Electric Light and Power Act 1915 (No. 2645), and State Electricity Commission Acts.

STATE ELECTRICITY COMMISSION OF VICTORIA.

REGULATIONS for securing the adoption of such standards of plant and equipment and of system frequency and pressure for the generation, distribution, and supply of electricity as will admit of the efficient interconnexion of electric supply undertakings and interchange of electricity throughout the same, and generally the safe, economical, and effective supply of electricity throughout Victoria, and for securing the persons and property of the public from injury by fire or otherwise, and for other purposes, that is to say:—

DEFINITIONS.

1. For the purposes of these Regulations, the several expressions set out hereunder shall have the respective meanings hereunder in this section ascribed to them, except insofar as the contrary intention appears, that is to say:—

- "The Commission" means the State Electricity Commission of Victoria.
- "Electricity" means electrical energy.

- "Undertaker" means any corporation, person, or body of persons who supplies electricity for any purposes anywhere in Victoria; but does not include any department of the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia, or the Board of Land and Works, or the Victorian Railways Commissioners, or the Melbourne and Metropolitan Tramways Board, or any corporation, person, or body of persons who supplies electricity only within the limits of any building or premises in which it is generated for lighting purposes.
- "Electric conductor" means any conductor used for conveying electricity for power, lighting, heating, or other purpose.
- "Main" means any electric conductor which may be laid down or erected by the undertakers in or along any street or public place, and through which energy may be supplied or be intended to be supplied, by the undertakers for the purposes of general supply.
- "Distribution system" means the system of mains for general supply to which the service lines are connected.
- "Aerial line" means any electric conductor which is placed above the ground and in the open air.
- "Party poles" means any poles used for the affixing and supporting of the conductors of more than one undertaker.

- "Sub-station" or "transforming station" means any premises in which energy is transformed or converted for the purpose of supply, and which are large enough to admit the entrance of a person after the transforming or converting apparatus is in position, provided that for the purpose of these Regulations any place within such premises which is used solely for some purpose other than such transformation or conversion shall not be deemed to form part of a sub-station, and provided, also, it be effectively separated therefrom.
- "Voltage" or "pressure" means the difference of electric potential between any two conductors through which a supply of energy is given or between any part of either conductor and the earth—

- (a) Where the conditions of supply are such that the pressure at any pair of consumer's terminals does not exceed 250 volts, the supply shall be deemed a low-pressure supply.
- (b) Where the conditions of the supply are such that the pressure exceeds 250 volts but does not exceed 650 volts, the supply shall be deemed a medium-pressure supply.
- (c) Where the conditions of supply are such that the pressure exceeds 650 volts but does not exceed 22,000 volts, the pressure shall be deemed a high-pressure supply.
- (d) Where the conditions of the supply are such that the pressure exceeds 22,000 volts, the supply shall be deemed an extra high-pressure supply.

"Low-pressure," "medium-pressure," "high-pressure," and "extra high-pressure" respectively are used in relation to electric conductors, circuits, and apparatus, according to the condition of the supply delivered through the same or particular portions thereof.

"Outer conductors" means those conductors between which there is a maximum difference of potential, either in a three-wire system of distribution or in a three-phase four-wire system of distribution.

"Three-phase four-wire system" means a system in which approximately equal potential difference exists between the extremities of each of the respective phases and their neutral point of connexion; such potential difference being that between the phases divided by square root of 3 (1.732).

"Existing systems" means systems authorized by Order in Council under the Electric Light and Power Act 1915, or any act thereby repealed and in operation prior to the date of these Regulations.

"Electric inspector" means an officer appointed by the Commission to carry out duties relative to these Regulations, and otherwise under the Electric Light and Power Act 1915, or any Act thereby repealed.

2.—GENERAL.

(i) Pressure of Supply to Consumers, &c.—The pressure of a supply to any consumer shall not exceed the limit of low pressure except for special purposes, for which a medium-pressure supply may be given upon the consumer undertaking to comply with the conditions specified in the Regulations of the Commission for or with respect to prescribing the quality of materials, fittings, and apparatus to be used in connexion with electrical installations, and the methods to be followed in carrying out electrical installations, at the time in force, and upon the undertakers forwarding to the Commission written notice of their intention to give such supply.

(ii) Limitations of High-pressure Supply.—A high-pressure supply shall not be given to consumers without the written consent of the Commission, and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, except to sub-stations on consumers' premises in the sole occupation of undertakers.

(iii) Insulation Test of Electric Lines.—Every low-pressure and medium-pressure main shall be tested for insulation after having been placed in position, and before it is used for the purpose of supply, the testing pressure being at least the maximum at which it is proposed to be used, and in any case not less than 500 volts.

