(L.S.) HOPETOUN.

By His Excellency's Command,
GEORGE TURNER,
Commissioner of Trade and Customs.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN!

REGULATIONS UNDER SECTION 26 OF THE "TRADE MARKS ACT 1890."

THE following Instructions are published for the information and guidance of Officers of Customs:—

INSTRUCTIONS TO OFFICERS.

1. It will be observed that the above Regulations do two things:—

- (1) They direct that goods prohibited by the Act which are detected by the officers upon examination (that is to say upon ordinary examination for revenue purposes), are to be detained without previous information.
- (2) They provide what is to be done in cases where prohibited importation, and the ground of such prohibition, are matters not of detection in the ordinary way, but of information by an informant.

2. Collectors will require guidance as to what goods, in the opinion of the Commissioner of Trade and Customs, the officers ought to detect, as mentioned in sub-paragraph (1); and as to the action to be taken by officers after information, as mentioned in sub-paragraph (2).

3. The Act extends so largely the area of prohibited goods for the benefit not only of Victorian subjects, but also of the subjects and citizens of foreign states, that as to a considerable proportion of goods liable to prohibition on importation, the officers cannot be expected to act without some guidance by information. It must not be, however, held or worked so as in any way to diminish the care at present taken by the officers in respect to "Victorian marks" involving names of Victorian places or indications of Victorian manufacture, and to this extent at least the officers must continue to act without previous information.

4. Collectors will observe that names or trade marks of Victorian manufacturers, dealers, or traders on imported foreign goods (section 17, sentence beginning "All goods manufactured at any place outside Victoria") are to be only admissible if distinctly qualified, not merely as heretofore by words showing manufacture abroad, but by a definite indication of the country in which the goods were made or produced; and this same principle is contained even more emphatically in section 19 of the Act as regards lawful and general "trade descriptions" which include the name of a place or country.

5. The goods, therefore, which it is distinctly expected the officers themselves shall detect upon ordinary examination, and without previous information, will be as follows, viz.:

Class (a).—Goods of foreign manufacture, by whomsoever imported, having applied to them either a name or trade mark which is or purports to be the name or trade mark of a manufacturer, dealer, or trader in Victoria; or a trade description which indicates particular class or method of manufacture, and includes the name of a place in or a part of Victoria, and is thereby calculated to mislead as to the place of the manufacture or production of goods which have not been manufactured or produced in Victoria; unless such name, mark, or description is accompanied by a definite indication of the place or country in which the goods were made or produced, that is to say, an addition immediately before or after the said name, mark, or description, in an equally conspicuous manner therewith, of the name of the place or country in which the goods were actually made or produced with, in the case of a trade description including name of place, a statement that they were made or produced there.

Class (b).—Goods of foreign manufacture, by whomsoever imported, having applied to them any description, figures, words, or marks, or arrangement or combination thereof, so as to constitute by being or including either expressly or by reference the name of a place in or a part of Victoria, or in any other way a statement or other indication direct or indirect that the goods were made or produced in Victoria.

6. On the above classification collectors will note this paragraph and the paragraphs to 9 inclusive.

It will obviously not be in the power of the officers, nor are they expected to decide whether goods falling within class (a) were actually made or produced in the country from which they come; but, in practice, it will be sufficient if the officers satisfy themselves that the name of some foreign country or of some place of a foreign country is applied to the goods in a manner equally indelible or irremovable, and equally conspicuous with the name or trade mark itself, and in close proximity to it.

7. The word "purports," also in (a), is to be understood as referring to any name or names reasonably suggesting a Victorian manufacturer, dealer, or trader, without regard to the fact of whether the name is or is not known to the officer; or, as referring to a trade mark not being merely matter of decoration or ornament, which reasonably suggests itself as Victorian by containing some wording or national devices or figures distinctly indicating Victorian manufacture.

8. The words "a trade description which indicates a particular class or method of manufacture, and includes the name of a place in or a part of Victoria, and is thereby calculated to mislead" mean such terms as "Geelong tweeds" and the like, which, although they might be held to be merely phrases descriptive of method of manufacture, are yet calculated to mislead as to place of origin.

9. Class (b) refers to and includes such inscriptions as "present from such and such a place" and the like; or, even without a name, any phrases, words, languages, or devices which state or indicate, directly or indirectly, make or production in Victoria; and the words "by reference" mean that "Victorian," for instance, is equivalent to "of Victoria." Any goods bearing such marks will be detained, and collectors will refer the matter to the Commissioner of Trade and Customs.

