1. In all cases not provided for by Acts of Parliament of Victoria relating to authorities, or by this By-law, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Parliament of Victoria, which shall be followed so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Trust.

2. Place, Hour, and Adjournment of Meetings.—Meetings of the Trust shall be held periodically at the Council Chambers, Yarra Junction, on the first Monday in each month, to date from the 2nd November, 1925, at the hour of Three o'clock in the afternoon, and the Commissioners thereat may from time to time by adjournment from such meeting, or from any subsequent adjournment thereof, meet together at any convenient place and at such hour to be from time to time appointed by them for that purpose.

3. Meetings, Special.—A special meeting of the Commissioners may at any time be called by the chairman or by the Minister, and shall be called by the chairman if so requested in writing under the hands of two Commissioners. No special meeting shall be held unless four clear days' notice thereof at least be given to each Commissioner. Such notice shall be in writing, and shall specify the time of the meeting and the object thereof, and shall be delivered or sent through the post-office or otherwise to the place of abode or the usual place of business (if any) within the Waterworks District of each Commissioner. No business shall be transacted at any special meeting except what is stated on the notice thereof.

4. Powers Vested in Commissioners.—All powers vested in a Waterworks Trust may be exercised by the Waterworks Trust at any meeting held in pursuance of the Water Acts, at which there is a quorum of the Commissioners present, but not otherwise.

5. Quorum.—A quorum of the Commissioners shall consist of three Commissioners. If there is not a quorum of Commissioners present within half an hour after the time appointed for any meeting, the Commissioners present, or the major part of them, or any one Commissioner if there is only one present may adjourn the meeting until another hour or another day; if no Commissioner is present, the secretary may so adjourn the meeting. Except where a meeting is so adjourned to a subsequent hour of the same day, the secretary shall forthwith deliver or send through the post-office to each Commissioner notice, in writing, of the time to which the meeting has been adjourned.

6. Who Shall Preside at Meetings.—At any meeting of Commissioners, the chairman, if present, shall preside, and if the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the meeting, the Commissioners present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

7. Majority to Decide.—All questions at any meeting of the Commissioners shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the Commissioners present, and in case of an equal division of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

8. Meetings, Notice of.—A notice of every regular meeting of the Commissioners shall be, by the Trust secretary, delivered or sent by post to the usual or last-known place of abode of each Commissioner, three days at least prior to the day upon which such intended meeting is to be held, except in case of emergency, when a special meeting may be called as hereinbefore provided.

9. Meetings, Resolutions at, Not to be Revoked.—No resolution at any meeting of the Commissioners shall be revoked or altered at any subsequent meeting unless notice of intention to propose such revocation or alteration be determined upon by a majority consisting of two-thirds of the Commissioners present at such subsequent meeting; if the number of Commissioners present at such subsequent meeting be not greater than the number present when such resolution was come to, or by a majority if the number of Commissioners present at such subsequent meeting be greater than the number present at such former meeting.

10. Business, &c., Order of Minutes.—At every meeting of Commissioners the first business thereof shall be the reading and putting a question for the confirmation of the minutes of the proceedings of the preceding meeting, and no discussion shall be permitted thereon except as to their accuracy as a record of the proceedings; and the said minutes of the proceedings of the previous meeting shall then be signed by the Chairman of such meeting.

11. After the signing of the minutes as aforesaid, the order of business of any ordinary meeting shall be as follows, or as near thereto as may be practicable; but for the greater convenience of the Commissioners at any particular meeting thereof it may be altered by resolution to that effect:—

- (1) Reading of copies of letters sent by the authority of the Commissioners, if called for.
- (2) Reading letters received and considering and ordering thereon.
- (3) Reception and reading of petitions and memorials.

(4) Receiving deputations from ratepayers.

(5) Presentation of reports.

(6) Payments.

(7) Orders of the day, including subjects continued from proceedings of former meetings, and any business the chairman may think desirable.

(8) Other motions of which previous notice had been given.

(9) Notices of motion, and the order of business at a special meeting shall be the order in which such business stands in the notice thereof.

12. Titles, Official.—The Commissioners, in meeting, shall designate each other by their official titles, namely, that of chairman, or Commissioner, as the case may require.

13. Who to Speak.—If two or more Commissioners rise to speak at the same time, the chairman shall decide which is entitled to priority.

14. Chairman to Rise when Addressing Meeting.—The chairman shall rise in addressing the Commissioners to discuss any question, and shall not leave the chair on such occasions.

15. Commissioners not to Speak Twice on the Same Question.—No Commissioner shall speak a second time on the same question unless entitled to reply, or in explanation, when he has been misrepresented or misunderstood.

16. Points of Order.—The chairman, when called upon to decide on points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice which he deems applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting on the same, and his decision as to the order or explanation in each case shall be final.

17. Commissioners not to Digress, or Impute Improper Motives.—No Commissioner shall digress from the subject-matter of the question under discussion, or comment upon the words used by any other Commissioner in a previous debate; and all imputations or improper motives, and all personal reflections on Commissioners, shall be deemed disorderly, and every Commissioner so doing shall, upon being called to order by the chairman, apologize for such conduct, and withdraw such imputations or reflections, as the case may be.

18. A Commissioner called to order shall sit down unless permitted to explain.

19. Persons not Commissioners to Leave when Requested.—No person not being a Commissioner who, having been admitted to any meeting of the Commissioners, shall be guilty thereof of any improper or disorderly conduct, and every such person shall leave such meeting when requested by the chairman to so do.

20. Call of the Commissioners.—No Commissioner shall absent himself from any meeting held in compliance with an order for a call of the whole Commissioners without reasonable excuse to the satisfaction of the majority thereof.

21. Documents to be Produced.—Any Commissioner may of right demand the production of any of the documents of the Commissioners applying to the question under discussion.

22. Motions, Amendments, and Notice Thereof.—All notices of motion shall be dated and numbered, and given by the intending mover to the Trust Secretary at the close of the meeting of the Commissioners, or if not given at a meeting, then four clear days prior to the day upon which the next meeting of the Commissioners is to take place, and the secretary shall enter the same in the notice of motion book in the order in which they may be received.

23. No Motion Without Notice.—No member shall make any motion initiating a subject for discussion, but in pursuance of notice given as prescribed in the last preceding clause.

24. Motions on Petitions, &c.—No motion, except for the receiving the same shall, unless under most urgent circumstances, be made on any petition, memorial, or other like applications, until the next ordinary meeting of the Commissioners after that at which it has been presented.

25. Motions to be Moved in Order.—Except by leave of the Commissioners, motions shall be moved in the order in which they have been received and recorded by the Trust secretary in the notice of motion book, and if not so moved or postponed, shall be struck out.

26. Motions not to be Proceeded with in the Absence of the Mover.—No motion entered in the notice of motion book shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Commissioner who gave notice of the same, unless by some other Commissioner producing written authority from him to that effect.

27. No motion for an address or petition shall be entertained unless the mover shall, at some previous meeting, have submitted a draft of same.