(iv) Maintenance of Insulation.—The insulation of every complete circuit used for the supply of energy, including all machinery, apparatus, and devices forming part of, or in connexion with, that circuit, and being the property of, or under the control of, the undertakers, shall be so maintained that the leakage current shall not, under any conditions, exceed one-thousandth part of the maximum supply current; and suitable means shall be provided for the indication and localization of leakage. Every leakage shall be remedied without delay. The foregoing provisions, however, shall not apply where any part of any electric circuit is connected with earth as specified in paragraph (x) of this Regulation (2), or where approval of the Commission for connexion with earth has been given.

(v) Testing of Insulation of all Parts of any High-pressure Circuit.—A high-pressure circuit shall not be brought into use unless the insulation of every part thereof has withstood the continuous application during half-an-hour of pressure exceeding the maximum pressure to which it is intended to be subjected in use; that is to say, in the case of every electric line, a pressure twice the said maximum pressure, and in the case of every machine, device, or apparatus a pressure of 50 per cent. greater than the said maximum pressure. The undertakers shall duly record the results of each test.

(vi) Quick-acting Cut-off for High-pressure Lines, &c.—Every high-pressure electric line, conductor, or other apparatus shall be protected by a suitable automatic quick-acting cut-off. Provided that it shall not be incumbent on the undertakers to provide such cut-off for the outer conductor of a concentric main, or neutral conductor of a three-phase system, which is, with the approval of the Commission, efficiently connected with earth.

(vii) Protection from Lightning.—Where any portion of an electric line, or any support for an electric line, is exposed in such a position as to be liable to injury from lightning, it shall be efficiently protected against such liability.

(viii) Accidents to be Reported.—Where any accident of direct or indirect electric origin, and of such kind as to have caused, or to be likely to have caused, loss of life or personal injury, has occurred at any part of any electric line or work of any undertakers, the undertakers shall give immediate notice thereof to the Commission.

(ix) Earth Return.—No earth return shall be allowed on any electric light or power circuit.

(x) Connexion of Circuits with Earth.—Where the pressure of a supply between the intermediate conductor and the outer conductors of a system exceeds 125 volts, the intermediate conductor shall be connected with earth at one point only on each distinct circuit, at the generating station, sub-station, or transformer, as the case may be, and the insulation of the system shall be maintained at all other parts. If and when required by the Commission, suitable means shall be provided to ascertain that the leakage current does not exceed one-thousandth part of the maximum supply current. If required by the Commission, a continuous record of the current in any earth connexion shall be kept by the undertakers. This regulation shall not prohibit the temporary earthing of an outer conductor, with proper precautions, for purposes of testing. The negative side of a two-wire system of direct current supply may be connected with earth at the generating station, under similar conditions as to limitations of leakage current, and tests to ascertain the amount of such leakage of current shall be made daily, and shall be duly recorded by the undertakers.

3.—STANDARDIZATION OF SYSTEMS OF SUPPLY AND EXCEPTIONS THEREOF.

(i) All supply undertakings coming into existence after the date of these Regulations shall, unless otherwise approved by the Commission, be designed to furnish to the consumer a supply of alternating current by a system herein referred to as the standard system. The Commission will approve of the installation of a direct-current system only when the circumstances, in the opinion of the Commission, are sufficient to justify a departure from the standard system.

(ii) Existing systems employing direct current or single-phase alternating current will be subject to the general terms of these Regulations so far as applicable. Pursuant to section 18 of the State Electricity Commission Act 1920, any extensions of plant or building of main transmission lines must be approved of by the Commission before being entered upon.

(iii) The standard of frequency of all systems of alternating current supply shall be 50 complete periods per second, with an allowable variation during operation of 1½ per cent. therefrom.

(iv) Standard systems of transmission and distribution shall be in accordance with one of the following:—

(a) Low and medium pressure, for distribution and supply to consumers:—Three-phase four-wire, so arranged and operated as to deliver a pressure at consumers' terminals of 400 volts between phases, and 230 volts between each phase and the neutral conductor.

(b) High pressure:—Three-phase, 2,200, 6,600, 11,000, or 22,000 volts at the point of origin, with transmission by means of conductors to be laid or erected in accordance with the methods and requirements respecting installation of transformers, sub-stations, switch gear, and protective gear hereinafter specified, the whole being so arranged that the pressure at the point of delivery will not be less than 2,000, 6,000, 10,000, or 20,000 volts respectively in any case.

(c) Extra-high pressure:—Any pressure in excess of 22,000 volts. Any system to be operated at extra-high pressure will be the subject of such further stipulations as may be made by the Governor in Council or by the Commission; generally or in application to particular cases.

4.—AERIAL LINES.

Overhead Line Construction—Specification.

(i) This specification shall apply to all aerial conductors and supports erected in public thoroughfares by undertakers; but shall not apply to transmission mains where the voltage exceeds 22,000 volts between conductors, nor to service lines.

(ii) Supports.—Every support for conductors, whether it be a wood, steel, or concrete pole, a fabricated structure, or an attachment to a building, shall be so proportioned as at all times to withstand, with the factors of safety specified in paragraph (iv), the maximum loads to which it may be subjected.

