PROCLAMATION.

By His Excellency SIR GEORGE GIPPS, Knight, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the Territory of New South Wales, and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, &c., &c.

WHEREAS by a certain Act or Ordinance of the Governor and Legislative Council, passed in the second year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled, "An Act for regulating the Police in the Towns of Parramatta, Windsor, Maitland, Bathurst, and other Towns respectively, and for the removing and preventing Nuisances and obstructions, and for the better alignment of streets therein," it was amongst other things enacted, that whenever the Governor or Acting Governor for the time being should deem it expedient to extend the same to any other Town in the said Colony, it should and might be lawful for the said Governor or Acting Governor for the time being to declare the same by Proclamation: Now, therefore, I, the Governor, in pursuance of the power and authority so in me vested, by the said recited Act, by this my Proclamation, do hereby direct that the provisions of the said Act be extended to Brisbane, in the District of Moreton Bay, the boundaries of which Town are thus described.—Commencing on the Brisbane River at the mouth of a small gully opposite Kangaroo Point, and bounded on the north by a line bearing west 91 chains 50 links; on the west by a line being 40 chains west from the centre of the Windmill, bearing south 45 chains 70 links to the Brisbane River, prolonged across that river, and thence south 60 chains; on the south by a line bearing east 140 chains; on the east by a line bearing north 49 chains 10 links to the Brisbane River, by that river upwards to the termination of the road running through Kangaroo Point, and thence by a straight line across the Brisbane River to the point of commencement.

Given under my hand and Seal, at Government House, Sydney, this thirtieth day of April, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-six.

(L.S.) GEORGE GIPPS.

TWENTY FIVE POUNDS REWARD, OR A CONDITIONAL PARDON.

WHEREAS, it has been represented to the Government, that on the night of the 21st ultimo, the foundation stone of the New Hospital, at Maitland, was removed from its bed by some person or persons unknown, the bottle deposited in it taken out and broken, and the parchment carried away; His Excellency the Governor directs it to be notified, that a Reward of Twenty Five Pounds will be paid to any free person or persons who may give such information as shall lead to the apprehension and conviction of the guilty parties; and if the person giving the said information be a Prisoner of the Crown, application will be made to Her Majesty for the allowance of a Second Class Conditional Pardon to such Prisoner of the Crown.

By His Excellency's Command,
E. DEAS THOMSON.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 1st May, 1846.

TORRES' STRAITS.

WITH reference to the Notices from this Office, dated the 30th May and 12th August, 1845, His Excellency the GOVERNOR has been pleased to direct the publication of the following revised Sailing Directions for Torres' Straits, prepared under the direction of Captain Francis Price Blackwood, of Her Majesty's ship "Fly."

A Chart corresponding with these Directions has also been engraved on Copper, and can be obtained from the Port Master, at a charge of Five shillings, including a copy of these Sailing Directions.

By His Excellency's Command.
E. DEAS THOMSON.

SAILING DIRECTIONS FOR TORRES' STRAITS.

THE season for passing through "Torres' Straits" from the eastward, is from the beginning of April to the end of October, during which time the S.E. trade blows through the Strait.

From December until March the west monsoon blows in the Timor Sea and through "Torres' Straits." Her Majesty's surveying vessels having spent all last westerly monsoon in the Straits, and the schooner "Heroine" having successfully sailed down to Sydney last January, from Singapore, the passage through Torres' Straits from India may now be considered as established; and, in my opinion, it is perfectly easy and practicable, if but moderate caution be used.

Having premised that no ships should attempt to take the "Outer Passage" through "Torres' Straits" without a good Chronometer, well-rated on leaving Sydney, and that the Captain is a careful seaman and competent navigator, I will briefly describe the track that he should follow, and the advantages and disadvantages of entering by Raine's Island, or steering for the Eastern Fields by the "Northern Passage," referring him for more precise information by Chart and Sailing Directions to the Harbour Master's Office.

I believe that a ship leaving Sydney in the early part of the east monsoon, namely—from the middle of March to the beginning of May, is likely to make a fine passage, and have good weather in running through the Straits, and in making the Barrier Reef.

