that I should rather have desired to remain to introduce into the Colony, as suggested by Her Majesty's Ministers, the new and more perfect form of legislature which is shortly to be obtained from the wisdom and liberality of the British Parliament. I can assure you it was neither indifference to the future condition of Australia, nor any dread of opposition to measures which to be approved need only be understood, that induced me at such a moment to seek permission to retire. My retirement has rested singly upon the circumstance of an individual being pressed upon my Counsels, in whom, as regards the intimate relation of an associate and adviser in this Government, I had upon public grounds ceased to feel that confidence which the interests of the Colony appeared to me essentially to demand.

Permit me, Gentlemen, to repeat my deep sense of the kindness expressed in the Address with which you have honored me, and in bidding you and all its subscribers heartily farewell, to assure you that it will at all times afford me the greatest pleasure, whether in a public or private station, to contribute by any means in my power to the prosperity and happiness of this important Colony.

To His Excellency Major General Sir Richard Bourke, K.C.B., Captain General, and Governor-in-Chief, in and over the Territory of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

WE, the undersigned Members of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, beg leave to express, on the occasion of Your Excellency's departure, the high sense which we entertain of the manner in which, during a period of six years, you have presided over our deliberations.

We may be permitted, on this occasion, to trace some of the leading principles, which have guided the exercise of the authority committed to your hands by the Crown, in the Department of Legislation.

On assuming the Command of this Government, your discernment in discovering, and wisdom in providing, suitable remedies for the various wants of this remote Dependency of the Crown, soon became conspicuous. The numerous Local Laws to be found in our Records will bear ample testimony to the comprehensive and Statesmanlike views with which Your Excellency's Government has been influenced. One circumstance, in the outset, marked the spirit and character by which you desired your Government to be distinguished—the giving to your measures as much publicity, and subjecting them to as much scrutiny, as the nature of the limited Constitution, provided by the wisdom of Parliament for this Territory, would permit. Commencing in this spirit, we bear our testimony to the fulness, the fairness, and masterly character of every communication made to the Legislative Council during each successive Session, of all information necessary to a just understanding of Colonial Policy and Legislation.

Many of the Laws initiated by Your Excellency, and passed by this Council, stand as lasting memorials of your anxious desire to promote the welfare of this Territory, and of the distinguished ability and upright intention with which your Authority has been exercised. The diffusion of Religious Instruction and Education, by the endowment of Churches, Chapels, and places of Public Worship—the improvement of the moral habits of the working classes, by giving legal stability to Savings Banks—the amelioration of the Criminal Law, without compromising the public safety—the repression of crime, and the more efficient administration of justice, by a better ordered system of police—the adequate protection and assurance of public and private property from injury and encroachment—the encouragement of Commercial, Agricultural, and Pastoral Interests—the alignment of streets—the protection of harbours and navigation—and many other objects too numerous to mention, have been the subjects of Legislation, which, whilst they demonstrate wisdom of principle, manifest no less accuracy and practicability of detail. Without enumerating all the advantages likely to result from these enlightened measures, we offer our cordial approbation of the liberal principles of your Government, by which the honor of the Crown has been secured, and the happiness and prosperity of the people consulted.

In the Financial Department, to Your Excellency belongs the merit of having been the first to bring fully and clearly under review, the Estimates of each Year's Expenditure, and the

No. 309. December 13, 1837.

Ways and Means by which it could be met; and to accompany their presentation with such an elucidation of the varied wants and resources of the Colony, as have served to make its value more extensively and favorably known, as well as to indicate the objects to which its resources could be most advantageously employed.