In calculating loads on supports, full allowance must be made for change in direction of the line, terminations of the conductors, and variations of temperature and wind pressure as provided in paragraph (iv). If the support in itself be not of sufficient strength, it shall be so stayed or guyed that it will withstand, with the aforementioned factors of safety, the maximum load to which it may be subjected.

In urban areas, on all lines where the voltage between any conductor and earth exceeds 650 volts, anchor poles or structures shall be provided at intervals approximating as nearly as possible to 880 yards or ten spans (whichever is the greater, and such poles or structures shall be capable of withstanding, under the conditions of temperature and wind pressure and with the factors of safety as provided in paragraph (iv), the unbalanced load which would result from the breaking, in one of either of the two spans supported by the pole or structure, of three conductors, where three or more are erected, or of each conductor where less than three are erected. Those conductors shall be assumed to have been broken which would give maximum unbalanced load on the anchor structure.

All steel structures carrying "live" conductors shall be "earthed."

Where guy wires attached to wooden poles carrying pressures above 650 volts are accessible to the public, insulators shall be inserted in the same at a vertical height of not less than 8 feet from ground level. The test pressure of the strain insulator used shall be at least one-half of that of the line insulator.

(iii) Conductors.—Conductors of copper or of aluminium shall be hard-drawn and stranded, and shall be so proportioned that they shall withstand, with the factors of safety specified in paragraph (iv), the maximum stresses to which they may be subjected, due allowance being made for temperature, wind, &c. The current density in the conductors must not be such that the heating resulting therefrom will produce abnormal sags or softening of the metal forming the conductors.

(a) Copper Conductors.—(Except as provided in clause 5 hereof in the case of service lines.) The minimum sizes of copper conductors and maximum spans for various voltages shall be—

Voltage.	Spans up to 150 ft.	Spans 150 ft. to 250 ft.
For voltages up to 650 volts to earth	0.0100 sq. in. (7/64 in.)	0.0225 sq. in. (7/16 in.)
For voltages above 650 volts to earth	0.0225 sq. in. (7/16 in.)	0.0225 sq. in. (7/16 in.)

(In urban districts the actual spacing of poles will be influenced by the presence of other structures, but in no case shall exceed 200 feet.)

(b) Aluminium Conductors.—Unless reinforced, no aluminium conductors of less than 0.059 sq. inch section, made up of three conductors stranded, shall be used. Where pin insulators and aluminium steel reinforced cables are used on all spans exceeding 250 feet, it is recommended that, whenever practicable, the cable be fastened to the insulators by means of flexible attachments. In urban areas, unreinforced aluminium cables shall not be used for spans exceeding 132 feet.

(iv) Factors of Safety.—In calculating the stresses to which supports and conductors may be subjected, allowance shall be made for the following conditions:—

Minimum ambient temperature—20 deg. F.

Wind pressure—

(Projected area—diameter x length.)

(b) For flat surfaces, 22.5 lb. per sq. foot.

When calculating the wind pressure on towers and lattice structures, the full area of both windward and leeward sides shall be taken.

In calculating the strength of undressed wood poles, the sapwood shall not be included.

The factors of safety of the several elements of the lines shall not at any time be less than—

Steel poles or towers—1.5 based on elastic limit.

(v) Inspection.—Regular inspection shall be made of all structures and line work to ensure that no deterioration has occurred which might render them unfit to withstand the loading to which they may be subjected.

(vi) Height from Ground.—The minimum height of any conductor above the ground at any ambient temperature below 120 deg. F. shall be not less than the figures given below:—

Up to 650 volts to earth	18 feet.
Above 650 volts to earth	22 feet.

(vii) Spacing of Conductors.—The minimum spacing of conductors, either vertical, lateral, or angular, shall not be less than that given in the following table:—

Voltages	Minimum spacing for spans.
	Not exceeding 150 feet.	Exceeding 150 feet but not exceeding 250 feet.
Up to and including 650 volts.	1'3"	1'6"
From 650 up to and including 11,000 volts	2'6"	2'6"
From 11,000 up to and including 22,000 volts	2'6"	3'0"

NOTE.—For unreinforced aluminium cable, spacings shall be increased 50 per cent. beyond those of the preceding table.

Where conductors, the potential difference of which to ground does not exceed 650 volts, are carried on the same pole as those of a higher voltage, the latter shall be placed above the former and a vertical distance of at least 4 feet shall be preserved between the respective horizontal planes.

Where road space adjacent to the line of the footpath is already occupied by tramway or other construction, the undertaker shall preserve a distance vertically of at least 4 feet therefrom in the case of any high-pressure conductors; and of at least 1 ft. 6 in. in the case of low or medium pressure conductors.

(viii) Insulators.—Strain or shackle insulators shall be used in all cases for the terminating or anchoring of conductors, and at angles where the load is too great for pins.

(ix) Ironwork.—All steel cables and iron fittings, such as insulator pins, shackle bolts and straps, cable clamps, clevises, bolts, and the like, shall be galvanized, or otherwise protected against corrosion.