From May until August is the height of the S.E. monsoon, when it generally blows strong through the Straits, often accompanied by thick weather. After that time the monsoon abates in its strength till November, when calms and light winds prevail in the Timor Sea, and a long passage may be expected to be made in this month.

The first known danger in the outer track to "Torres' Straits" after leaving Port Jackson, is the "Cato's Bank," in  $23^{\circ} 6'$  south latitude, and  $155^{\circ} 23'$  east longitude. It is a coral shoal of small dimensions, and has a sand bank on it, as indeed most of the outer detached dangers have.

"Wreck Reef Bank" is in latitude  $22^{\circ} 11'$  S., and  $155^{\circ} 19'$  east longitude, by Flinder's observations; but Bird Islet lays 7 miles to the eastward of the above-named bank, being the easternmost part of the danger.

The reef is about twenty miles long, running east and west, and appears to be separated by channels said to be safe to sail through.

"Australia Reef" has been twice seen, and appears certainly to exist, the same position having been assigned to it, viz.— $22^{\circ} 41'$  S. latitude, and  $156^{\circ} 7'$  E. longitude. It is reported to be very small in extent, which may account for its having been so long unnoticed.

"Kem's Reef" is said to be six miles in extent, composed of sand and rocks, some of which are eight feet out of water. It is in latitude  $21^{\circ} 9'$  S., and longitude  $155^{\circ} 49'$  E.

It will be necessary to have a good look out when in the neighbourhood of these dangers, as indeed it is at all times, both by night and by day, when running up the outer passage, and should there be any doubt as to the ships position by Chronometer, "Wreck Reef" should be sighted to correct the ships position.

No ship should go to westward of  $155^{\circ} 00'$  east longitude, until the 20th parallel of latitude be passed, or for a couple of hundred miles north of "Wreck Reef," for the Great Barrier Reef here throws itself off to the eastward in detached and dangerous patches, which have not yet been explored. Having run that distance to the north of "Wreck Reef," she may edge away a little and should leave "Libous" and "Alert Shoals," at least a degree to the westward of her track.

These dangers are very extensive, and the eastern part extends from  $16^{\circ} 50'$  to  $17^{\circ} 45'$  of S. latitude; and in longitude from  $150^{\circ} 00'$  to  $152^{\circ} 30'$  E., which is their eastern limit.

It was, no doubt, amongst these Reefs, that the "Coringa Packet" was lost; and it is a part of the coral sea which ought never to be touched upon unless compelled by dire necessity, for it is known to be strewed with detached and dangerous patches, the current sweeping strongly to the N.W. in their neighbourhood.

Having passed the  $16^{\circ}$  parallel of latitude and being in about  $154^{\circ}$  of E longitude, a north-westerly course may be steered, passing "Diana's Bank," in latitude  $15^{\circ} 38'$  S., and longitude  $150^{\circ} 28'$  east.

This danger is, however, well out of the usual track for the Barrier entrances; and the only known reef existing outside the great line of "Barrier Reefs" is now the "Osprey Reef," in latitude  $13^{\circ} 57'$  S., and longitude  $146^{\circ} 20'$  E. It was discovered and twice seen in 1844, the same position being assigned to it, and appears to be 10 miles in extent.

In shaping a course for the beacon on "Raine's Island" a N.W. current of at least 1 mile per hour should be allowed for, and such a track followed as will fall in with the Barrier 15 or 20 miles to the southward of the beacon, which is in latitude  $11^{\circ} 36'$  S., and longitude  $144^{\circ} 7'$  E. Having then obtained a good latitude observation, and sighted the reefs, steer a north course along their outer edge, at a distance of a couple of miles from the reefs, till the beacon be seen when it bears north; and being in the centre of the channel south of the Island which is nearly 9 miles in width, steer in W.S.W. for 9 miles, which will lead into soundings of 20 fathoms, and then S.W. for Sir Charles Hardy's Islands.

I may here observe, that if the weather be fine and the latitude well determined, the ship being in the hands of a cool seaman, any of the narrow passages south of Raine's Islet, examined by Her Majesty's ship "Fly," may be safely taken. They are as follow:—"Black Rocks" in  $12^{\circ} 12' S.$  latitude (the best); "Nimrod's Passage" in  $12^{\circ} 6' S.$ ; "Single Rock Entrance" in  $12^{\circ} 2' S.$ ; and "Stead's Passage"  $11^{\circ} 55' S.$  latitude.