28. Mover of Motion or Amendment not to be Interrupted.—Any Commissioner desirous of making a motion or amendment, or taking part in discussion thereon, shall rise and address the chairman, and shall not be interrupted unless called to order, when he shall sit down until the Commissioner calling to order shall have been heard thereon, and the question or other matter disposed of, when the Commissioner in possession of the chair may proceed with the subject.

29. Nature of Motion to be Stated.—Any Commissioner desirous of proposing an original motion or amendment must state the nature of the same before addressing the Commissioners thereon.

30. Leave to be Obtained Before Motion Withdrawn.—No motion or amendment shall be withdrawn without the leave of the Commissioners.

31. Motions to be Seconded Prior to Discussion.—No motion or amendment shall be discussed or put to the vote of the Commissioners unless it be seconded; but a Commissioner may, however, require the enforcement of any standing order of the Commissioners by directing the chairman's attention to the infraction thereof.

32. Mover and not the Seconder Held to Have Spoken.—A Commissioner moving a motion shall be held to have spoken thereon; but a Commissioner merely seconding a motion shall not be held to have spoken upon it.

33. Motions to be in Writing.—At every meeting of the Commissioners, all motions, whether original motions or amendments, shall, if required by the chairman, be reduced to writing, signed by the mover, and be delivered to the chairman immediately on their being moved and seconded.

34. Amendments re Motion in Writing.—No second or subsequent amendment, whether upon an original proposition or on an amendment, shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment is disposed of.

35. Amendment to Become the Motion.—If an amendment be carried, the question or amendment as amended shall become itself the question, whereupon any further amendment upon any portion of the question coming after such first-mentioned amendment may be moved.

36. Second Amendment may be Moved.—If an amendment be negatived, then a second may be moved to the question to which the first-mentioned amendment was moved, but only one amendment shall be submitted to the Commissioners for discussion at one time.

37. Right of Mover to Reply.—The mover of every original proposition, but of no amendment, shall have the right to reply, immediately after which the question shall be put from the chair, but no Commissioner shall be allowed to speak more than once on the same question unless permission be given to explain, or the attention of the chair be called to a point of order.

38. Adjournment, Motion for.—No discussion shall be allowed on any motion for adjournment of the Commissioners, but if, on the question being put the motion be negatived, the subject then under discussion, or the next on the notice paper, shall be discussed, or any other that may be allowed precedence, before any subsequent motion for adjournment be made.

39. Protest, Commissioner May.—Any Commissioner may protest against any resolution of the Commissioners, and notice of intention to protest shall in every case be given forthwith on the adoption of the resolution protested against, and the protest shall specify the reasons for protesting, and shall be entered three days at least before the next ordinary meeting of the Commissioners by the protesting Commissioner in a book to be kept for that purpose in the Trust secretary's office; and signed by such Commissioner, and shall also be entered in the minutes of the meeting at which notice of intention to protest shall have been given previously to the confirmation thereof; but such protest may be expunged from the minutes if declared by a majority of the Commissioners to be not in accordance with truth or in its terms disrespectful to the Commissioners.

40. Legal Questions.—If a debate or any motion moved and seconded be interrupted by the number of Commissioners present becoming insufficient for the transaction of business, such debate may be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted, on motion upon notice.

41. Order of the Day to be Restored.—If a debate on any order of the day be interrupted by such insufficiency of number as aforesaid happening, such order may be restored to the notice book for a future day, on motion upon notice, and then such debate may be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted.

42. Voting.—Whenever a division shall be demanded by any Commissioner, those voting in the affirmative shall first hold up their hands, and then those voting in the negative shall hold up their hands, and the result be declared by the chairman. The chairman shall have a deliberative vote and a casting vote, and every Commissioner present shall vote except he be disabled by law from so doing.

43. Questions to be Put.—The chairman shall, in taking the sense of the Commissioners, put the question first in the affirmative, then in the negative, and the result thereof shall be recorded in the minutes.

44. Contents of Petitions.—It shall be incumbent on every Commissioner presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Commissioners, and that the contents do not violate any By-law or any provision thereof.

45. Name at Beginning of Petition.—Every Commissioner presenting a petition to the Commissioners shall write his name at the beginning thereof.

46. Petitions to be in Writing.—Every petition shall be in writing, and not printed or lithographed, and shall contain the prayer of the petitioner at the end thereof, and shall be signed by at least one person on every skin or sheet on which it is written.

47. How Signed.—Every petition shall be signed by the persons whose names are appended thereto, by their names or marks, and by no one else, except in cases of incapacity by sickness.

48. No Letters, &c., to be Attached.—No letters, affidavits, or other documents shall be attached to any petition.

49. Presentation of Petition.—Every Commissioner presenting a petition to the Commissioners shall confine himself to a statement of the persons from whom it comes, of the number of signatures attached to it, of the material allegations contained in it, and to the reading of the prayer thereof.

50. Deputations.—Deputations from the ratepayers wishing to be heard before the Commissioners in support of any petition or otherwise must send in an application, in writing, to the Trust secretary the day before the meeting of the Commissioners at which such petition is intended to be presented.

51. Cheques to be Signed.—All cheques shall be signed by three Commissioners, and countersigned by the secretary.

52. Appointment to Permanent Office.—No appointment to any permanent office at the disposal of the Commissioners shall take place until seven clear days' public notice shall have been given by advertisement in one or more newspapers circulating in the waterworks district, inviting applications from qualified candidates for the same.

53. Salaries to be Fixed.—The salary or allowance attached to all offices and places at the disposal of the Commissioners shall in all cases be fixed before they proceed to appoint any person to fill the same.

54. Commissioners, &c., Not to be Surety.—No Commissioner or officer of the Commissioners, and no assessor or auditor, shall be received as a surety for any officer appointed by the Commissioners, or for any work to be done for the Commissioners.

55. Contracts.—In all cases of security being given for the faithful performance of any contract, the expense of preparing such security shall be borne by the person providing the same.

56. Plans, &c.—All the plans and specifications for any public work shall be laid before the Commissioners at least six days prior to the same being considered and ordered upon, and be open for inspection by any Commissioner during that time, except in cases of emergency.

57. Secretary to Expend Moneys.—It shall be lawful for the Trust secretary and a member of the Trust, from time to time, on the written order of the chairman, to disburse such moneys as shall have been appropriated by the Commissioners for the purpose of this clause, and as shall be required for any necessary occasion, not exceeding in the whole in an interval between two ordinary meetings of the Commissioners the sum of Ten pounds.

58. Common Seal.—The common seal of the Trust shall be kept in a box having two locks, one of which locks the chairman shall keep the key, and of the other of which locks the key shall be kept by the Trust secretary, and the corporate seal shall not be affixed to any document unless the chairman and one other member of the Commissioners, or, in the absence of the chairman, unless two Commissioners be present.

59. Address to the Governor, &c.—All addresses to the Governor shall be presented by the chairman and Trust secretary unless otherwise ordered by the Commissioners.

60. Suspension of Regulations.—Any one or more of the rules and provisions herein contained may be suspended for a special purpose on motion upon notice being given, and shall not otherwise be suspended except by a unanimous vote of the Commissioners.

Electricity Commission Acts.

ELECTRICITY COMMISSION OF VICTORIA.