With equal acknowledgments we notice the salutary practice, first established by Your Excellency, of presenting, with the Estimates of each subsequent year, comparative tables of appropriations with the actual expenditure of the year immediately preceding it; and in expressing our sense of these arrangements, it is gratifying to observe, that during the entire period of your administration, every revolving year has brought with it an augmentation of Revenue and Resources greater than even the most sanguine expectations could have anticipated. In the application of these resources, Your Excellency has been entitled to the highest confidence—they have been appropriated to the general advancement of objects of practical utility, involving the present and future prosperity of this Colony. Amongst these may be enumerated—the expedition to explore the interior, and extend the influence of a well-ordered Government over tracts theretofore beyond the reach of Social Law. The retention and settlement of the important district of Port Phillip, as a portion of this Colony, thereby opening new resources of wealth and improvement for the enterprize of Her Majesty's subjects, may be ascribed to the wisdom of Your Excellency. The encouragement of Free Immigration, a measure in which the prosperity of this Colony is so deeply involved, manifests the interest which Your Excellency has taken in the advancement of this Territory. The records of our proceedings upon this subject testify the high praise due to this feature in your administration. To other, though not less interesting objects of Colonial importance, your attention has been invariably directed with an earnestness of purpose, characteristic of an enlightened Statesman. The Liberty of the Press—the diffusion of Knowledge—the construction of Roads, and the erection of Bridges—the erection of Public Buildings, combining elegance with utility (enduring monuments of patriotic usefulness)—the promotion of Religious Toleration and Forbearance—the cherishing of the social virtues in acts of benevolence and charity—these, and many others, may be traced as the objects of Your Excellency's solicitude to accomplish. If the benefits thus conferred upon the Colony by your administration be not yet sufficiently appreciated, we are persuaded that the justice of posterity will award to them the homage of grateful admiration.

We feel the impossibility of detailing briefly, without injustice, the history of your administration, embracing so many important details, all tending to one object, the wise Government of this remote Province of the Empire—whilst public tranquillity has been maintained throughout the period of your sway to a remarkable degree, by the temperate spirit of well-admihibited laws—whilst at the period of your resignation the Colony was never in a state of greater quietude. We may say, in fine, that in the hands of Your Excellency, the sacred trust reposed by our most gracious Sovereign, for the honor of the Crown, and the safety, happiness, and welfare of this territory and people, has been executed with fidelity, integrity, and judgment.

In obedience to Your Excellency, and in expression of our own sentiments on this occasion, we should be culpable were we to omit the acknowledgment of what is due to the candour, the obliging courtesy, and the calm dignity, marked on all occasions by Your Excellency as President of our Councils.

In conclusion, we beg leave to offer to Your Excellency our sincere good wishes for your welfare, and that you may be blessed with many years of health, happiness, and prosperity, whether again engaged in the public service, or reposing in the enjoyment of private life.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Council—

In the Address you have just read, you have added another to the many obligations under which I have been placed by former manifestations of a similar feeling.

If you have enumerated in too friendly terms those measures of my Government, in which I have been so happy as to meet with your concurrence, and to which I have thereby been enabled to give the effect of laws—certain I am that you have not over-rated my earnest desire to promote by those means the welfare of the Colony. On my own part, I have to acknowledge with thankfulness the assistance you have rendered in correcting and maturing the enactments I have submitted to your consideration. Should the results in advancing the public interests be even in a slight degree commensurate with the singleness of purpose with which we labored together for this end, we shall all have received our best reward.

To His Excellency Sir Richard Bourke, Governor, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency,—

WE, the Presbytery of New South Wales, connected with the Established Church of Scotland, do ourselves the honor to present to Your Excellency our united and very sincere thanks for the attentions our Church has experienced from Your Excellency; and also to assure Your Excellency of our undiminished respect for Your Excellency's person and Government.

We have the gratification to state, that Your Excellency's sense of impartial justice has granted to our Church privileges heretofore denied; and that we anticipate the happiest consequences to ourselves and our people from their concession. From the measures affecting Religious Establishments, adopted in this Colony, at the suggestion of Your Excellency, when modified by amendments on deliberate revision, to meet the varying circumstances of the Colony, we contemplate the rapid increase of Churches and Ministers, diffusing the knowledge of Divine Truth over every part of the Territory.