All bolts, where they pass through the pole or crossarm, shall be coated with a bituminous compound.

(x) Stability of Poles.—In average ground, wooden poles shall be set to the depths given in the following table:—

Overall Length of Pole.	Depth of Pole in the earth.
30 feet ...	5 ft. 0 in.
35 feet ...	6 ft. 0 in.
40 feet ...	6 ft. 6 in.
60 feet ...	7 ft. 6 in.

Should the bearing capacity of the soil be poor, the stability of the line shall be ensured by using longer poles and sinking to sufficient depth, setting them in concrete, or by adopting the use of bog shoes or other suitable method of construction.

For steel and concrete poles, the foundations shall be sufficient to permit of the full strength of the pole being used.

(xi) Materials Used.—All material used shall, at the time of erection, conform to the then extant Australian standard specifications for such material.

NOTE.—Nothing in the foregoing specification shall necessarily apply to railway or tramway crossings.

(xii) Angle of Crossing Thoroughfares.—Where an aerial line crosses a street, the angle between the line and the direction of the street at the place of crossing shall not be less than 60 degrees, and the span shall be as short as possible.

(xiii) Discharge of Pressure, in case of Fire.—Every aerial line shall be provided with means whereby the pressure may be discharged from any portion of the line erected over or alongside any building or buildings without loss of time in case of fire or other emergency.

(xiv) Maintenance.—Every aerial line, including its supports and all the structural parts and the electrical appliances and devices belonging to or connected with the line, shall be duly and efficiently supervised and maintained as regards both electrical and mechanical conditions.

(xv) Aerial Lines for Low and Medium Pressures.—Sectional protection in reticulation mains.—For the purpose of more closely localizing interruptions due to short circuits, reticulation mains shall, as far as practicable, be subdivided and connected through section fuses.

Aerial lines for low and medium pressures, if not less than 5 feet horizontally from the building line of any street and 7 feet vertically above any verandah, platform used for hoisting, or other structure projecting beyond the building line, may be bare.

(xvi) Aerial Lines for Pressures in Excess of Medium Pressures.—Erection of aerial lines for pressures in excess of medium pressures shall be subject to special application to and consent by the Commission. Applications in respect thereto must be made on the prescribed forms provided by the Commission. In streets in which the width of the footpath is less than 7 feet, such lines may be only run on the outer side of the poles, and in any case a clearance of 7 feet must be maintained in any direction from any hoist or structure.

(xvii) Disused Aerial Lines.—No aerial line or support or attachment thereto shall remain erected after it has ceased to be in use unless it be efficiently supervised and maintained.

(xviii) Party Poles.—An undertaker affixing at any time conductors to any line of poles to which conductors of that undertaker have not theretofore been affixed shall—

(a) affix all such conductors to one and the same side of the poles;

(b) move to the opposite side of the poles and to a distance of not less than 2 ft. 6 in. from any such conductor as aforesaid every conductor which is then affixed to such poles and belongs to any other undertaker or electric supply authority.

Provided that this regulation shall not require an undertaker to affix his conductors on only one side of a line of poles that is used and intended to be used only by such undertaker.

(i) In this paragraph (xviii) the expression "a line of poles" includes any two or more successive poles which are erected along the same side of a street or road or along the middle of a street or road.

(ii) The restrictions of this paragraph (xviii) shall not apply to the erecting or affixing or to the relative positions of cables or wires of different potentials which are erected and affixed so as to comply with the requirements of paragraph (vii) of this regulation 4.

5. SERVICE LINES.

(a) Service lines from aerial lines shall be led as directly as possible to insulators attached to some portion of the consumer's premises which is not accessible to any person without the use of a ladder or other special appliance. They shall be of stranded copper, and they shall be attached to the service insulators in accordance with methods further particularized in appendix to these Regulations. All conductors may be bare, except that unearthed conductors shall be protected for a distance of at least 7 feet in any direction from the building by the insulating covering specified in sub-clause (h) hereunder, or any other covering specially approved in lieu thereof by the Commission.

(b) Any service line unavoidably crossing above any pitched roof must have a clearance of at least 2 feet therefrom or, in the case of a roof used for traffic or resort, a clearance of at least 7 feet.

(c) Service lines of a length between supports not exceeding 75 feet may be of a minimum size 7/.036 (7/20 S.W.G.).

(d) For a length exceeding 75 feet the minimum size shall be 7/.044 (7/18 S.W.G.).

(e) For any length exceeding 25 feet and up to size 7/.064 (7/16 S.W.G.), hard-drawn cable shall be used.

(f) Where crossing a roadway, minimum height at crown of road shall be 18 feet.

(g) If the points of attachment on the opposite sides of the road differ in level, the minimum height at consumer's building line shall be 12 feet.

