SAILING DIRECTIONS FOR THE PIONEER RIVER, AND BUOY ON THE COTTIER BANK, KEPPEL BAY, QUEENSLAND.

THE accompanying Sailing Directions for the Pioneer River, and Notice to Mariners respecting a Buoy on the Cottier Bank, Keppel Bay, Queensland, are published for the information of navigators and others.

ROBERT S. ANDERSON,
Commissioner of Trade and Customs.

Department of Trade and Customs,
Melbourne 4th February, 1863.

The Treasury, Queensland,
9th January, 1863.

THE following Sailing Directions and information respecting the Pioneer River, prepared by Lieut. G. P. Heath, Portmaster, are published for general information.

T. DE LACY MOFFATT,
Colonial Treasurer.

SAILING DIRECTIONS FOR THE PIONEER RIVER.

Vessels on nearing the Pioneer River can always recognise its position by its proximity to two islands lying north-west and south-east, one mile apart, that to the south-east being round-topped and moderately high, while that to the north-west, although about the same height, is flat-topped.

The entrance to the Pioneer is about one and a half miles south-west of the flat-topped island. A bar extends across the mouth of the river, which nearly dries at low water springs, and from thence the depth of the channel, which has an average width of one cable, varies from one foot to seven feet at low water, until within about three-quarters of a mile of the settlement, when it again almost dries across, and from thence the depth gradually increases until abreast the settlement, which is about four miles from the bar, and where there is about seven feet at low water in the centre of the channel.

There is a rise and fall on the bar of from ten and a half feet to sixteen feet, and at the settlement of from nine feet to thirteen feet, so that most of the vessels trading on the coast can enter the port without difficulty.

The directions for entering, until the river is buoyed and beacons, are as follows:—

To cross the bar, keep a double hummock, which is about eight miles distant, its own width to the southward of some low sandhills on the beach. A vessel may haul up when the island to the south-east of Slade Point is well shut in with the trees on the extreme east point, but should be careful not to stand over so as to shut in L Island with that point. The channel then runs in a north by west direction towards the steep shore on the west side of east point. As that point is neared, the edge of the banks is more clearly defined. They are there steep to, and may be approached within a reasonable distance. The channel then runs along the starboard shore until a sandy cliff point is passed, and the settlement opened out to the westward, for which a vessel may then haul up and steer, being careful, after passing the point on the port hand, to keep that shore on board until abreast of the settlement.

Vessels intending to enter the Pioneer River should not run down on the lee shore when it is blowing hard from the east or south-east, but should anchor under some of the islands off the coast until the weather moderates. In moderate south-easterly weather a vessel would find sufficient shelter under the lee of the flat-topped island, being careful to avoid a sandspit running off the south extreme of that island, towards the east point at the entrance of the river. There is a good passage, about three-quarters of a mile wide, between this spit and the shoal water off the main land. When in mid-channel, the island to the south-east of Slade Point is on with the peak of M Island. The entrance of the river is sheltered by the islands during north-easterly winds.

Vessels should carefully avoid the dangerous reef to the northward of the two islands off the Pioneer, and lying nearly midway between those islands and the island to the south-east of Slade Point. There is, however, a clear passage between this reef and the main land, and also between Slade Point and the small island lying off the shore. There is also a clear passage between the round and flat-topped islands.

The tides in the Pioneer River run from three to upwards of four knots. High water, full and change $1\frac{1}{2}$ hours.

Vessels, if drawing more than seven feet, may lay aground at low water, abreast the settlement, in safety, on soft sandy bottom, the river at that time of tide forming a perfectly sheltered basin there.

On entering the river while any tide is running, the banks are generally visible, and there is little difficulty in navigating the river if proper attention is paid, and the lead kept going. From the narrowness of the channel, the port is not well suited for vessels of any great length.

A plan of the river will be in the hands of the lithographer in the course of a few days.

G. P. HEATH, Lieut. R.N.,
Portmaster and Marine Surveyor.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

COTTIER BANK, KEPPEL BAY.

A BLACK buoy is now placed, with the approval of the Marine Board, off the north extreme of the Cottier Bank, in five and a half fathoms low water:—

Magnetic bearings at buoy	{	Cape Capricorn	... S. 73° E.
		Lt. Ex. Hummocky Island	N. 47° E.
		2nd Lump	... N. 71° W.
		Outer Keppel Rock	... S. 81° W.

Vessels after passing Cape Capricorn may steer for the 2nd Lump, making due allowance for tides, until the buoy off the Cottier Bank is passed, when they may haul up, pass the outer Keppel Rock at a distance of half a mile, and steer for the black buoy off the Timandra Bank, which strangers on entering the port should always leave on the port hand.

G. P. HEATH, Lieut. R.N.,
Portmaster and Marine Surveyor.