By these regulations, we believe, that the benefits of an Established Church (in whose necessity for the well-being of a state we cordially concur), are secured,—the dominancy of Ecclesiastical power, and vested rights, prejudicial to other Communions will not exist,—and the well-grounded hope is afforded, that national prosperity, and public happiness will be promoted by the facilities furnished for preaching and teaching from God's Holy Word. The regulations of former administrations regarding schools, we trust, will admit of such arrangements as will secure the benefits of education to the youth of our flocks; our equitable claims to an interest in the educational affairs of the Colony having already received Your Excellency's support.

We are attached by conscience and conviction to the unalterable principles of the Protestant Faith; and more particularly to that form of it professed by our National Church, by which the blessings of knowledge, both religious and moral, have been secured to her people. By these fundamental principles, preserved by our forefathers for their children at the risk of life and death, we shall ever abide; and we cannot but thank Your Excellency, who has secured to us, by a series of enactments, perfect equality with other Communions, in proportion to our numbers and spiritual interests; and shall ever feel grateful to Your Excellency, as the honored instrument in the hand of Heaven, by whom it was effected.

We congratulate Your Excellency on the gratification Your Excellency must experience, in retirement, from the unrivalled prosperity enjoyed by this Colony since Your Excellency's arrival.

In name and on behalf of the Presbytery of New South Wales, at Sydney, the First Day of December, 1837.

JOHN M'GARVIE,
Moderator.

(Signed) JOHN CLELAND,
Presbytery Clerk.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

I have much satisfaction in receiving this Address from the Presbytery of New South Wales, upon whose assurances of undiminished respect and regard I place a high value.

I consider myself more than ordinarily fortunate in having been enabled to place the people of this land in the full and assured position of religious freedom, and I am thoroughly convinced that the Ministers of the Presbyterian Church will use the privileges they have thus obtained for the honor of God and the good of man.

To His Excellency Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., Commanding Her Majesty's Forces in and Governor of New South Wales, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency,

WE, the Roman Catholic Bishop and Clergy of New Holland, feel it our duty to express to Your Excellency, on the eve of your retiring from the administration of the Colonial Government, our sense of the moral and political benefits conferred by you on this portion of the British Empire.

While we give expression to the admiration and gratitude, with which we contemplate the advantages derived by this Country, from your wise and impartial administration, it becomes our Sacred Profession and the position we hold amongst our fellow Colonists, more particularly to allude to those acts which have fallen under our especial observation. The solicitude you have evinced to establish on its proper basis, general good, and particular exigencies, the assistance which the State is to give to Religious Forms of Belief, deserves to be mentioned with the highest respect. In a society so peculiarly constructed, assistance on the part of the State appears just and reasonable, and not less so that it should be administered in proportion to the numbers, its component parts. You have adopted that happy medium, which is best and fittest for the wants of this Colony. Total support would nurture internal weakness and helplessness, the total abstraction of aid would bring the zeal and efforts of individuals to abortive decay.

Consistent with these principles of even-handed justice, you have so distinctly laid down and acted upon in your numerous legislative enactments and minutes, Your Excellency has shewn respect for the sacred rights of conscience, even in the infant. Perhaps no measure, according to its extent, has been productive of more gratification than the Institution for the support of our destitute children. You have allayed the heart burning with which a numerous class beheld the orphan deprived of its sole inheritance—the Faith of its Fathers. The mother is no longer borne down, under the weight of her toil, by the afflicting reflection that her offspring is even then purchasing food and raiment, at a price, compared to which life is by her deemed valueless; that, alienated from her in affection, and abhorrent of her creed, the meeting of child and parent will not be unnaturally shunned.