Should the weather be thick or blowing, a very common occurrence at the full and change of the moon, the reefs south of "Raine's Island" form themselves into such dangerous bays, that, without some mark to steer for, I cannot but consider it highly hazardous to attempt any of these passages, more especially as the tides run through them with considerable rapidity.

If Raine's Island be passed, Pandora's Entrance, a good entrance of a couple of miles wide, lays eight miles to the northward of it, having a sand bank on its southern extreme, and should that be missed, it will be necessary to run down 90 miles to the northward; when having sighted "Murray's Islands," (which are high and plainly visible in moderately clear weather, being only 6 miles from the Barrier Reef,) and running along the outer edge the reef for 15 or 20 miles to the north of Murray's Islands, when in latitude  $9^{\circ} 25' S.$ , a west course may be steered in, for the Great Barrier Reef here terminates, leaving a broad, safe, and clear passage between it and the New Guinea Coast.

It is necessary to observe, that on no account should any of the dangerous and narrow passages from Pandora's Entrance, in  $11^{\circ} 26'$  to the termination of the Barrier in  $9^{\circ} 25' S.$  latitude be used. They are all perfectly impracticable, and from the strong tides that set through them, highly dangerous. It was in entering through one of these narrow channels that the "Hydrabad" was lost, having Murray's Island on a  $W. \frac{1}{2} N.$  bearing.

Having got within the reefs, and obtained soundings, the great cause of anxiety may be said to be over; but a vigilant mast-head look-out must still be kept, and whether sailing in for the main land over the parts examined by Her Majesty's Surveying vessels or not, whilst running from Raine's Island or any part of the Barrier for the main land, the vessel should be anchored when the sun gets so far a-head as to dazzle the sight of the mast-head look-out man.

The great danger of the "outer route" I consider to be in making the Barrier in thick or blowing weather, when, if no observation for latitude be obtained, a ship might find herself up to the reefs before she intended it; perhaps, too, in the night, when a person having charge of a valuable ship might well be forgiven for being a little bewildered in such a situation, and it has probably been thus that most of the ships have been wrecked.

In fine weather there is no great difficulty about entering the reefs; but, I have never been in any part of the world where the ocean assumes so different a feature as it does on a fine day, and the contrary, amongst the Barrier Reefs of New Holland.

I would therefore recommend, if the weather be unfavorable for making the "Barrier Entrances," to steer up for the "Eastern Fields," still allowing for a  $W.N.W.$  current of a mile per hour, and having rounded or sighted them and "Portlock's Reef," a west course will lead into what I consider the safest channel yet known through "Torres' Straits," having ample room for a ship to lay-to if night comes on, no sunken dangers, and good anchorage throughout. It has indeed received a very close examination from the surveying vessels, and I will now proceed briefly to describe this passage.

The "Eastern Fields," discovered and laid down by Flinders, who sailed through them, are a series of detached reefs, their N.E. extreme being in latitude  $10^{\circ} 00' S.$ ; and longitude  $145^{\circ} 45' E.$ , and extending upwards of 20 miles to the westward.

From the "Eastern Fields" the north extreme of "Portlock's Reef" bears  $N. 60 W.$ , distant 63 miles, being in latitude  $9^{\circ} 27' S.$ ; and longitude  $144^{\circ} 57' E.$ , and having got into this parallel of  $9^{\circ} 23' S.$ , and steering in a due west course, if the weather be at all clear, "Anchor Key" (a detached sand bank surrounded by a reef,) will be sighted, distant 33 miles, nearly due west, from the north extreme of "Portlock's Reef."

From "Anchor Key," Darnley Island, which is the leading mark for the passage, bears  $S.W.$  by  $W.$  24 miles distant, and in clear weather should be distinctly visible, as the peak of the island is nearly 600 feet high; latitude Darnley Island Peak  $9^{\circ} 35' 10''$ ; longitude  $143^{\circ} 50' 15'' E.$  Steering on a due west course some breaking patches will be seen, which run out 14 miles to the  $N.N.E.$  from Darnley Island, and which may be considered as the northern dangers of "Torres' Straits," leaving a broad, safe, and clear passage between them and the coast of New Guinea.