REGULATIONS.

WHEREAS pursuant to the provisions of section 17 of the Electricity Commissioners Act 1918 the Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the State Electricity Commission of Victoria (hereinafter referred to as "the Commission") may make Regulations for or with respect to certain matters therein specified: And whereas section 20 of the State Electricity Commission Act 1920, as amended by section 4 of the State Electricity Commission Act 1921, provides that the provisions of the principal Act as to Regulations shall extend and apply to the making of Regulations for or with respect to prescribing the quality of materials, fittings, and apparatus to be used in connexion with electrical installations and the methods to be followed in carrying out electrical installations, and to such Regulations when made The Commission doth hereby recommend that the Governor in Council make the following Regulations for or with respect to prescribing the quality of materials, fittings, and apparatus to be used in connexion with electrical installations and the methods to be followed in carrying out electrical installations, that is to say:—

1. (a) The Supply Authority, after consulting with the consumer or the licensed wireman in charge of the work, will determine the most suitable point of attachment for the service connexion, also the points and positions for the location of the service fuse or fuses, supply meters, and any other apparatus of the Supply Authority, and the points and positions so determined will be observed by all electric wiremen.

(b) Only some person authorized by the Supply Authority shall fix the service fuse or fuses and the wiring from underground mains to the service fuses, and the same need not be provided by the consumer.

(c) Except as otherwise expressly provided, the work referred to in these Regulations shall begin at the point of attachment of the service lines to the building in which the installation is to be made, or, alternatively, if so required by the Supply Authority, at the building line of the premises where the installation is to be made.

(d) (i) If the service fuse or fuses be placed on the outside of the building or premises of the consumer—

Any cable required for connecting the service lines of the Supply Authority with the service fuses must be of not less cross-sectional area than 7/.036 (7/20 S.W.G.).

From the service fuses leading-in conductors shall be run of a size proportioned to the maximum demand of the installation as stated in the notice given to the Supply Authority by the wireman in charge of the work, but such leading-in conductors shall be stranded conductors and shall be of a size of not less cross-sectional area than 3/.036 (3/20 S.W.G.). Furthermore, this minimum size shall not be used when the run exceeds 20 feet, in which case such conductors shall throughout be of size not less than 7/.036.

If the distance between the service fuses and the point of entry exceeds 15 inches, the leading-in wires must be fixed to suitable insulators, or be run in screwed watertight tubing provided with a suitable bell-mouth outlet or other terminal fitting of the watershed type, and also with means to ensure against abrasion of the insulation of the conductors. If the meter be inside the premises, the leading-in wires from the point of entry to the meter must be run in steel conduit. Only "B" class conduit shall be used on portions exposed to the weather.

(ii) In the event of the service fuses being placed inside the premises—

The distance to such service fuses from the point of entry must not exceed 10 feet, and the service leading-in wires must be enclosed in steel tubing from the point of entry up to the service fuses, and thence also to the meter, and any leading-in cable required for connecting the service lines of the Supply Authority with the service fuses must be of not less cross-section than 7/.036 (7/20 S.W.G.).

If the point of entry be exposed to the weather, conductors must be enclosed to the full extent of such exposure in "B" class or other seamless tubing provided with a suitable bell-mouth bend or other terminal fitting of the watershed type, and also with means to ensure against abrasion of the insulation of the conductors.

The wiring from underground mains to service fuses situated inside or outside the premises of the consumer will be fixed by the Supply Authority. The wires thence to the meter shall be enclosed in steel tubing. The minimum size of wire shall be 3/.036 (3/20 S.W.G.). Where the length of run exceeds 20 feet, conductor of minimum size of 7/.036 must be installed throughout.

All cable used for service connexions must not be less than 600-volt standard, as set out in Regulation 31 for insulated conductors.

No. 139.—16245.—2

Loops shall be left in the leads for the insertion by the Supply Authority of its meters, service fuses, or other apparatus. The leads shall be of sufficient length to allow of their ends being properly connected to the service conductors at the consumers' terminals.

2. No person other than the Supply Authority or an employee or agent of the Supply Authority may insert the ends of the consumer's leads into any service fuse, meter, indicator, current limiter, or into any other device the property of the Supply Authority.

3. No conductor in a consumer's installation shall be connected to earth. All conductors must be insulated, and if used indoors or under cover, shall conform to the requirements in these Regulations relating to vulcanized india-rubber insulated conductors.

Where exposed directly to the weather, conductors must either be protected by a durable covering consisting of not less than three braidings, all of which must be thoroughly impregnated with a dense moisture-resisting compound; or, having regard to the conditions of their use, they may be insulated in conformity with the specification for conductors insulated with vulcanized india-rubber.

4. In cases where consumers' main switches and fuses are fixed on the supply side of the meter, they must be ironclad, and suitable for sealing with the Supply Authority's seal.

5. The maximum starting currents of any motor as measured by a damped ammeter must not exceed the amounts respectively indicated in the following tables, that is to say:—

As to three-phase motors—

| Motors not exceeding 2 brake horse-power— | 12 amperes. |

6. No water heater in which the heating element is in direct contact with the water shall be connected to any installation if the resistance between the heating element and earth with the water running is less than 10,000 ohms. The water shall not leave the heater at above earth potential.

7. Where it is required to provide for the separate metering of current supplied at different rates of charge, the installation must be divided into separate and distinct circuits, which must not be bunched, and all wall-plugs, connectors, and the like must be of such different types that it shall not be possible to connect the plug of any portable apparatus, chargeable at a certain rate, to any part of the installation conveying current chargeable at a lower rate.

No lampholder shall be connected to any circuit the supply of which is given at power or heating rates, except as provided in Regulation No. 86, in the case of pilot lamps, which, however, shall be so installed as to render it impossible to use them for general illuminating purposes.

8. No wires, fittings, devices, appliances, or apparatus shall, without the express permission of the Supply Authority to the use of electricity for the relevant purpose, be laid, fixed, or installed for any of the following purposes, that is to say:— Special lighting, such as the lighting of ovens, wet factory premises, garden lighting, designs for public illuminations and the like, and furthermore all lighting of a temporary nature.

9. Installations shall be balanced as follows:—

(a) In three-wire services, whether the system is continuous or single-phase.

Installations with a connected demand not exceeding a total of 3 kilowatts may be connected between an outer conductor and neutral.

Installations with a connected demand exceeding a total of 3 kilowatts shall be divided as evenly as possible between the two outer conductors and the neutral, and the balancing must be sanctioned by the Supply Authority.

Provided that individual motors with outputs not exceeding 2 brake horse-power if single phase, or 3 brake horse-power if continuous current, may be connected between an outer conductor and neutral, and any motors exceeding the said respective outputs shall be connected across the outer conductors only.

(b) In three-phase star-connected four-wire services in which the pressure between any phase wire and neutral does not exceed 250 volts—

Installations with a connected demand not exceeding a total of 15 amperes may be connected between one phase conductor and neutral.

Installations with a connected demand exceeding a total of 15 amperes but not exceeding a total of 30 amperes, must be balanced as evenly as possible between two phase conductors and neutral.