We have to express our thanks for the urbanity of manner, courteous attention, and prompt decision, with which our official communications have been received and conducted; and in general for the cordial co-operation we have received from your government, in our efforts to promote the moral good of the inhabitants of the Colony. We would refer, however, in a particular manner, to that class which, in proportion to its wants, will be made the object of his first care by the Christian Legislator. We allude to the Convict population, a class doomed to punishment, but not to despair; degraded, yet not to be cast away; emblem of man in his fallen state; to be reclaimed, amended, reformed, not in the sternness of unmitigated justice, which is of the heathen, but in mercy, the essence of the Christian Institute. We are not accustomed, Sir, to speak the language of adulation, but rather to declare the truth, in plainness of speech; and we do not hesitate to state, on extensive experience, that your humane regulations have produced in the Convict population, under our pastoral care, results the most gratifying. Their numbers have been annually increased to a considerable amount, yet crime has diminished; a healthy contentedness of mind, under the influence of religion, has generated a disposition to improve the adverse circumstances of their condition to a high moral purpose; has succeeded a misanthropic sourness and gloomy despondency, which heretofore rendered the Convict careless and reckless. We mention this fact, for it proves that the course you adopted and pursued, unawed by intimidation and undisturbed by clamour, has been instrumental in effecting a great practical good.

In retiring, Sir, from this Government, you will bear with you, not only the conviction that your measures, the emanations of a mind singularly comprehensive and benevolent, were intended and directed to promote the best interests of the Colony, but proofs of their success. The testimony of your own conscience, that in the administration of your high office, you have never, either from favor or aversion, passed the bounds of equity, receives a faithful and applauding response, wherever the judgment has not been misled by party, or warped by prejudice.

Yes, Sir, this Colony owes you an immeasurable debt of gratitude, accumulating as the progress of time and the spread of population shall more fully develope and more severely test the excellence of your policy and the depth of your foresight. That debt, future generations will gladly own, in the reverence and love with which your name will be enshrined in their breasts. And we presume to predict that, amongst the scenes which may chequer the remainder of your life, more especially in that hour when even in the best of mortals the wearied spirit seeks a forgetfulness of the present, in the bright prospects of Christian hope, to no part of your existence will you revert with more cheering effect than to your administration of chief powers in New South Wales. You have established order, Religious intolerance you have crushed, all the arts of peace you have encouraged, you have opened sources of blessing to the miserable, whose healing waters are and will be for ages doing the work of God. No honors, no demonstrations of grateful feeling can be equal to the satisfaction derived from a consciousness of having lived to purposes so noble, so becoming the man, the Christian, the Legislator. May you live long to enjoy it, and to witness the prosperity of this Colony, which will ever number Your Excellency among its chief benefactors. With our best wishes, in deep regret and respect, we bid you farewell.

(Here follow the Signatures.)

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

I have much satisfaction in receiving this token of respect and attachment from the Clergy of a Communion which reckons within its pale a large proportion of the Inhabitants of New South Wales. I have observed with great pleasure the exertions which, though few in number, you have made for reforming and improving the character and conduct of the unhappy persons of your persuasion, who quit this country under the penal sentence of the law. To these exertions is to be attributed the peaceable and orderly behaviour, which has latterly been observed to prevail among the Roman Catholic Convicts.

Continue, Gentlemen, to instil into their minds the love of God and of their neighbour, and be assured that in thus consulting their temporal and eternal interests, and in conferring an important service to the State, you best manifest the gratitude which I am convinced you entertain for the perfect religious freedom which in common with other denominations of Christians; you have lately obtained.

To His Excellency Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., Captain General and Governor in Chief in, and over the Territories of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

Sir,—

IT is with feelings of extreme regret that the Officers of Her Majesty's Customs, for the Colony of New South Wales, have heard of your resignation of the Government of this highly prosperous Colony, and your early departure for Europe.