"Bramble Key" (a large sand bank surrounded by a reef, and having a patch of detached black rocks 12 or 14 feet above high water, and separated from the sand bank by a clear passage of 3 miles in width,) is a good mark for this entrance.

The Sandy Key above-named, bears  $N.$  by  $E.$  28 miles from Darnley Island, (which is usually seen from it,) leaving a clear and safe passage of 15 miles in width between the "Key" and the breaking patches above-named, which run out from Darnley Island on the one side, and an equally broad and safe channel on the other, between it and the Coast of New Guinea, which Coast is at its nearest point 28 miles distant from "Bramble Key," thus leaving a clear and safe entrance into "Torres' Straits" of 40 miles in width.

It may be here observed that the New Guinea Coast should, if possible, be avoided, for it is low and the Soundings run off shoal to a distance of 8 and 9 miles from the land; if approached, the hand-lead should be kept going. But I would recommend the passage to the south of "Bramble Key" as quite the most preferable, either in entering or leaving Torres' Straits. The people of the New Guinea Coast are fierce and hostile to white people, and no communication should be had with them without being well armed.

The ship's position being clearly made out, a  $S.W.$  course from Bramble Key, for 30 miles, over a perfectly clear sea, will place her in the best position for sailing through "Torres' Straits," and having steered the above-named course and distance, "Stephen's Island," (which is the easternmost of the low wooded coral islets in "Torres' Straits,") should be seen bearing  $S. S. E.$ , distant 3 or 4 miles.

The average depth over this track will be from 20 to 25 fathoms, with a bottom of sand and loose coral, where the anchor may be let go without any fear of losing it.

It is high water at "Darnley Island" at the full and change of the moon, at 9 hrs. 15 m.; the rise of tide being 10 feet. The flood-tide sets in from the N. E., running at the rate of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  knots per hour, at that period.

Stephen's Island is higher than most of the islets of this group, being two hundred feet from the level of the sea, thickly covered with Cocoa Nut Trees, and surrounded by a coral reef, which runs out nearly 3 miles from its eastern extreme. Stephen's Island bears west-north-west from "Darnley Island Peak" distant  $12\frac{1}{2}$  miles.

From this position, viz.—with "Stephen's Island," bearing south-south-east, 2 or 3 miles distant, a south-west by south course for 45 miles, (varied according to the circumstances of the tide,) is the course to pass through a numerous group of low coralline and thickly wooded Islands, which can only be described by a reference to the Chart. It may be sufficient here to say, that the passages between these Islands are all clear of sunken dangers, and that with a moderate look-out, all sail may be carried through them, recollecting that the coral reefs which surround them, always run out from their eastern extremes, and that they may be safely approached within  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile on their north-western sides. They are separated by channels, varying from 6 to 3 miles in width; and the depth of water will be found to be between 11 and 9 fathoms, on a bottom of coarse sand perfectly clear of Coral Rocks.

These Islands are all inhabited, but I would recommend the crew of any single ship to be cautious in their dealings with the natives, and on no account to land in a boat at a distance from their vessel.

Cocoa nuts and shell fish will be found on all of them, and from the months of January to May or June, abundance of fresh water may be procured in the Bay, on the N. W. side of Darnley Island; where good anchorage may be obtained during the S. E. monsoon.

It may be observed, that neither wood nor water should be taken without having a previous communication with the inhabitants of the Island. They perfectly understand trading for Tortoise Shell, of which a very fine description was obtained by the crew of H. M. S. "Fly". For three months a very friendly communication was held with these people, and I believe, if fairly dealt with, that no cause of quarrel will arise. Knives and axes are the most favorite articles of barter.

Having steered S. W. by S. for 45 miles, the high peak of "Mount Ernest" and "Banks' Island," should be seen bearing west-south-west, and the course must be altered to south by west for 50 miles, which course, if the wind should hang to the southward, will enable a ship to fetch the entrance of "Endeavour Straits" without a tack. This latter part of the passage is perfectly clear, and there is ample room to lay-to for the night, if required.

