EXPOSURE OF CARCASSES OF DEAD CATTLE ON COMMON LANDS.

TO MANAGERS OF COMMONS.

THE exposure of carcases of cattle dying, mostly from pleuro-pneumonia, on the Common Lands of this colony, having been urgently represented to the Central Board of Health as a source of excessive nuisance, and enquiries recently made having shown that in several districts the nuisance exists to an extent fully justifying anticipations of danger therefrom to the public health, the board desire to direct the attention of managers of commons to the subject, and would suggest to them the expediency of framing regulations, under the authority of the Land Act of 1862, to provide for the proper disposal of carcases of cattle dying on lands under their control.

(By Order of the Board) FRED. W. THOMAS,
Secretary.