(h) The insulation specified under sub-clause (a) hereof shall be triple-braided, and shall comply with the following:—

Size.	Thickness of each braid.	Size of Cotton.
7/.036"	20 mils	2/22
Above 7/.036" up to and including 7/.064"	20 mils	2/14
Above 7/.064" up to and including 19/.064"	25 mils	2/14
Above 19/.064" up to and including 61/.103"	30 mils	2/12

Two-fold cotton shall be used in each case, the number of ends varying according to the size of the cable.

Each braid shall be served with a dense moisture-resisting and preservative compound which will not crack or exude under extremes of temperature, and the whole shall have an external finish of special weather-resisting compound with a smooth surface. The outer finishing compound shall be at least 5 mils in thickness, so that the total thickness of the braids plus the compound = $20 \times 3 + 5 = 65$ mils, increasing the diameter of the bare conductor by 130 mils in the case of sizes between 7/.036" and 7/.064" inclusive.

6.—ELECTRIC LINES OTHER THAN AERIAL LINES.

(a) Construction of Receptacles for Electric Lines.—All conduits, pipes, casings, and electrical boxes used as receptacles for electric lines shall be constructed of durable material, and, where laid under carriageways, shall be of ample strength to prevent any damage from heavy traffic, and reasonable precautions shall be taken by the undertakers to prevent the accumulation of gas in such receptacles.

(b) Crossing Pipes, &c.—Where any electric line crosses or is in proximity to any metallic substance, special precautions shall be taken by the undertakers against the possibility of any electrical discharge to the metallic substance from the line or from any metal, conduit, pipe, or casing enclosing the line.

(c) Electric Continuity of Metal, Conduits, Pipes, and Casings.—All metal, conduits, pipes, or casings containing any electric lines shall be efficiently connected with earth, and shall be so jointed and connected across all street boxes and other openings as to make good electrical connexion throughout their whole length.

(d) Precautions against Charging of Short Lengths of Pipe, &c.—Where isolated lengths of metal, conduit, pipe, or casing are used for the protection of any line at road crossings or similar positions, special precautions shall be taken to prevent any electrical charging thereof.

(c) High-pressure Lines Laid Above Ground.—Every portion of any high-pressure or extra high-pressure electric line, not being an aerial line, placed above the surface of the ground, or in any subway not in the sole occupation of the undertakers, shall be completely enclosed either in a tube of highly insulating material embedded in brickwork, masonry, or cement concrete, or in strong metal casing efficiently connected with earth.

(f) High-pressure Lines Laid in Proximity to other Electric Lines or to the Surface of the Ground.—Where any high-pressure or extra high-pressure electric line is laid beneath the surface of the ground, efficient means shall be taken to prevent the surface of the ground, or any neighbouring electric line or conductor, from becoming charged by leakage from the high-pressure electric line.

7.—TRANSFORMING STATIONS OR SUB-STATIONS.

(a) Transforming Stations.—Transforming stations belonging to undertakers shall be established in suitable places which are in the sole occupation and charge of the undertakers. Measures shall be taken to obviate danger of shock or of fire arising out of any failure of insulation between the high-pressure and the low-pressure conductors, either within or without the transforming apparatus. Transforming stations shall only be placed below the surface of the ground subject to the consent of the Commission having first been given, and due provision shall be made for ventilation and for drainage.

(b) Isolating links shall be inserted between oil switches or oil circuit breakers and any live conductors.

(c) Enclosed Sub-stations.—The whole of the protective and controlling apparatus must be so designed and arranged as to minimize the liability of arcing, and to provide for safe operation of the appliances installed. H.T. conductors, where brought in overhead, must be spaced at least 1 ft. 6 in. from the low or medium pressure reticulation mains, and they must be highly insulated. Within the sub-station, apparatus in connexion with the secondary supply shall be well spaced from the H.T. apparatus.

In all sub-stations, cases of transformers, switch-covers, metal supports, and framework must be effectively earthed. Such earthing provision must be adequate to prevent any material potential difference being set up by reason of flow of leakage current either from the H.T. system or from the secondary system. Provision must be made for enabling the testing of the condition of the earthing system when desired.

8.—STREET BOXES.

In addition to the provisions contained in paragraph (a) of Regulation 6 as to the construction of receptacles for electric lines, the following Regulations shall be observed with respect to the construction of street boxes:—

(a) The covers of all street boxes shall be so secured that they cannot be opened except by means of a special appliance.

(b) The covers of all street boxes containing high-pressure apparatus other than cables shall be connected to strips of metal laid immediately underneath the adjacent roadway, and efficient means shall be taken to prevent the covers, or other exposed parts of these boxes, or any adjacent material forming the surface of the street, from becoming electrically charged whether by reason of leakage defect or otherwise.

(c) Street boxes may not be used as transformer receptacles save in exceptional circumstances, and subject to the consent of the Commission having first been given, and to reasonable means being taken to prevent, as far as possible, any influx of water, either from the adjacent soil or by means of pipes. Ample provision shall be made, by ventilation or otherwise, for the immediate escape of any gas which may have obtained access to box, and for the prevention of danger from sparking.