Previous Sailing Directions having been given for "Endeavour Straits," it will be needless to say anything more upon that subject; and if the slightest caution be used, from the total absence of sunken dangers throughout this northern part of Torres' Straits, and through Endeavour Straits, combined with the good and safe anchorage that may be everywhere obtained, I should consider that a ship would be very unfortunate if she could not sail through from "Darnley Island," at the eastern extreme of "Torres' Straits" to "Wallis' Island," the western extreme of "Endeavour Straits," in 48 hours, anchoring during the night, if necessary.

To sail through Endeavour and "Torres' Straits," from the westward.

The Wallis' Islands form the best guide for the approach to the western entrance of "Endeavour Straits," and a ship intending to sail through this Strait from the westward, should strive to get in to the parallel of the northern of these Islands, which are two in number.

North Wallis' Isle is in lat.  $10^{\circ} 51' 30''$  S.; and in long.  $142^{\circ} 5' 30''$  E. It may be easily distinguished from its appearing when at the distance of 5 or 6 miles, like two small Islets separated from each other, by about a ship's breadth.

South Wallis' Island is lower and more wooded than its namesake, from which it is separated by a channel, which is not safe to sail through, of nearly three miles in width.

In steering for the "Wallis' Isles" the high land of "Prince of Wales' Islands" will first be seen, if the weather be clear, at a distance of 25 or 30 miles, and then the "Wallis' Isles," which are sufficiently elevated to be seen from a ship's deck, a distance of 10 or 12 miles in moderately clear weather.

When at that distance from the "Wallis' Islands", and in the parallel of the Northern Island, "Booby Island" should be seen from the mast-head, bearing N. by E., and the lead should be kept going; for a narrow Spit of Sand runs off due west six miles from the "Northern Wallis' Island."

To avoid the extreme of this Spit, bring North Wallis' Island to bear east-south-east, and steer in a due east course, by which means the above-named danger will be avoided, and North Wallis' Island will be safely passed at a distance of two or three miles.

The course through Endeavour Strait will now be from E. N. E. to N. E. by E. and N. N. E., varying according to the circumstances of the Tide.

The flood sets to the westward, and the ebb to the eastward, running at the springs at the rate of four to five knots per hour; and it is High Water at the full and Change of the moon at one o'clock at Wallis' Island, although the tides here are sometimes exceedingly irregular.

Having passed through the Possession Isles, the different passages between which are all clear to sail through, with the exception of the southern one adjoining the main land of New Holland, an E.  $\frac{3}{4}$  N. course, for 18 miles, over a clear sea, will lead round the northern point of New Holland, when a course should be shaped by Captain King's Chart along the Coast to reach the "Bird Islands," and from the Bird Islands the Directions already published will amply suffice to lead a ship out to sea, through the Barrier, by the Beacon on Raine's Island.

The Courses above given are not corrected for the variation of the Compass, which is four degrees easterly in Torres' Straits.

INDULGENCES TO CONVICTS.

CIRCUMSTANCES appearing to require a revision of the Regulations under which Tickets of Leave and Conditional Pardons are now granted to Prisoners of the Crown in this Colony, His Excellency the Governor is pleased to direct, that the following modifications be adopted in these Regulations from the date hereof.

1.—Without reference to the periods fixed by former Regulations, any Convict who may have served three entire years without punishment, and without any record of misconduct being made against him, may apply in the usual manner for a Ticket of Leave; and if on the investigation of his case, he appear to be deserving of the indulgence, and no legal or other impediment exist to his receiving it, a Ticket of Leave will be granted to him, and will remain in force during the Governor's pleasure.

2.—In like manner, any person who may have held a Ticket of Leave with continued good conduct during a period of not less than three years, and may be recommended by not less than three Magistrates or other persons of respectability known to the Government, may apply, by Petition, to the Governor for a Conditional Pardon.

In promulgating these Regulations, however, the Governor feels it necessary to remark, that his attention has been drawn to the unnecessary labour which is occasioned in the Department of the Principal Superintendent of Convicts, by the irregular and improper applications of persons for indulgences which they are not entitled to ask for; and His Excellency gives this general Notice, that all persons who may hereafter by their applications give unnecessary trouble of any sort, will expose themselves to the loss of the advantage promised by these Regulations, or to other punishment as the case may require.