Installations with a connected demand exceeding a total of 30 amperes must be balanced as evenly as possible between all phase conductors and neutral.

Provided that single-phase motors individually not exceeding 2 horse-power in output may be connected between a phase conductor and neutral, but if more than one such motor is installed, they must be balanced as nearly as possible between the several phase conductors and neutral, and that motors exceeding 2 horse-power must be three-phase only, and must be connected accordingly.

Provided that the Commission may, by notice in the Government Gazette vary the provisions of this Regulation No. 9 so as to allow of, or require the connexion in any manner referred to in this Regulation, of installations with a lower demand, or of motors with a different output, from the relevant demand or output specified in this Regulation as applicable in cases of connexion in such manner, and any such permission may lawfully be taken advantage of, and any such requirement shall be observed by the person to whom such permission is given, or who receives notice of such requirement.

10. The ends of outer or non-earthed conductors to which all single-pole switches must be connected in accordance with Regulation 13, shall be labelled "Switch wire" in order that the Supply Authority may correctly connect the consumer's leads to the service lines.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENT OF INSTALLATION.

11. Every system except as otherwise required in Regulation 118 must be protected by main switches and main fuses or main-fuse switches under the control of the consumer. These switches must be mechanically connected so as to insure a simultaneous break of all poles. They must be easily accessible and placed as near the generator or point of entry of the supply as circumstances permit. When more than one consumer is connected to a single service the various consumers' main switchboards must be distinctly labelled so as to allow of ready identification; and where more than one consumer in buildings and premises supplied from underground mains is connected, the entire supply must be controlled by a master switch placed in a position conveniently accessible to and as near an entrance or exit door as circumstances permit. This master switch must be suitably protected by a locked case.

12. The service main fuses in any public building shall not be used for the supply of current to any other electric installation whatever, and where failure of light might cause panic or be otherwise dangerous the lighting must be controlled by independent service fuses.

13. Where the supply is obtained from a three-wire system or a three-phase four-wire system it shall not be possible to interrupt the neutral conductor (whether earthed or not), unless the outer conductors are simultaneously interrupted. In particular, no fuse or unlinked switch may be included in the main neutral conductor.

No single-pole switch or starter shall be placed in the neutral or earthed conductor of any installation.

14. Where the supply is given to two-wire circuits from a three-wire system with earthed neutral, or from a two-wire system with both poles insulated, each main two-wire circuit must be controlled by a double-pole switch with a fuse on each pole.

15. No fuse shall be placed in the neutral conductor of a three-wire or a multiple-wire system, but fuses must be placed on both conductors of two-wire circuits branching therefrom. For testing purposes only, a disconnecting link may be inserted in the neutral conductor.

16. (a) Where the pressure between the outer conductors of a three-wire system exceeds 250 volts and the three wires of the system, or two pairs of wires are brought into premises, the supply for pressure at 250 volts or lower pressure must be given from two pairs of terminals, which shall be so arranged as to minimize as far as possible the danger of shock, and the wiring from these terminals, including that behind distribution boards, must be kept distinct throughout in separated circuits, which must not be bunched. In case of multiple-wire systems similar principles shall apply.

(b) Where the supply is given from an outside source through more than one pair of terminals the extreme voltage between any set of terminals must be distinctly marked.

17. Where energy is obtained from a three-phase system the conductors must be protected on each pole by an automatic circuit-breaker, or by a fuse in conjunction with a multiple pole switch, or by a fuse-switch.

18. Conductors must radiate from distributing centres. In sub-circuits for lighting, except where otherwise provided, the current must not exceed 8 amperes for pressures up to 125 volts, nor 4 amperes from 125 to 250 volts, and the maximum number of points on any sub-circuit must not exceed 10.

(a) For the purpose of calculating the current of lighting circuits, no lamp holder shall be rated at less than 60 watts, more powerful lamp points, if any, being allowed for in full.

(b) Electrical heating appliances of a capacity not exceeding 600 watts, and motors of capacity not exceeding $\frac{1}{3}$ horse-power may be connected to a lighting sub-circuit, but only if the total number of points connected to that sub-circuit for lighting, heating, and power does not exceed ten. They may not be connected thereto by means of a flexible direct to a ceiling rose unless the apparatus is fitted with a two-pin plug. In all other cases, such apparatus shall be connected by means of an adaptor to a flexible fitted with a screw lamp socket of approved pattern specially provided for the purpose. The flexible conductor supplying the same must not be less than 23/36 S.W.G. Only one such attachment shall be permitted on any installation. Alternatively, a heating or similar point to 1,000 watts loading may be served through a two-pin wall plug on a mixed lighting and power circuit, provided the number of lighting points does not exceed six, of an aggregate loading not exceeding 360 watts. In such cases the flexible connexion to the heater must be of 40/0076 (40/36 S.W.G.).

(c) Sub-circuits for heaters must not carry more than 24 amperes up to 125 volts, or more than 15 amperes from 125 to 250 volts.

(d) Excepting in the cases specifically stated in this paragraph (d), power-plug points shall each be rated at not less than 1,000 watts. When installed in private residences, the maximum number of heaters which shall be connected to a circuit or sub-circuit shall be as set out in Regulation 84 (b). In all other premises the full actual capacity of the apparatus shall be allowed for, but in such cases each point shall be rated at not less than 500 watts.

(e) Every sub-circuit must be protected on each pole by a fuse. Every distribution board in which each circuit is not controlled by a double-pole switch must be fitted with a double-pole switch to control all circuits branching therefrom. Mains and feeders must be protected on each pole by a switch and fuse or circuit breaker or fuse-switch.

(f) For electric sign-writing, outline, and decorative wiring when in use outside a building, the final sub-circuits must not exceed 1,200 watts or 25 amperes at any voltage.

(g) In demonstration or effect lighting, the number of points and current to be allowed when the circuit is controlled by a multi-way switch shall be determined by the maximum that can be in use at any one time.

19. Where protected from mechanical injury by metal conduits, or by a covering of tough rubber compound, conductors of opposite polarity may be bunched. Where the protecting tubing or casing is non-metallic, lengths of conductors carrying small currents for incandescent lighting from sub-centres, as referred to in Regulation 18, may be bunched. If the supply is of alternating current and the protection iron or steel, the lead and return conductors must be bunched.

20. Earthing conductors (earth-wires) must be of stranded copper of a cross-sectional area not less than that of a 7/.029 conductor. Where the cross sectional area of portable leads is less than that of a 7/.036 (7/20 S.W.G.) conductor the earthing conductor may be equal in cross-sectional area to the live conductor. The earth wires must be suitably protected from mechanical injury, and they must be efficiently and permanently earthed. In all cases the connexion of the earthing cable must be visible and accessible. The sectional area of the earthing conductor in no case shall be less than half of that of the conductor necessary to supply the connected load. Where an efficient earth or earths such as a water pipe cannot be obtained, a suitable earth plate or pipe shall be provided to the satisfaction of the Inspector. The place selected should be permanently wet, or at least damp. Suitable clips must be used, to which earthing conductors must be connected.

21. (a) Gas pipes must not be used to obtain an earth connexion.

(b) Combined gas and electric fittings must not be used.

