DEPUTY Registrars of Births and Deaths are reminded that the object of these Reports is to enable the Central Board of Health to take immediate action (when such appears to be necessary), and so arrest, if possible, the spread of any infectious or contagious disease.

In order to render the information of any value to the Board, it is desirable, especially in country districts, that as full a description as possible of the place of death be given, so as to save subsequent trouble and inconvenience, which has hitherto been the case in several instances where the information as to the place of residence of the deceased has not been clearly and fully described.