(d) All the street boxes shall be regularly inspected for the presence of gas, and, if any influx or accumulation be discovered, the undertakers shall give immediate notice to the municipal council or company whose gas mains are laid in the neighbourhood of the street box.

(e) Where mains at different pressures pass through the same street box, they shall be readily distinguishable from one another.

9.—POLE OR PLATFORM TRANSFORMERS.

(a) Transformers on Platform.—The minimum height from ground of the platform carrying transforming apparatus must be 12 feet unless the whole of the apparatus is effectively fenced in or enclosed. The H.T. conductors must be so arranged that they are not in undue proximity to the low-tension conductors, and they must be highly insulated where within reach from the platform or support. Where required by the Commission, they shall be further enclosed or sheathed with metal, which must be earthed.

(b) Transformers on Poles.—Transformers on poles must be at a height of at least 2 feet above the secondary mains, and they must be provided with link-fuses or other suitable means for disconnecting the H.T. supply.

(c) The minimum provision for protecting and controlling a sub-station or transforming station connected to an aerial line must comprise means for disconnecting each H.T. conductor, either by an automatic switch of adequate capacity or by suitable link-fuse switches, together with some form of lightning arrester, where local conditions render such necessary, connected between transformer and disconnecting switch or link-fuse switch.

10.—CONSUMER'S PREMISES.

(a) Introduction of Supply System into Consumer's Premises.—Where, in any installation, all the conductors of a three-wire direct current or single-phase system, or of a four-wire three-phase system, in which systems the pressure between any outer conductor and the neutral conductor does not exceed 250 volts, are brought into a consumer's premises, then, except as provided in clause 3, sub-clause (i), in respect of a conditional supply at medium pressure, the system of wiring throughout the premises shall be such that at no point of the same shall more than 250 volts be available to the consumer for any consuming device used by him.

(b) Responsibility of Undertakers for their Lines, &c., upon Consumer's Premises.—The undertakers shall maintain in a safe condition and fit in all respects for supplying electricity all electric lines, fittings, and apparatus belonging to them, or under their control, which may be upon a consumer's premises.

(c) Fire Risks.—In delivering electrical energy to a consumer's terminals, the undertakers shall exercise all due precautions so as to avoid risk of causing fire on the premises.

(d) Service Fuses.—A suitable safety fuse or other service disconnector, enclosed in a locked or sealed receptacle of fire-proof construction, shall be inserted in each "outer" service line upon a consumer's premises as near as possible to the point of entry and preferably on the outside of the premises.

(e) Treatment of Electric Lines and Apparatus on a Consumer's Premises.—All electric lines and apparatus being the property of, or under the control of, the undertaker, and placed on a consumer's premises, shall be highly insulated and thoroughly protected against injury to the insulation or access of moisture, and any metal forming part of the electric circuit shall not, unless efficiently connected with earth at the generating station, sub-station, or transformer, as the case may be, be exposed so that it can be touched. All electric lines shall be so fixed and protected as to prevent the possibility of electrical discharge to any adjacent metallic substance. Conductors passing through iron roofs and verandahs must be effectually insulated therefrom by means of an approved fixed bushing which will reasonably prevent any possibility of the roof being made alive.

(f) Sub-stations on Consumer's Premises.—Where transformers, in which the voltage exceeds the limit of medium pressure, are installed on the consumer's premises, the following conditions shall apply:—

(i) Transformers and equipment shall be located as near as possible to the point at which the H.T. conductors enter the building, and shall, in the case of air-cooled transformers, be placed in an enclosure of incombustible material. An air space of at least 6 inches shall be provided on every side of the transformers. The enclosures shall be securely locked, and access allowed only to authorized persons. They shall be thoroughly ventilated, preferably through chimneys, flues, or vents, to the outside air.

(ii) Transformer cases shall be permanently and effectively grounded.

(iii) Oil-immersed transformers shall be enclosed in fire-proof chambers constructed as follows:—

The walls of the chambers, if of concrete, shall not be less than 6 inches in thickness if not reinforced, or 4 inches if reinforced, or, if of brick, not less than 9 inches.

The chambers shall be provided with means of ventilation which will prevent the development of ambient temperatures in excess of those at which the transformers installed therein may be safely operated.

All ventilating openings, except those in the external walls or connected to chimneys or flues, shall be provided with automatic or manually-controlled dampers to prevent the emission of smoke and fire.

Such damper controls shall be arranged to be operated from a point outside of the chamber.

Unless opening from the outside of the building only, the doorway to the chamber shall be fitted with approved tight-fitting fire-doors, and means shall be provided to prevent effectively the escape of oil from the chamber.

(iv) Location of Oil Switches.—Where oil switches are used in connexion with the transformers, and are not contained within the same enclosure, they shall be located in a separate fire-proof chamber as above specified in the case of transformers.

(g) Connection to a Consumer's Premises not to be Made where a Leakage would Result.—The undertakers shall not connect the wire and fittings upon a consumer's premises with their mains unless they are reasonably satisfied that the connexion would not cause a leakage from those wires and fittings exceeding one ten-thousandth part of the maximum supply of current to the premises; and where the undertakers decline to make such connexion they shall serve on the consumers a notice stating their reasons for so declining.