(c) If disused gas fittings are adapted for electric light they must be entirely disconnected from the gas pipes. Converted fittings must be cleared of metal borings and sharp edges before wiring.

(d) The minimum distance between conductors or their insulating material, metallic sheathing, or tubing, whether earthed or not, and gas pipes, telephone, bell, or other wires not forming part of the system, shall be 1 inch in those cases where the pipes, &c., run parallel to conductors. In the case of crossing, a non-conducting distance piece must be securely fixed between the two, and this distance piece shall be of such a size as to extend at least 1 inch on either side of either pipe.

22. Fuse-boards, motors, starters, and resistances in situations where highly inflammable materials are stored or worked, such as timber-yards, woodworking shops, must be provided with covers, which, if of wood, must be lined with non-inflammable material. In places where inflammable or explosive dust or gases are liable to be present, dynamos, arc lamps, mercury vapour lamps, and wall plugs and sockets must not be used. In such situations glow-lamps and their holders must be enclosed in air-tight fittings of thick glass; switches, fuses, and resistances shall, if practicable, be located outside such places, and otherwise shall be enclosed in flame-tight incombustible cases, strong enough to resist internal gas explosions; and motors, with their live parts, starters, terminals, and connexions must also be similarly enclosed.

23. Circuits within safes and strong-rooms must be controlled by double-pole switches placed outside and adjacent to the locked door.

24. Except where completely enclosed in metallic casing, no switch, ceiling-rose, fuse, wall plug and socket, or other electrical accessory, may be mounted directly upon any surface liable to become damp, but must, in addition to its own mount, be fixed upon a base block impervious to moisture.

25. In bathrooms or other places where an earth connexion is possible, special precautions must be taken to prevent personal contact with any metallic part of the system. Where flexible drop-lights are used, the lamp must be at least eight (8) feet from the floor.

26. Lighting or power points in chilling or refrigerating rooms must be controlled by a double-pole switch, placed outside the room.

CONDUCTORS.

27. All conductors shall be manufactured and insulated in conformity with the standards set out under the provisions of the Federal Customs Acts 1901-1916 and Proclamation thereunder of 3rd April, 1919, or any amendment or re-enactment thereof, and shall conform to the extant standards of the British Engineering Standards Association. Until amended, Tables I. to VII. of Appendix 2 to these Regulations shall be deemed to form part of these Regulations.

The data for the resistances of copper conductors are based on the standard defined by the British Engineering Standards Committee. The sizes of the conductors of cables shown in British Standard Specification No. 7, 1919, and set out in Table I., are recognized as standards. For convenience of reference, the nearest S.W.G. sizes are also shown in the Tables.

28. Except for wiring fittings, the cross-sectional area of any conductor other than flexible conductors must not be less than .0015 square inch (.044 S.W.G.). The cross-sectional area of fitting wires must not be less than .0010 square inch (.036 S.W.G.).

29. Subject to Regulations 28 and 30 being complied with, the minimum size of the conductors within a building will be determined as follows:—

(a) For lighting circuits by the permissible drop in volts which under ordinary conditions must not exceed 2 per cent., plus a constant allowance of 1 volt.

(b) For power and heating circuits, by the rise in temperature, in accordance with Tables II. and III., columns 4, 5, and 6.

Insulated copper conductors must be of annealed copper except where otherwise specified, and they must have a conductivity not less than that laid down by the British Engineering Standards Committee, and the copper must be protected by tinning or other effective method from contact with the insulating material if such contains sulphur.

All insulated copper conductors having a cross-sectional area greater than .0032 square inches (1/16 S.W.G.) must be stranded.

30. The maximum permissible currents for the various size of conductors up to 1 square inch in cross-sectional area are shown in columns 4, 5, and 6 of Tables II. and III., which allow for a rise of temperature of 20 degrees Fahrenheit (11.1 degrees centigrade) for rubber-insulated cables, and of 50 degrees Fahrenheit (27.8 degrees centigrade) for impregnated paper-insulated cables. For sizes below 0.005 square inch cross-sectional area for rubber-insulated cables and 0.017 square inch for paper-insulated cables, the table is based on a current density of 4,000 amperes per square inch.

The tables refer to situations where the temperature of the air does not exceed 80 degrees Fahrenheit (26.6 degrees centigrade) and thus the normal maximum running temperature is 100 degrees Fahrenheit (37.7 degrees centigrade) for rubber and 130 degrees Fahrenheit (54.4 degrees centigrade) for paper-insulated cables.

Rubber insulated cables should not be allowed to attain to a permanent temperature higher than 120 degrees Fahrenheit (48.8 degrees centigrade) or for a short period 130 degrees Fahrenheit (54.4 degrees centigrade) nor impregnated paper to a higher temperature than 176 degrees Fahrenheit (80 degrees centigrade). The figures, therefore, in the latter cases allow of a margin of 30 degrees Fahrenheit and 46 degrees Fahrenheit, respectively.

Where the temperature of the air exceeds 80 degrees Fahrenheit (26.6 degrees centigrade) or in any case where the dielectric of the cable is not suitable for the maximum temperature stated above, the permissible current shall be reduced accordingly.

The figures in the Tables apply to single cables run in pairs in iron conduits or in wood casing, and to single cables sheathed with tough rubber compound and to concentric, twin, and three-core cables of any finish run singly.

31. Conductors, except as provided in Regulation 58, must be specially insulated with material which does not rapidly deteriorate at the highest temperature to which it will be subjected. For instance, rubber must not be allowed to exceed 130 degrees Fahrenheit (54.4 degrees centigrade) and paper or fibre 176 degrees Fahrenheit (80 degrees centigrade). Conductors must also comply with the following conditions:—

(1) If the conductors are of a sectional area equivalent to No. 37/.072 (37/15 S.W.G.) or smaller, there must be applied to each coil in as permanent a manner as practicable a label setting out in prominent and legible characters the following information:—

- (a) the manufacturer's name and address,
- (b) the length of wire,
- (c) the date of manufacture,
- (d) the gauge of conductor,
- (e) the insulation resistance per statute mile after

24 hours' immersion in water at sixty (60) degrees Fahrenheit and one minute's electrification at _____ volts, the voltage or details of the test voltage or other definite and comprehensive description of quality to be plainly marked on the label.

(2) The marks "600 Megohm grade" or "2,500 Megohm grade," as the case may be, shall be indelibly and legibly applied to the wire at least once every yard; or in the case of wires that are taped, such marks shall be indelibly and legibly applied to the tape at least once every yard.

32. The insulating material of any conductor other than a flexible conductor must be throughout either—

Class A.—A non-hygroscopic dielectric, such as vulcanized rubber of the best quality, which only needs mechanical protection.

Class B.—A hygroscopic dielectric such as impregnated paper or fibre, which must be encased in a waterproof sheath, generally of soft metal, such as lead, drawn closely over the dielectric.

In this Regulation dielectric does not include braiding or taping.

33. The radial thickness of vulcanized rubber must not be less than that given in columns 4 and 5 of Table IV. The radial thickness of dielectric under Class B of Regulation 32 must not be less than that given in column 4 of Table V., and the radial thickness of the lead sheath not less than that given in column 5. The dielectric must not soften sufficiently under working conditions to allow displacement of the conductor from the centre.

