BAY OF BENGAL, COROMANDEL COAST.—MADRAS.—CHANGES IN THE BUOYAGE OF THE PORT.

WITH reference to Notice to Mariners No. 27, issued from this department on the 21st August 1879, it is further notified that, owing to the continual extension of the harbour piers into deep water, and in order to permit of a greater space being available for steamers inside the harbour piers, it has become necessary to remove the large red buoy which hitherto marked the western limit of the anchorage for steamers.

Commanders of steamers are warned by the marine authorities of Madras not to anchor between the piers in less than 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms at low-water; and that when anchoring in this depth they will do so on their own responsibility, and with the exercise of care and judgment.

All sailing vessels, excepting dhonies, should anchor in or beyond the 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ -fathom line of soundings, and outside the northern and southern port buoys.

The port buoys are painted red and white vertically, and are anchored in 8 fathoms. These buoys are danger buoys, and commanders of vessels making or leaving the anchorage are hereby warned not to pass inshore of either of them, nor come under 9 fathoms by night.

The northern buoy marks the position which will form the extreme end of the north pier.

Vessels are on no account to venture between the northern buoy and the north pier, nor between the southern buoy and the south pier, as the rubble bases of both piers extend much further seaward than the piers themselves.

By direction of the Government of India.

Commander (late I.N.),

Superintendent, Marine Survey of India.