10. Passing from the goods thus specially mentioned, those generally prohibited by the Act to be imported may be summarized as follows:—

Head (1).—Goods whether of manufacture outside the colony or Victorian goods brought back, having a false trade description as to name or initials or a forged trade mark applied to them.

Head (2).—Like goods having applied to them a false trade description as to the place or country in which they were made or produced; or as to number, quantity, measure, gauge, or weight, mode of manufacture or production, or material of which composed; or as to the goods being the subject of any existing patent, privilege, or copyright.

A false trade description is a description or indication, whether original or by addition, effacement, or otherwise, and whether by figures, words, or marks, or any arrangement or combination thereof, directly or indirectly false in a material respect.

11. With regard to head (1).—This is the protection of a manufacturer, dealer, or trader against the fraudulent or unfair use of his name or trade mark by any other person. It would not be possible for officers to enter into the examination of all names and marks in respect to their use as between various importers. At the same time a manufacturer, dealer, or trader who has reason to believe that his name or trade mark is one not unlikely to be imitated so as to constitute a false trade description or forged trade mark, is entitled to ask that, without the requirement of special information, such description or mark may, upon any importation, be stopped.

12. For this purpose, the Commissioner of Trade and Customs sanctions the system of registration of names or marks in a way similar to that which has hitherto existed; and a manufacturer, dealer, or trader may register his name or mark at such port or ports as he desires. In respect of names or marks so registered it will be the duty of the officers, at the particular port or ports, to prevent the delivery of goods to which such names or marks are applied, unless the delivery is authorized by the registered proprietor. Apart from names or marks as to which such registration exists, the officers are not expected to examine goods with reference to head (1).

13. Any manufacturer, dealer, or trader, whether Victorian or foreign, may register his name or mark; but collectors may refuse registration to any name or mark which they consider to be of a character too indefinite or indistinct for officers to recognize, referring to the Secretary for Trade and Customs in any case of doubt. An applicant for registration must prove his proprietorship of the name or mark by declaration; and if, in order to avoid delay, he desires to do so, he may appoint an agent to give authority for delivery of his goods, and prove (also by declaration) the appointment of such agent.

14. Collectors must understand very distinctly that the use by the Victorian manufacturer, dealer, or trader of even his own name on foreign goods, and the use by any manufacturer, dealer, or trader on like goods, of words, figures, or marks of any kind stating or indicating, directly or indirectly, make or production in Victoria, are prohibited, unless the qualifying conditions specified in paragraph 5 are complied with. Collectors must therefore clearly explain to every person registering a name or mark which involves any such statement or indication, as will probably often be the case, that, while the name or mark will be guarded by such registration, it will not be rendered admissible unless duly qualified as the law may require in every case. The register at the port under the law now expiring will cease to be operative with the expiry of that law.

15. As regards head (2).—If (apart from the goods specially mentioned in paragraph 5, and notwithstanding that classification) the officers should in any case upon the ordinary examination for revenue purposes, detect anything constituting an infringement of any of the prohibitions of the Act as thus set forth, collectors will detain such goods, and refer the matter to the Commissioner of Trade and Customs.

16. Such detection by officers may happen, for instance, as to number, quantity, measure, gauge, or weight; while, on the other hand, as to mode or material of manufacture as to any patent, privilege, or copyright,* or foreign trade marks, the officers, upon ordinary examination, may probably, in the absence of special knowledge, fail in detecting false descriptions or forged trade marks.

17. False descriptions as to place of origin affecting the interests of "British Possessions" or "Foreign States" are matters which, unaided by information, officers will not generally be expected to trace; but wherever they observe goods conspicuously known as the usual product of a particular place or country, and marked with that name, shipped from a port in another country altogether, as for instance, wine marked "Xeres" or "Spanish," from Belgium, or cigars marked "Havana," from Germany, such goods may, in the absence of proof of make or produce at the place or in the country named on them, be properly detained.

18. Some directions (beyond what is shown in the Regulations) are desirable as to the collectors' action upon "information," and they will observe that there are two stages of procedure in this, viz., one up to and including the arrival and examination or identification of the goods, and the other after the examination or identification.