The provisions regarding the radial thickness of dielectric as shown in column 5 of Table IV, shall not apply where the difference of potential between the conductor and earth does not exceed 250 volts.

34. The dielectric must be such that when the insulated conductor has been immersed in water for 24 hours it will, while still immersed, withstand a pressure test of 1,000 volts for half an hour in the case of 250-volt cables and one of 2,500 volts for half an hour in the case of 650-volt cables. The testing pressures must be alternating pressures at a frequency of 50 to 100, supplied from an alternator capable of giving an output of not less than 5 kilowatts.

35. The minimum insulation resistance, when corrected to a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit (15.6 degrees centigrade) must be that given respectively in columns 4, 5, and 6 of Table VI, for vulcanized rubber, the test being made after one minute's electrification at not less than 500 volts after the insulated conductor has been immersed in water for the 24 hours immediately preceding the test, and while it is still immersed.

36. Each insulated member of a twin or multiple conductor must have the insulation resistance given in the Table for single conductors of the same size.

37. Conductors insulated as in Class A, Regulation 32, must be taped and braided if drawn into conduits, and at least braided if laid in casing.

38. Where colours are used to distinguish the conductors, the following are recommended:—

Continuous current:

|---------|------------------|
| + | Red |
| — | Black |
| Neutral | Yellow or White. |

Alternating current:

|-----------|-----------------|
| (a) Phase | Red |
| (b) Phase | Yellow or White |
| (c) Phase | Blue |
| Neutral | Green. |

39. Concentric conductors must, in all respects, conform to the requirements laid down for single conductors; the insulation resistance for the dielectric separating the two conductors must be that given in the Table for single conductors having the same diameter as the inner conductor. The insulation resistance of the dielectric on the external conductor, when insulated, must be that given in the Table for single conductors having the same diameter as the outside diameter of the external conductor.

FLEXIBLE CONDUCTORS.

40. Flexible conductors must be made up so that the total cross-sectional area is not less than equivalent to 1/.036 (1/20 S.W.G.) and they must be composed of wires twisted together on a short lay, no wire being smaller than a 17/0076 (36/S.W.G.). The carrying capacities of various sizes of flexible conductors are set out in the Tables.

41. The insulating material used as the dielectric of flexible conductors must be either pure rubber equal to washed para rubber or vulcanized rubber of the best quality. The pure rubber must be laid on in two layers, care being taken that the edges of each layer overlap, and the radial thickness of the dielectric must not be less than 20 mils. Each coil of flexible conductor with dielectric of pure rubber must be tested in air for fifteen minutes with a pressure of 1,500 volts alternating between the conductors at a frequency of 50 to 100.

42. Vulcanized rubber flexible conductors must be insulated with one layer of pure rubber and two layers of vulcanized rubber, the minimum insulation resistance and radial thickness of the dielectric being those respectively specified in Table IV, for 250 volts or 650-volt cable having similar cross-sectional area of conductor. The pressure tests and insulation tests must be as specified in Regulations 34 and 35, with the exception that the pressure tests may be applied for fifteen minutes only.

Notwithstanding anything contained in these Regulations, the Commission may authorize the use of flexible cord for portable apparatus made to the specification of the National Board of Fire Underwriters of the United States of America with the portable apparatus intended for the same pressure as that for which such cord was manufactured.

43. Insulating material containing sulphur must not be in direct contact with copper wires.

JOINTS AND CONNEXIONS.

44. The looping-in system must be generally employed and joints must be avoided so far as possible. Where the use of joints is unavoidable they must be accessible and must be mechanically and electrically sound so as not to occasion any rise of temperature. Except where approved insulated connectors are used, or where flexible conductors are joined to other conductors all joints shall be soldered. Soldering fluids containing acid or other corrosive substance must not be used.

Connexions between conductors should preferably be made in junction boxes of an approved type.

45. Junction boxes must be so constructed that—

- (a) The conductors cannot be readily short-circuited.
- (b) The insulation between opposite poles is rigid and durable.
- (c) The connexions do not heat.
- (d) If used in damp places they are of water-tight pattern.

46. In jointing conductors, the braid, tape, or lead must be carefully removed without damage to the dielectric, and for a sufficient length to insure a thorough union between the dielectric and the material used to insulate the joint. If the insulating material is not waterproof, the joint must be enclosed in an impervious sleeve or box, with water-tight inlets where the conductors enter. Care must be taken to exclude moisture during the work of jointing.

47. Where conductors are connected to switches, fuses, or other appliances—

- (a) The whole of the separate wires forming the stranded or flexible conductor must be contained within the terminal, but the dielectric must not be bared back further than to allow the conductor to enter the terminals properly.
- (b) The braid, lead, or other covering must be cut back from the end of the dielectric.
- (c) The exposed ends of the dielectric of Class B must be protected from moisture which might creep along the insulating material within the sheath.
- (d) In damp places the strands must be soldered until solid to prevent moisture creeping along the conductor beneath the insulating material.

48. All conductors, except flexible conductors and those having less than seven strands, must be soldered into proper cable lugs for connexion to terminals. Where the type of terminal renders it impracticable to use a lug, the strands must be soldered together for connexion. Where there is any possibility of stress on the lugs the conductors must be secured, in addition to the soldering, by some mechanical device, such as one or more set-screws. Alternatively approved solderless terminations or tags may be used.

TUBED WIRING.

49. Conductors insulated with vulcanized india-rubber as specified in Table IV, excepting flexible conductors, may be cased in steel conduits with details and accessories in accordance with the British Standard Specification No. 31 for steel conduits for electric wiring, or in brass or copper conduits. All conduits must comply with the following conditions:—

- (a) They must be electrically and mechanically continuous throughout. Plain slip fittings will not be permitted. Some form of screwed or grip joint giving ample and permanent electrical conductivity and mechanical rigidity throughout must be used. In no case may the thickness of the metal of the fitting be less than that of the conduit on which it is to be used unless such metal be suitably reinforced. For protecting conductors, any one of which is conveying current at 50 amperes or more, only Class B conduit may be used.
- (b) The conductors must in all cases be mechanically protected throughout their entire length, and in the case of switch loops, either by steel conduit or by an approved flexible tubing of strongly woven non-inflammable material, extending the whole length of the switch loops, and brought through and fastened at each end.
- (c) They must have all outlets bushed to prevent abrasion.
- (d) They must, except where otherwise permitted by the Commission, be earthed. Provided that in dry places isolated single lengths of conduit on consumer's side of service fuses need not be earthed if adequately enamelled, or otherwise insulated externally.
- (e) In damp places, or where exposed to the weather or liable to become wet, they must be water-tight.
- (f) They must be efficiently drained if liable to internal condensation.
- (g) In the event of conduit of the sizes above 1 inch external diameter not being procurable, ordinary galvanized or black piping of the same internal diameter may be substituted provided care is taken to free it from all internal burrs or other projections. Tees, elbows, and other fittings used therewith must have rounded internal surfaces, and be free from roughness or projections at angles, or otherwise.