They beg leave in the most respectful manner to approach Your Excellency, and to assure you that they feel most deeply sensible of, and grateful for the kindness, marked attention, and politeness you have universally shewn them, and for the prompt regard you have paid to their communications, whether for the improvement of Commerce, or the amendment of the fiscal regulations, under which the revenue of this Department has increased to an extent almost unprecedented in any other Colony.

They are satisfied that they would be wanting in every proper feeling, were they to permit Your Excellency to embark without expressing their sorrow at your departure, their warmest thanks for your kindness to them, and their best wishes for your health and happiness, and a safe return to your native land.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

Gentlemen,—

I feel obliged by your kind expression of regret at my retirement from this Government.

In the Department to which you belong, I have always experienced a prompt and zealous attention to the important interests entrusted to your charge.

The Revenue has certainly increased, as you remark, to an extent almost unprecedented in any country, whilst the arrangements adopted in your Department to ensure its prompt and secure collection, and to accommodate the mercantile interests have been prudent and efficient.

I am highly gratified at finding that the official intercourse between this Government and your Department has been conducted in a manner to afford you satisfaction, and I beg to assure you that I have received with great pleasure the expressions of regard and attachment contained in your Address.

To His Excellency Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., Governor of New South Wales, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency,—

WE, the Members of the Sydney Mechanic's School of Arts, in public meeting assembled, beg most respectfully, on the occasion of the retirement of Your Excellency from the Government of this Colony, to express our heartfelt gratitude for the patronage and liberal support which our Institution has from its commencement to the present date received from Your Excellency.

It is to Your Excellency's enlightened suggestion that the School of Arts owes its origin—it is to your munificence and fostering care that it is in a great measure indebted for the respectable position which it now occupies, and it is, therefore, natural for us to anticipate that, in the departure of Your Excellency from these shores, our Institution will suffer a severe loss.

Designed and eminently calculated to diffuse the blessings of scientific and general information throughout all ranks of the community, the School of Arts, it may safely be affirmed, is not the least durable monument erected in this Colony to Your Excellency's memory.

We feel confident that Your Excellency, on retiring from the public duties of the State, will look back with feelings of satisfaction on an Institution which, we trust, will at no distant period prove a powerful engine for raising the general tone of public opinion and forming a bond of union among all classes of persons in the Australian Metropolis.

Sincerely wishing that every blessing may attend Your Excellency, we have the honor to remain, in the name of our Chairman, Your Excellency's most obliged Servants, &c. &c.

(Signed) T. COWLISHAW,
Chairman.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

Gentlemen,—

I feel peculiar satisfaction in receiving the acknowledgments and good wishes of the Members of an Institution, the establishment of which I regard as one of the most pleasing incidents of my administration, whilst the continued success of the Institution may be contemplated as one of the surest indications of improvement in the social condition of the Colony.

Whether we regard a wise economy of labor in a country where labor is scarce, by giving to it the utmost efficiency which knowledge can impart, or, whether we would seek to supersede those tastes for idle dissipation, which are unhappily too prevalent, the instruction and amusement afforded by the Lectures and Reading-room of your Society are of equal importance, and demand the utmost encouragement which can be with propriety afforded by the Government. I feel too much confidence in the justice of these considerations to share in any apprehension that you will lose from my absence that protection which it has been my pleasure and duty, under their influence, to afford you.

To His Excellency Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., Governor, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency,—

THE Committee of the Sydney Dispensary present to Your Excellency, as Patron of that Institution, on your retirement from the administration of the Colonial Government, their united thanks for the support and countenance Your Excellency's Patronage has conferred upon them, in the management of its affairs. The Dispensary having been relieved by Your Excellency from the embarrassment in which it was involved, and placed in a respectable position amongst the benevolent Institutions of the Colony, daily affording medicine and advice gratuitously to persons suffering under the complicated evils of poverty and disease; the Committee feel it a duty incumbent on them to inform Your Excellency of the success with which their labors have been attended, and to express the sense of obligation under which the public is placed by the issue, on the part of Your Excellency, of funds from the Colonial Revenue on its behalf.