19. With regard to the first stage—the two points for consideration are whether any, and, if so, what special examination of the goods should be made, and what deposit should be taken to cover the expense of such examination if it is made.

20. The character and extent of examination will require careful discretion on the part of the collectors, and will depend on the manner in which the goods are alleged in the notice to infringe the Act. An indication has been given above as to what the Commissioner of Trade and Customs considers that officers can detect and what they cannot upon ordinary examination, and this will furnish a guide as to what they may be able to trace upon fuller examination after information.

21. Wherever, in accordance with such indication, collectors are of opinion that the officers could not, even on fuller examination, discover whether the goods infringe the Act, they need not order a special examination, and consequently will not require any deposit in respect of such examination, but may at once order detention of the goods as if the officer had seen cause to detain them, and proceed to require security in conformity with directions given in paragraph 23 of this Order.

22. Wherever, on the other hand, collectors are of opinion that a fuller examination than that ordinarily directed for revenue purposes may reasonably enable the officers to discover whether or not there is the infringement alleged, as, for instance, by careful weighing, measuring, counting, or gauging, they will direct that such an examination shall take place, examining as to free goods, for this purpose, not less than twice the usual number of packages, and in the case of goods imported in bulk, such as machinery and the like, treating each piece imported as a package.

23. Assuming examination to be ordered by collectors in accordance with the lines above indicated, they will take, as a deposit to cover the additional expense of this examination, such sum as they may think necessary, having regard to the nature of the goods and to the number of packages which, according to the informant's knowledge, will have been stated in the notice.

24. The case of false description as to place of origin affecting the interests of "British Possessions" or "Foreign States" is here again one for special mention. As above stated it is one which, as a rule, officers cannot be expected to detect without information; but, for an officer examining upon information, the following rule may be laid down, viz.:—If it is ascertained that the name of place or country complained of is not applied to the goods at all, or, if applied, is accompanied by a definite indication or addition, as contemplated by the Act, of make or production elsewhere, the officer may be satisfied that there is no ground existing to justify the notice received; but if the name complained of is found to be applied to the goods, and is the name of a country, or of a place in a country not the country of the port of shipment, the officer may, in the absence of proof of make or produce at the place or in the country named on them, be satisfied that the alleged infringement clearly exists.

25. In the case of a notice alleging the application of a forged trade mark where the mark is one protected in a British possession or foreign state, such a notice will only be good, and need only be accepted if it relates to possessions or states included in the definition of trade marks.

26. As to transshipment and transit goods, where information and "notice" relate to these goods, collectors will deal with them exactly as if they were goods for home use. Apart from information collectors will not, as regards the ordinary examination of such goods for revenue purposes, examine more packages than at present; but the Commissioner of Trade and Customs, in addition to the existing rules as to transshipment and transit goods, directs that, as to all such goods, no marks of any kind or description shall be allowed to be applied to them in this colony, and collectors will see that this is strictly carried out in their port.

27. As to goods examined upon information generally, collectors will be guided by the following rules:—If, upon examination, the officer is satisfied that there is no ground existing to justify the notice received, he will pass the goods; if he is satisfied that the alleged infringement clearly exists, he will detain the goods as in a case of detention upon ordinary examination; but in cases where the officer is not so satisfied, and in cases where collectors may have considered that official examination cannot test the point, they will order the detention of the goods at the risk of the informant and thus arrive at the second stage of the procedure upon information, viz., the taking of security.

28. Collectors will observe that (except in cases where the informant prefers to give a bond, and where time allows such a step to be taken before the goods arrive and are examined), there are two things to be done in taking security—first, to take an ad valorem money deposit to cover the possibility of the bond not being completed, and secondly, to see that the bond is completed, after which they will return the deposit. The amount of both the deposit and the bond will depend on the value of the goods.

29. The form of notice given in the schedule to the regulations requires a statement of the names of persons proposed as sureties. As to the sufficiency of these, collectors will make inquiries in the usual way, and have the bond completed as in other transactions.

30. The security having once been taken, the goods will, without further special examination, remain in charge, and the regulations contain definite provisions as to when, in the various contingencies that may arise, the security may be delivered up.