CASED WIRING.

50. Conductors (excepting flexible conductors) insulated as in Classes A and B of Regulation 32 may be cased in wood in dry places under the following conditions:—

- (a) Wood casing must not be buried in plaster or cement, nor fixed immediately below, nor in contact with, water pipes. Wood casing will not be permitted in lift wells, laid under floor, in hollow walls, or in places where liable to damage by rodents.

- (b) Conductors of the same polarity may be bunched when run in wood casing, but those of opposite polarity must be kept in separate grooves, and effective cross-overs must be used where intersections of run are unavoidable.
- (c) Wood casing shall be so constructed that the width of the fillet between the grooves shall be at least half an inch, and the thickness of the outside shall be at least one quarter of an inch.

In all cases where enclosed wiring or armoured conductors are used, conductors shall be enclosed in their protective device up to the terminals to which the conductors are to be attached.

UNCASED WIRING—TOUGH RUBBER COMPOUND REINFORCED CONDUCTORS.

51. (1) Insulated conductors, protected by an outer reinforcing covering of tough rubber compound not less than 50 mils. thick and capable of resisting abrasion, acids, oils, and alkalis may be used without conduits or wood casing only where not exposed to mechanical injury or damage by rodents, and provided that—

- (a) The resistance of the covering to fire is equal or superior to that of vulcanized rubber.
 - (b) The covering encloses the insulated conductors as a whole or each insulated conductor separately.
 - (c) They are supported by means of clips, saddles or clamps of such form as will not indent or damage the sheathing.
 - (d) They are protected by steel conduit where buried in plaster, cement, or brickwork.
 - (e) Such conductors laid between floors or in roofs, between lath and plaster or other hollow partitions and walls need not be protected.
 - (f) They do not come into contact with damp brickwork or plaster.
- (2) In running, laying, fixing, and installing such conductors uncased—
- (a) Where the conductors are laid in roofs across the ceiling joists at any angle, they shall be attached to the side of soft wood strips of not less than 1 inch square. Where running parallel with the joists they shall be attached to the side of same. Fixing-clips or saddles for attaching the conductors must not be spaced more than 18 inches apart.
 - (b) Where the conductors are laid below ground floors or between floors and ceilings and do not run parallel to the joists, they shall be passed through a hole in the joist at approximately right angles to same at a distance of not less than 2 inches from the underside of the floor. Where run parallel with joists, however, they may be laid flat on the ceiling. No junctions or connexions will be permitted beneath floors.
 - (c) Where exposed to mechanical injury, such as up to a distance of 4 ft. 6 in. on walls from the floor, the conductors shall be protected by wood or metal casing or conduit.
 - (d) Clips or saddles must be spaced not more than 9 inches apart on ceilings, nor more than 12 inches apart on vertical runs in all surface work.

UNCASED WIRING—ARMOURED CONDUCTORS.

52. Conductors (excepting flexible conductors) insulated as provided for in Classes A and B, of Regulation 32 and efficiently armoured with steel armouring or cased with brass, copper, or equally hard metal of substantial thickness, may be used without conduits or wood casing. The armouring or casing must be earthed.

UNCASED WIRING—UNARMOURED CONDUCTORS.

53. (1) Conductors (excepting flexible conductors) may be used without mechanical protection (i.e., without conduit, casing, armouring, &c.), in situations where, owing to moisture, heat, or the presence of fumes, encased wiring would be unsuitable.

(2) Cables of 7/.044 (7/18 S.W.G.) and upwards may be run likewise in open roofs of works and factories when used for pressures not exceeding 250 volts, but—

- (a) In such cases the wiring must be in view, and must not be exposed to mechanical injury or damage by rodents.
- (b) Such conductors must be supported at reasonable intervals and also at each end of the run by insulators of non-absorbent material in such manner as to secure the permanent spacing of the conductors from each other, and from walls, ceilings, and all structural metal work and metal piping. Wires of a sectional area not greater than 7/.036 (7/20 S.W.G.) must be supported as aforesaid at intervals not exceeding 5 feet.
- (c) Where carried lower than 8 feet from the floor, and where passing through walls, partitions, or under floors, conductors must be protected by conduit.

CONDUCTORS WITH SHEATHING OF LEAD ALLOY.

54. (1) Unarmoured conductors having a sheathing containing not less than 95 per cent. pure lead (the remainder consisting of rarer metals) and of a thickness of not less than that specified in the British Engineering Standard Committee Report No. 7 (1922) on "British Standard Copper Conductors" may be used only provided that—

- (a) They are supported by means of clips, saddles, or clamps of such form as will not indent or damage the sheathing, and if metallic, of some metal other than copper.
- (b) They are protected by steel conduit where buried in plaster, cement, or brickwork.
- (c) They do not come into contact with damp brickwork or plaster.
- (d) Such conductors laid between floors and in roofs, between lath and plaster, or other hollow partitions and walls need not be so protected, except where liable to damage by rodents.

(2) The following methods of running, laying, fixing, and installing unarmoured conductors shall be observed:—

- (a) Where laid in roofs across the ceiling joists at any angle they shall be attached to the side of soft wood strips of not less than 1 inch square. Where laid parallel with the joists they shall be attached to the side of same. Clips or saddles for attaching such conductors must not be spaced more than 18 inches apart.
- (b) Where the conductors are laid below ground floors or between floors and ceilings and do not run parallel to the joists they shall be passed through a hole in the joist at approximately right angles to same at a distance of not less than 2 inches from the underside of the floor and from joist to joist to a distance not exceeding 18 inches without other support. Where run parallel with joists they may be laid flat on the ceiling, but in such situations they must not lie in direct contact with metal ceilings. No junctions or connexions will be permitted beneath floors.
- (c) Where exposed to mechanical injury, such as up to a distance of 4 ft. 6 in. on walls from the floor, they shall be protected by wood or metal casing or conduit.
- (d) Clips or saddles must be spaced not more than 9 inches apart on ceilings, nor more than 12 inches apart on vertical runs, in all surface work.
- (e) The metal sheathing of the conductors shall be earthed and made electrically continuous throughout by means of wiped joints, or alternatively by bonding clamps specially designed for the purpose and forming part of boxes or similar fittings entered by the conductors. The continuity of the sheathing shall comply with Regulation 55, and the earthing with Regulations 20 and 21. All wiring of this description must be handled and installed strictly in accordance with the makers' specifications and instructions.

55. The resistance of the metal sheathing between any two points of completed installation shall not exceed 2 ohms.

UNCASED WIRING—FLEXIBLE CONDUCTORS.

56. (1) Flexible conductors may be used only—

- (a) For connexion to lifts, subject to their being supported by porcelain insulators and being of such length that they will not come into contact with the bottom of the lift well when the lift is at the lowest point of its run. Flexible conductors used for this purpose shall be specially covered, and must be adequately reinforced in such a manner that all mechanical strain is taken off the conductor.
- (b) For pendants and portable appliances when suspended from ceiling roses or other approved supports, provided that when in positions in which there is a liability of the person handling any such flexible conductor making electrical contact with earth, the flexible conductor must be protected with an earthed metallic shield or a vulcanized rubber hose or the like.

