"Highway" means any State highway under the Highways and Vehicles Act, and any other public highway, and any street or road, and any main road or developmental road, or any portion thereof.

1. These Regulations may be cited as the "Portable Mechanical Devices Regulations," and shall come into force upon the date of their publication in the Government Gazette.

2. No device shall be used for determining under or for the purposes of the Motor Car Act the weight of loads carried on the axles of motor cars or trailers on any highway, unless such device has been submitted to and approved by the Country Roads Board.

3. No such device approved by the Board shall be used unless such device has been tested and sealed by the Engineering Department of the University of Melbourne.

4. Every device shall be tested and sealed by the Engineering Department of the University of Melbourne before being first used, and shall thereafter be re-tested and sealed every six (6) months, provided that if at any time subsequent to such sealing any repairs, alterations, or adjustments to the mechanism of the device are effected, the device shall be submitted for re-testing and re-sealing before being again used.

5. In testing any device submitted to it, the Engineering Department of the University of Melbourne may allow a limit of error not exceeding five (5) per centum in excess or deficiency of the load applied.

6. The Engineering Department of the University of Melbourne shall seal all devices tested and approved by it with a seal approved by the Board, and shall attach such seal in a manner approved by the Board.

7. No device which has been sealed shall be used for other than official purposes.

The pair shall then be appropriately marked to indicate that they have been tested together, and they shall only be used together until required to be re-tested.

10. Full and accurate records of all devices tested or re-tested and sealed shall be kept by the Engineering Department of the University of Melbourne in a book provided for the purpose, giving the number, type, manufacturer's number, date on which tests have been made, and the results of such tests, together with any other particulars that may be required by the Board.

11. In ascertaining the weight carried on an axle, a device shall be placed under each wheel of such axle, and the sum of the two readings as indicated by the devices shall be taken as the weight carried on such axle. The total weight of the vehicle and the load carried thereon shall be the sum of the weights on all the axles of the vehicle as so determined.

12. The production of a certificate, in the form contained in the first or second schedule hereto, that any device or devices has or have been tested and sealed by the Engineering Department of the University of Melbourne shall be sufficient proof of the testing and sealing of the device or devices therein referred to and of the accuracy thereof.