(h) Discontinuance of Supply on Discovery of Leakage or other Defect on a Consumer's Premises.—If, after having made all proper examination, by testing or otherwise, the undertakers are reasonably satisfied that a leakage or other defect exists at some part of a consumer's wires or fittings of such extent or nature as to be a source of danger, any officer of the undertakers, duly authorized by them in writing, or, if the undertakers so require, an electric inspector, may, for the purpose of discovering whether the leakage or other defect exists at any part of the circuit within or upon the consumer's premises, by notice in writing, require the consumer, at some reasonable time after the service of notice, to permit him to inspect and test the wires and fittings belonging to the consumer and forming part of the circuit. In any case where the undertakers require the services of an electric inspector under this Regulation, they shall pay him the prescribed fee.

If, on any such testing or examination, the officer or the electric inspector discovers a material defect, or a leakage from the consumer's wires exceeding one ten-thousandth part of the maximum supply current to the premises, or if the consumer does not give all due facilities for inspection and testing, the undertakers shall forthwith discontinue the supply of energy to the premises in question, giving immediate notice of the discontinuance to the consumer, and shall not recommence the supply until they are reasonably satisfied that the leakage or other defect has been removed. This Regulation shall not limit any power contained in the Order or otherwise enabling the undertakers to discontinue the supply.

(i) Appeal to Electric Inspector.—If any consumer be dissatisfied with the action of the undertakers in refusing to give, or in discontinuing, or not recommencing the supply of energy to his premises, the wire and fittings of that consumer may, on his application, and on payment of the prescribed fee, be tested for the leakage or other defect by an electric inspector. This Regulation shall be endorsed upon every notice given under the provision of either of the two last preceding Regulations.

11.—ARC LIGHTING.

Arc Lamps to be Guarded.—All arc lamps shall be so guarded as to prevent pieces of ignited carbon or broken glass falling from them, and shall not be used in situations where there is any danger of the presence of explosive dust or gas.

12.—PUBLIC ARC LIGHTING.

Height from Ground.—Arc lamps used in any street for public lighting, except when suspended over the roadway, shall be so fixed as not to be in any part at a less height than 10 feet from the ground. If suspended over the roadway of any street, arc lamps shall be so fixed as not to be in any part at a less height than 18 feet from the ground.

13.—PRIVATE ARC LIGHTING.

Cut-off Switch.—Arc lamps used in any street for private lighting shall be fixed so as not to be in any part at a less height than 8 feet from the ground, and shall be so screened as to prevent risk of contact with persons. A cut-off switch shall be provided for every such arc lamp, or series of arc lamps, not exceeding 250 volts pressure, and such switch shall be of such pattern and construction as will provide—

- (a) that the arc lamps, or series of arc lamps, by its means be entirely disconnected from the supply circuit;
- (b) that the switch itself can be safely operated in the dark without special precautions; and
- (c) that there shall be no danger of any injurious electrical arcing, sparking, or heating being caused by the operation of the switch.

14.—PENALTIES FOR DEFAULT.

If the undertakers make default in complying with any of the preceding Regulations, they shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding Ten pounds for every such default, and to a daily penalty not exceeding Ten pounds.

These Regulations are made subject to the power of the Governor in Council to make such further or other Regulations as he may think expedient; and nothing in these Regulations shall be construed to authorize the undertakers to lay any electric line or work their undertakings otherwise than in accordance with the Electric Light and Power Act 1915, or any amendment thereof, and the Order granted to them.

Pencils to be provided.—The returning officer or his deputy shall provide pencils in the polling booth for the use of the voters, and also a locked box, to be called the ballot-box, with a cleft or opening therein capable of receiving the ballot-papers, and such box shall be opened and exhibited to the scrutineers before the polling begins; and the box shall then be locked, and shall stand on a table opposite the returning officer or deputy returning officer, who shall keep the key of such box.

18. Mode of voting.—The returning officer shall deliver to every voter who requires the same a ballot-paper, or if such voter appears by the roll to be entitled to give more votes than one, then so many ballot-papers as may be equal to the number of votes which such voter so appears to be entitled to give, such ballot-papers being in the form of the Third Schedule hereto, and initialed by the returning officer; and every such voter shall, without leaving the booth, strike out from or any of such papers the name of every candidate for whom he does not intend to vote. And in case any voter is unable to read or write, the returning officer or his deputy, if so required, shall, in view of such one of the scrutineers as the voter may desire, strike out the name or names of such candidate or candidates as such voter may designate; and after such name or names have been so struck out, the ballot-paper or ballot-papers (as the case may be) shall forthwith be deposited in the said box. Provided that all the ballot-papers to which any person may be entitled at the polling booth shall be demanded and received by him at one and the same time; and no person having once demanded and received any such ballot-paper or papers, and voted by the same, shall at the same election receive any further ballot-papers, or exercise any further right of voting.