31. With reference to paragraph 5 (b) and to paragraph 9 above, the Commissioner of Trade and Customs is of opinion that inscriptions applied to goods by means of labels or tickets, or applied to boxes, cartons, parcels, or other ultimate packages containing goods manifestly only for the purpose of distinguishing the goods for the convenience of dealers and of shopkeepers, and not specially intended to attract the eye of the consumer, should not be practically treated as trade descriptions. Whenever the inscription consists simply of the bare name of the goods or indication of number, quantity, size, and the like, for instance—

On Hosiery—"Hose, white cotton, size 10,"

On Textile Fabrics—"No., qual., colour, desc., yards," or

"No., size, quality, shade,"

On Goloshes—"1 doz. pairs men's, 2nd quality, No. 7," goods bearing labels, tickets, &c., of this character only are not to be detained whatever may be the language in which the inscriptions are printed or written. It is to be understood that this order does not apply to wording on the goods themselves, nor to any wording which includes the name of a place or country, the name of any trader, manufacturer, or dealer, or a trade mark. The last clause of the next paragraph is not to be read as applying to the names of ports of unshipment used for the mere purpose of indicating where the goods are to be unladen, as required frequently in bills of lading, whatever may be the description of packets used. The officers are to exercise their discretion in distinguishing whether those names are used solely for the purpose specified above.

* As to copyright, this instruction in no way affects the practice, under section 49, of the Customs Act 1860 (53 Vict. No. 1061).

32. With reference to paragraph (b), section 15, the Trade Marks Act 1890, a name of a port or place of destination applied to mere packing cases, in which goods are clearly not intended to be sold or exposed for sale, either wholesale or retail, will not render the goods liable to detention; but where a package containing goods is not of this description, the port or place of destination should be accompanied by a definite indication of the country of origin.

33. Swedish iron bearing the words "Lancashire Swedish," or the abbreviation thereof, "Lancash. Swedish," is to be admitted into this colony without question, so far as the provisions of the Trade Marks Act 1890 are concerned. This arrangement is sanctioned upon the understanding that both words shall be inserted, and that under no circumstances will Swedish iron, marked "Lancashire" alone, be admitted into this colony.

34. The name and address of a merchant in this colony on grain sacks will be dealt with as an indication that the grain is of Victorian origin. The Commissioner has directed that, in the case of grain imported in bulk and transferred into sacks on board the importing ship, the marking of the sacks need not be qualified with a statement of the foreign origin of the grain.

35. Packages used for the importation from any place of natural flowers, fresh fruit, vegetables, potatoes, &c., and bearing upon them marks which the officers are satisfied are merely address marks, such as "William Evans, Melbourne," Thomas Jones, Geelong," are to be treated as packing cases to which the provisions of paragraph 32 apply, and are not to be detained under the Act on account of such marks only.

36. As to refined sugar from the continent of Europe, which there is reason to believe has been allowed to be delivered, although marked in the English language without any qualifying words, contrary to the Trade Marks Act 1890, the Commissioner of Trade and Customs directs that any such sugar found described in a manner not conformable to the law be detained, and the circumstances reported to him for his direction.

Directions of the Commissioner of Trade and Customs to enable officers to deal with watch cases and watches, under the Merchandise Marks Act, the latter term, "watches," meaning, as provided by section 8 of the Act, "all that portion of a watch which is not the watch case."

37. Attention has already been called to the position in which watch cases, under this section of the Trade Marks Act 1890, stand in relation to watches; and the consequent importance of the assay mark on watch cases, which mark, by virtue of section 3 (1) of the Act, would be deemed a trade description as to place or country of origin.

The directions to be observed in applying the law will relate to—

- (a) Watch cases with assay marks imported alone.
 (b) Like watch cases imported with the watches, that is to say, watches of foreign manufacture in them.
- (a) Watch cases with assay marks imported alone.—If the cases are wholly unmarked, or are duly marked in accordance with the Queen's Orders in Council, or with a foreign assay mark, and there is not, in addition, any wording on that part of the case proper, or on the dome, indicating make or produce elsewhere than in the actual country of production, the goods may be delivered. If, on the other hand, there is any such wording, the goods must be detained and the matter referred to the Secretary for Trade and Customs.
- (b) Watch cases imported with the watches in them.—If the cases are wholly unmarked, or are marked either in accordance with the Queen's Orders in Council, or with a foreign assay mark, or with an English assay mark as placed on a watch case made in Great Britain, and with an equally conspicuous statement either above or below the assay mark, that the watch is of foreign make. And if there is no wording either as an addition on the case or dome, or upon the watch itself, whether on the dial or the plate, or any part of the works, indicating make or produce elsewhere than in the country of actual production, then the goods may be delivered. If, on the other hand, there is any such wording, the goods must be detained and the matter referred to the Secretary for Trade and Customs.