We are persuaded it will afford Your Excellency a lively satisfaction to learn, on retiring from the fatigues of Office, that in the general prosperity which has attended Your Excellency's administration, the cause of humanity has not been overlooked. From the rapid increase of the laboring classes cases frequently occur, requiring immediate relief, particularly amongst a population of improvident habits, as well as amongst deserving persons in the middle walks of life, reduced to destitution by the ravages of protracted disease. To these, and to the aged and afflicted in general, assistance has been afforded, to the number of nearly one thousand cases annually, chiefly by the resources placed at our disposal by Your Excellency's bounty; and by means now in progress, the Sydney Dispensary, already greatly indebted to Your Excellency's patronage, will be in a condition more effectively than heretofore, to confer the blessings of relief and renovated health on a large and deserving class of our fellow Colonists.

We present our fervent wishes that, in retirement, and in the enjoyment of domestic society, Your Excellency will experience the conscious satisfaction that the public prosperity with which this Colony has been visited during Your Excellency's administration, has been the result of the wisdom of your public measures; and also the pleasing reflection that, since Your Excellency's arrival, a most perceptible improvement has taken place in the moral and philanthropic relations of the Colonists. In return for the many hours of anxious solicitude experienced in establishing principles of a liberal character and tendency, we trust Your Excellency will enjoy the gratification that they have been attended with the success anticipated in their Establishment.

In the name of the Committee of the Sydney Dispensary,

(Signed) J. M'ENCROE,
Chairman.

Sydney, November 28, 1837.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—I thank you for your kind Address. The good wishes of those who are associated to relieve the sicknesses and wants of their fellow-creatures are peculiarly gratifying, as proceeding from a source of disinterested benevolence. It has afforded me much pleasure to have been enabled by donations from the public treasury to aid the charitable exertions of individuals, and to have placed the Institution, which you direct, upon a footing of enlarged usefulness. The sudden and violent ravages of disease may, for a season, render the sober and industrious the necessary and cherished object of charity, whilst the improvident and vicious are at all times subject to distress. It is, however, the great felicity of this country, that habits of industry and sobriety seldom fail to place the deserving above the pressure of want. Let it then be remembered, that the more limited is the demand upon the charity of the affluent the more freely ought it to be dispensed; and it is fortunate that there are found to administer it persons of such intelligence and benevolence as compose the Committee of the Sydney Dispensary.

To His Excellency Lieutenant General Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., Captain General and Governor-in-Chief, in and over Her Majesty's Territory of New South Wales and its Dependencies, &c. &c., &c.

WE, the undersigned, of the United Body of Free and Accepted Masons of New South Wales, beg leave to approach Your Excellency, on your retirement from this Government, with the faithful assurance of our most sincere respect, and of our most cordial esteem.

From a society, of which the leading object is to promote and disseminate the principles of "peace, love, and harmony," it is due to Your Excellency to acknowledge that the mild virtues, which are the distinguishing characteristics of Your Excellency's general conduct, are in perfect accordance with that benevolent system, on which the foundation of this Society is firmly based. We therefore feel ourselves particularly called upon to mark those virtues with the strongest expressions of our estimation.

Precluded by the Regulations of our Brotherly Associations from blending with our public addresses any observations of a political nature, it only remains for us to convey to Your Excellency the assurances of our friendly regard, and lasting recollections of your benevolent qualities; your honorable principles, and your generous philanthropy; and to express our heartfelt wishes that on your departure from these shores, you may meet with a safe, pleasant, and speedy passage to your native land, and may there long enjoy, in the bosom of your social and domestic circle, that repose and felicity which are the deserved meed of honor, rectitude, and, beneficence.

(Here follow the Signatures.)

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

Gentlemen,—

I am much gratified by the address you present to me on my retirement from the Government. I admire the sentiments it expresses and the good principles it inculcates.

