No. 293, and which have been approved by the Officer administering the Government in Council, are published for general information.

JAS. G. FRANCIS,

Commissioner of Trade and Customs.

Department of Trade and Customs,
Melbourne, 14th May, 1866.

REGULATIONS.

1. If after entry and examination of goods subject to ad valorem duty, it shall appear to the proper officer of customs that such goods have been undervalued according to the meaning and intention of the 3rd section of the Customs Duties Act, 29 Victoria No. 293, such officer shall detain the goods so undervalued and assess the value thereof, when he shall forthwith give notice in writing to the owner or agent of such goods to amend his entry in accordance with such assessment; and such notice shall be left at the residence or known place of business of the agent or owner of the goods so detained as aforesaid.

2. In the event of the owner or agent of the goods which have been detained for undervaluation neglecting or refusing to amend his entry in accordance with the assessed value thereof by the proper officer within two clear days after he has been requested to do so by notice as aforesaid, or within such other longer period as the Commissioner of Trade and Customs may appoint, then the value as assessed by the proper officer shall be deemed and taken to be the true value thereof, and the goods charged with duty accordingly; but the owner or agent of such goods may, within the period first mentioned, if he shall deem the value so assessed to be in excess of the true and real value thereof, apply for and obtain the collector's sanction—which he is hereby required to give—to appoint a competent valuator on his behalf to examine and value the goods detained as aforesaid in conjunction with another valuator to be appointed for and on behalf of the Crown by the collector; and if upon examination of the said goods as hereinafter directed, such valuers do not concur in the value thereof, they shall forthwith appoint a third person to act as umpire, and acquaint the collector therewith; and in the event of such valuers disagreeing in the choice of a person to be appointed for that purpose, then the collector shall act as umpire; or it shall be competent, if they think fit, for the valuers in the first instance to appoint an umpire as aforesaid before examining or determining the value of the goods in dispute.

3. After the appointment of valuers as aforesaid, the collector shall proceed with all convenient despatch to appoint a meeting or meetings of the valuers so appointed, or of such valuers and their umpire as aforesaid, to be held at some convenient time and place, for the purpose of examining and determining the true value of the goods in dispute, according to the 3rd section of the said recited Act, at which meeting or meetings the collector shall be present, whether acting as umpire or not; and the decision of the two valuers as aforesaid, or of such valuers and umpire or a majority of them, shall be made in writing and be final and conclusive, and the goods charged with duty accordingly.

4. In the event of the owner or agent of goods detained for undervaluation by the proper officer aforesaid failing to appoint a valuator on his behalf, and to acquaint the collector in writing with the name and address of the person so appointed by him within two clear days after he has obtained such collector's sanction as aforesaid, or within such other longer period as the Commissioner of Trade and Customs may appoint; or should such valuator to be appointed as aforesaid neglect to attend any meeting of valuers to be appointed by the collector without, in the opinion of the Inspector General of Customs or other officer acting for or on his behalf, good and sufficient reason for absentsing himself, to be certified to by such officer, then and in either case the value of goods in dispute, as assessed by the proper officer, shall be deemed and taken to be the true value thereof, and they shall be charged with duty accordingly.

5. In accordance with the powers conferred on him by the 29th and 30th sections of the Act of Parliament 21 Victoria No. 13, the collector may, if he think fit, at such meeting or meeting of valuers as aforesaid, summon any witnesses for the purpose of giving evidence in respect to the true and real value of goods detained for undervaluation, and may examine such witnesses on oath.

6. If the value of goods as assessed by the proper officer of customs after examination thereof, or by valuers to be appointed for that purpose as aforesaid, shall be greater than that declared to on entry of the same, then the costs of such examination and valuation shall be defrayed by the owner or agent of such goods according to the provisions contained in the said recited Act; but should the value of such goods as determined by valuers as aforesaid be the same or less than that declared to on entry of such goods as aforesaid, then the cost of such valuation shall be defrayed in equal portions by the owner or agent of such goods and the Government respectively.

7. For the purpose of more effectually carrying out the intention of the before-recited Act, and for aiding and assisting the officers of customs, when the value of goods subject to ad valorem duty is unknown or uncertain, the Commissioner of Trade and Customs may license one or more persons at each port to be called "Experts," who shall be well acquainted with the character and value of one or other of the descriptions of goods ordinarily imported, for the purpose of assisting the proper officers of customs, when so required by the collector, to assess the true value of such goods after entry thereof.

8. The fees to be paid to the valuers to be appointed as aforesaid by the owner or agent of goods in dispute, and for and on behalf of the Government respectively, and the umpire to be appointed by such valuers as aforesaid, except when the collector shall act in that capacity, and to experts when employed as aforesaid, shall in no case exceed three guineas nor be less than One guinea each according to the quantity and value of goods for which the services of such valuers or experts are required; and the amount of such fees shall be determined by the Inspector General of Customs or other officer acting on his behalf.

9. Every person who shall be appointed a valuator or umpire as aforesaid shall, before determining the value of goods detained for undervaluation, make and subscribe in the presence of the collector the declaration annexed marked A; and all persons who shall be appointed to the office of expert in the Customs under the control of the commissioner shall, on his being licensed as aforesaid, make the declaration annexed hereto marked B.

10. The foregoing regulations will not apply in cases where it shall appear to the Inspector General of Customs, or other officer acting for or on his behalf, that goods imported have been intentionally undervalued in the first entry thereof; such goods shall be dealt with as provided for by law.

11. The term collector in the foregoing regulations shall mean the collector of customs of the port of import, or any officer acting for or on his behalf.