38. If the cases are marked with an English assay mark as placed on a watch case made in Victoria, and with no statement of foreign make on the cases as required above, they will be detained as a seizure unless there is upon the dial of each watch, and also on the "top plate" (where the watch is of that construction) or on the "bottom plate" (where the watch is of that construction) visibly, between the "bridges," an indelible and definite indication of the place or country in which the watches were made. Such an indication will be considered definite, if it is or contains only the name of a place in or a part of Victoria, as, for instance, "Geneva and Melbourne," or if there is anywhere on the watch an indication by figures, words, or otherwise, that the watch might be the make or produce of some other place than the actual country of production, then, in addition to the name of the place or country of origin, there must be a distinct statement that the watches were there made.

TENDERS will be received by the Board of Land and Works up to Noon of Tuesday, 25th August, 1891, for the occupation for Grazing purposes only of the following unappropriated portions of land, subject to the Regulations approved by the Governor in Council and also the subjoined special conditions.

Every licence granted under section 123 of the Land Act 1890 shall be subject to the conditions set forth in the schedule hereto, and to such special conditions and payment in advance of such fee as the Minister may determine, and shall be issued by an officer of the Department of Lands and Survey duly authorized in that behalf.

Under section 7 of the Vermin Destruction Act 1890, all licensees under the section for which these licences will issue are liable for the destruction of rabbits within the boundaries of their licences.

Conditions :

1. The issue of this licence shall not prevent the land comprised therein, or any part or parts thereof, being sold, leased, licensed, alienated, or dealt with under any of the provisions of the Land Act 1890, except under the 123rd section thereof, under which the licence is issued, or being resumed by order of the Governor or Administrator of the Government of Victoria, with the advice of the Executive Council, for any of the purposes for which land may be reserved under section 10 of the Land Act 1890, or for mining purposes.

2. In case the said land, or any part or parts thereof, shall be sold, leased, licensed, alienated, dealt with, or resumed as aforesaid, the licensee shall not be entitled to any compensation other than the return of such portion of his licence-fee paid by him as the responsible Minister of the Crown for the time being administering Division II. of the Land Act 1890 may think fit. This licence is also subject to the rights of the holders of miners' rights or of mining leases now issued or hereafter to be issued to enter upon the allotment hereby licensed, and to search for gold, and to mine therein, and to erect and occupy mining plant and machinery, without making any compensation for surface or other damage.

3. Subject to these conditions, the licensee shall be entitled to use the land for the purposes for which the licence has been granted, until notice has been given in the Government Gazette that such land, or any part thereof, has been sold, leased, licensed, alienated, dealt with, or resumed as aforesaid; and immediately upon such notice being given, all the interest of the licensee in the licensed land described in such notice shall cease and be determined, and any person entitled to occupy the licensed land, or any part thereof, may lawfully make entry upon and hold the same, without the permission or sanction of the licensee or any one claiming under her, him, or them.

4. No land comprised in roads from time to time surveyed and marked out within the boundaries of the land comprised in this licence shall be deemed within its operation.

5. This licence entitles the holder thereof, during the period for which it is granted, to use the land therein comprised for depasturing purposes only, but does not confer any right to build thereon, or to cultivate, or to fence any portion thereof.

6. If the licensee desire a renewal of this licence, notice to that effect must be given to the responsible Minister aforesaid one month prior to the expiration thereof, but nothing herein contained shall be deemed to confer the right to any renewal.

7. The interest in this licence may not be transferred without the consent of the Minister aforesaid and the payment of a fee of £1.

8. No claim whatever shall be made or entertained by reason of the licence not being renewed or transferred.

9. This licence is to be used under and in accordance with the regulations made or to be made under the provisions of the said Act and for the time being in force.

10. This licence may be forfeited if the licensee commit a breach of or neglect to comply with any of these conditions.

11. The publication of a notice in the Government Gazette, purporting to declare that the Governor or Administrator, with the advice aforesaid, has forfeited this licence, shall be conclusive evidence that the licence is forfeited.