To your society I am a stranger, except by the knowledge I possess of the charitable and peaceable conduct which has distinguished its members in this Colony. Your public processions have been orderly and well-conducted; your intercourse among yourselves, I am happy to learn, is conciliatory and friendly in a high degree; and wishing you a continuance of the happiness and harmony that prevail among you, I sincerely reciprocate your kind expressions of good will and regard.

To His Excellency Sir Richard Bourke, K.C.B., Governor, Commander-in-Chief, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency:—

WE, the Inhabitants of the Town and District of Liverpool, in our loyalty and attachment to Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, and the constitution of our Parent Country, beg most respectfully to approach Your Excellency, as the representative of our Sovereign, on your retirement from the Government of this Colony, with the expressions of esteem for your private character, and gratitude for the many benefits we have derived from the judicious, praiseworthy, and well-advised measures of Your Excellency's Government; the remembrance of which will be as lasting as their advantages to this rising Colony, and our improving Town and District, are calculated to promote.

In addressing Your Excellency on this occasion, the Inhabitants of this Town and District are reminded of your prompt attention (in some instances spontaneous) to our common rights and local advantages; nor can we lose sight of that prudence and necessary precaution, which has invariably marked the wisdom of Your Excellency's administration, by reference to the most probable sources of information and freedom of personal access, before adopting any measure for the general benefit of the Colony, or the peculiar wants of any separate Town or District.

So long as Liverpool contrives to derive the benefit of an abundant supply of fresh water, a safe and easy access over Lansdowne Bridge, a freedom of water communication by the clearing of George's River, and the placing a fixed establishment for keeping its streets in repair, Your Excellency's name will be cherished in grateful remembrance: and in taking leave of Your Excellency, on your retirement from the important and arduous duties of your exalted station in this Colony, we anticipate, and sincerely hope, that you will receive from Our Most Gracious Sovereign her unqualified approbation, and carry with you into private life the consoling and cheering assurance of having devoted a useful life to the honor of your country, the benefit of an important Dependency of Her Majesty's Empire, and the prosperity of the Inhabitants of the Town and District of Liverpool.

We have the honor to be

Your Excellency's devoted Servants.

(Here follow the Signatures.)

Adopted at a Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town and District, held at the Court House, 1st December, 1837.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—I have received with much gratification the expression of your thanks, for the measures which it has been fortunately in my power to direct for the comfort and improvement of your Town. That they should have been so successful as to call forth in you the kind feelings evinced in your Address is my best reward. The abundant supply of good water, which will now be afforded to you by the construction of the dam, and the security from interruption to the intercourse with Sydney, obtained by the erection of Lansdowne Bridge, as well from Liverpool as the important interior Districts to the south, will continue, I trust, to operate beneficially towards the advancement of your Town.

In bidding you farewell, I cannot omit to thank you for the cordial co-operation which I have at all times experienced from you in carrying into effect those measures of improvement to which you have so kindly alluded, and which has tended so essentially to promote them.

NEW ZEALAND.

REPRESENTATIONS having been made from time to time, by James Busby, Esq., British Resident in New Zealand, of Offences perpetrated in that Island by Subjects of Great Britain, under the belief that the difficulty of conviction would ensure impunity, His Excellency the ACTING GOVERNOR and the Executive Council of New South Wales deem it right to notify, for general information, that Sentence of Death has been passed by the Supreme Court of this Colony upon Edward Doyle, found guilty of stealing in a dwelling-house at the Bay of Islands, on the 18th of June last, and putting John Wright in bodily fear; and that Doyle has been executed accordingly, this day.

His Excellency trusts that this example will afford a salutary warning to all persons who may be disposed to commit similar acts, and, by convincing them that, however remote, they are not beyond the reach of justice, will render such outrages less frequent in future.

The British Resident will be pleased to take the necessary steps for making this Notification generally known, both to Europeans and to the Native Inhabitants.