19. Ballot-papers to be numbered.—Before delivering any ballot-paper to the voter, the returning officer or his deputy shall write upon the back of each such ballot-paper, as near as practicable to the lower edge thereof, the number set opposite to the voter's name in the roll, and shall thereupon, upon a copy of each roll, check off such voter's name as having voted, and mark against such name the number of ballot-papers delivered to such voter.

20. Plumping Prohibited.—Informal Ballot-papers.—At every such election every voter shall strike out from the ballot-paper the names of the candidates for whom he does not desire to vote and if he sufers to remain on the ballot-paper a greater or less number of names not struck out than the number of Commissioners to be elected the vote given on and by the ballot-paper shall be void and of no effect.

21. What Question may be asked.—At any election of Commissioners the returning officer may, if he see fit, or if required to do so by any candidate or scrutineer, put to any person tendering his vote the question following:—

"Are you the person whose name appears as (A.B.) in the roll now in force for this Trust, being enrolled therein in respect of property described to be situated in (here specify the street or other place described in the roll)?"

And no other question shall be put to any person tendering his vote; and no person who shall refuse to answer such question, or who shall not answer the same absolutely in the affirmative, shall receive a ballot-paper or be permitted to vote.

22. False Answer, Polling Twice, and Personation.—Every person who shall wilfully make a false answer to the question aforesaid, or who shall poll more than once, or offer to poll more than once at the same election, or who shall depart or attempt to depart from any polling booth after having received a ballot-paper, without having deposited the same in the ballot-box, as hereinbefore provided, or who shall personate any other person for the purpose of polling at such election, shall be guilty of a breach of these regulations; but nothing contained in this clause shall apply to any person only by reason of his exercising the right of voting as often as it appears by the roll he is entitled so to do.

23. Result of Polling, how ascertained.—Immediately on the close of the poll, the returning officer shall, in the presence of and subject to the inspection of so many of the scrutineers of the candidates as please to be present, proceed to ascertain the number of votes for each candidate; and such returning officer shall abstain from inspecting the number written as aforesaid on any ballot-paper, and take care that the same is not seen by any person before being sealed up as herein provided; and the returning officer shall seal up the ballot-papers deposited in the booth, and as soon as conveniently may be on or after the day of the poll, publicly declare the candidates, not exceeding the number of vacancies to be filled up, who have received the greatest number of votes to have been duly elected Commissioners of the Trust, and if two or more candidates have received an equal number of votes, the returning officer shall determine by lot the candidate to hold office.

24. Ballot-papers, how disposed of.—The returning officer shall forthwith after the declaration of the poll indorse with a description of the contents thereof, and sign the sealed parcel of ballot-papers, and forward the same to the Secretary of the Trust, to be by him safely and secretly kept for six months then next ensuing, and then by him caused to be destroyed in the presence of three Commissioners of the Trust.

25. Minister to determine question arising upon first election.—If any question arise as to the due election of any Commissioner at the first election, the returning officer shall, at the request of any voter or candidate, submit such question, in writing, to the Minister, who shall decide the same; and such decision shall be final and binding.

26. Question arising upon subsequent election to be determined by the Trust.—If any question arise as to the due election of any Commissioner at any subsequent election (whether ordinary or extraordinary), such question shall be determined by the Commissioners of the Trust at the first ordinary meeting held after the election; but no Commissioner in respect of whose election such question shall have arisen shall act as a Commissioner at such meeting, or be entitled to take any part in the proceedings thereof, or in any manner or at any time to act as a Commissioner until such question shall have been so determined: and the majority of Commissioners whose election is not in dispute shall form a quorum.

27. Appeal to Minister from Determination of Trust.—In event of any voter or candidate feeling aggrieved by the determination of the Trust with reference to any such question as last aforesaid, he may appeal therefrom to the Minister within fourteen days from the date upon which the Commissioners shall have determined the question, and the Minister may make such inquiry as to the merits of the question as may appear to him to be necessary, and determine such question in such manner as to him may appear just; and such determination of the Minister shall be final and binding.

23. Failure to Elect deemed to create Extraordinary Vacancies.—If at any election of Commissioners any vacancies less than the whole number which should have been filled up at such election are not filled up, then the vacancies which are not so filled shall severally be deemed extraordinary vacancies and to have occurred on the day appointed for such election. Provided always that the Commissioners eventually elected or appointed to fill such vacancies shall go out of office as if elected at such election.

29. Expenses of Election to be paid by Trust.—The expenses incurred by the returning officer, or under his direction, in connexion with any election shall be defrayed by the Trust.

30. Penalty for Breach of Regulations.—Any person guilty of a breach of any of the provisions of these regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Ten pounds, to be recovered in a summary manner before justices of the peace.

31. Interpretation.—In these regulations words importing the masculine gender shall be deemed and taken to include females, unless there is something in the context repugnant to or inconsistent with this interpretation.