(2) Unarmoured flexible pendants shall be hung clear of fixtures, fittings, goods, and materials, and slack conductors are strictly prohibited. In all premises such as butchers, confectioners, fish, and fruit shops, stables, hide and tallow stores, public dining rooms, public kitchens, where flexible conductors are likely to be exposed to the action of flies and other insects, such conductors must be specially protected. Rigid fittings must be used under verandahs, doorways, and all places exposed to the weather.

(3) No flexible extension shall be taken more than 9 feet across a ceiling to drop light or other fitting.

(4) Not more than two pairs of flexible conductors shall be connected to a ceiling rose unless the rose be specially designed for multiple connexion.

(5) When used for shop windows, flexible conductors and all wiring must be of a permanent character.

57. Connexions between flexible conductors and other conductors must be effected only by means of screw terminals in porcelain or other connecting boxes, or ceiling roses, and not by soldering; and where flexible connexions from fittings unavoidably pass into ceilings they must be specially protected and must terminate in a junction box or ceiling rose fixed as near as possible to the point of entry into the ceiling.

UNCASED WIRING—BARE CONDUCTORS:

58. (1) Bare conductors may be used indoors or in open sheds only for the following purposes:—

- (a) As collector or trolley wires for electric locomotives, travelling cranes, and similar appliances, but in such cases they must be so supported upon insulators as to prevent contact between the conductors themselves, or between the conductors and the walls, or structural or other metal work, should a collector wire be displaced from any insulator, and the insulation at any straining point (i.e., at the end of each wire) must consist of double insulation with proper straining gear; and wall rosettes or brackets used as supports for span wires must not be fixed within 1 foot of any gas pipe; or
 - (b) as accumulator connexions, but such conductors must be well spaced from each other and from all structural or other metal work, and must be rigidly supported on insulators.
- (2) The current must be under complete control by means of a double-pole switch and fuses, or a double-pole fuse-switch.
- (3) Lightning arresters, if required by the authorities concerned, must be fitted on each pole if the bare wiring extends to a position exposed to lightning.

PROTECTION IN SPECIAL POSITIONS.

59. Where conductors protected as provided in Regulations 49, 52, and 54 are laid beneath wooden floors the boards covering them must be fastened by screws near the edges.

Conductors where exposed to injury (e.g., where passing out of floors) must be specially protected by steel conduits, and where passing through walls, partitions, or ceilings, they must be enclosed in porcelain or other protecting conduits.

Conductors passing through party walls or fire-resisting floors must be provided with special protection such as a close-fitting porcelain or other incombustible tube, to prevent the spread of fire. When the end of the tube is outside the building, it must be bell-mouthed or bushed, and the openings turned downwards as referred to in Regulations 1 (b) and 117 (d).

SWITCH AND DISTRIBUTION BOARDS.

60. Main and distribution switch and/or fuse boards must comply with the following conditions:—

- (a) They must be fixed in dry situations.
- (b) They must be so arranged that a fire thereon cannot spread whether occurring at the front or back of the board, and when placed on or within 6 inches of a wooden wall or 18 inches of a wooden ceiling, a thickness of hard insulating fire-resisting material shall be placed between switch or distribution boards and the wall or ceiling, and such material must extend at least 6 inches beyond the board all round, except where such boards are enclosed as under Regulation 70. Wires, &c., passing through this material must fit the holes through which they pass as tightly as possible.
- (c) Their bases must be of incombustible and insulating material, and fitted with moisture-proof bushes at the points of support if the material is hygroscopic.
- (d) The possibility of a permanent arc must be prevented either by sufficient spacing of all live parts or by the use of separating partitions.
- (e) For pressures not exceeding 250 volts, the minimum clearance between live metal parts of fuses of opposite polarities or between any live metal and any earthed metal shall be $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.
- (f) The minimum clearance between any bare live metal at the back of a board and the surface of the wall upon which such board is fixed shall be $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, provided that not more than four pairs of wires, each having a cross-sectional area not greater than that of a $7/0.36$ ($7/20$ S.W.G.) cable are connected to the back of such board.
- (g) In those cases where more than four pairs of wires are connected to the back of a board, or where each cable connected thereto has a cross-sectional area greater than that of a $7/0.36$ ($7/20$ S.W.G.) cable, the minimum clearance must be increased to 4 inches.
- (h) Switches shall be so arranged that their blades or moving parts are disconnected from the supply in the "off" position.

- (i) In every case in which switches and fuses are fitted on the same pole, the switches shall be so arranged that the fuses are disconnected from the supply when the switches are in the "off" position.

In the case of boards with no bare live metal at the back thereof, the minimum clearance between any such board and the surface of the wall upon which it is fixed shall be $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches up to and including a two-circuit lighting and a two-circuit small power board. All switch boards of this type serving more than two circuits shall have a minimum clearance of $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, provided that in no case shall there be a clearance less than 1 inch between the board and any tubing at the back thereof.

Where conductors carrying more than 4 amperes are connected by other means than cable sockets to lift-control, switch or distribution board-terminals or busbars, a sleeve or binding of some approved fire-resisting material shall be placed over the bare conductor for a distance of at least 1 inch from such terminal or busbar.

61. Fibro-cement switch or fuse boards may be used only if they comply with the following conditions:—

- (a) Fibro-cement with metallic reinforcing shall not be used.
- (b) The front, back, edges, and all holes must be varnished so that they will not absorb moisture. The face of such boards after being varnished may be painted with a non-conducting paint, should it be desired.
- (c) No lever-operated switch, other than a tumbler switch, shall be mounted on fibro-cement of less thickness than half an inch.
- (d) They must be rigidly supported, but in no case must the area of contact between the board and each support, which must be non-hygroscopic, be less than three-quarters of a square inch.
- (e) They must be supported at points not greater than 12 inches apart if under half an inch thick.
- (f) Insulated rubber-covered wires may be taken through holes without bushes, but if bare conductors are used the holes must be bushed with some non-hygroscopic insulating material. All holes must be of ample size to allow free access for the wire, and must in no case be less than three-eighths of an inch in diameter.
- (g) All apparatus must be held on with bolts and nuts.
- (h) To ensure mechanical strength of board the following table must be adhered to, that is to say:—

| Capacity of Switchboard in Amperes. | Minimum thickness of Board. |
|--|--------------------------------|
| Up to and including 50 amperes ... | $\frac{1}{2}$ inch. |
| Over 50 amperes ... | $\frac{3}{4}$ inch. |

This provision will come into operation six months from the date of approval of these Regulations.

62. Switch and fuse boards must be so constructed and placed that all their parts which may have to be adjusted or handled are readily accessible.

63. No switches or fuses, except those required by the operator during a performance, shall be allowed within a biograph operating room. Any necessary switch or fuse apparatus must be placed as far as possible from the projector and film.

64. Connecting conductors on main boards must be—

- (a) Permanently accessible from either the back or front of the board;
- (b) Symmetrically placed and spaced apart, and the live conductors must in each case connect to the upper terminals of the apparatus;
- (c) So proportioned that there shall be no appreciable rise of temperature when the current flows through them;
- (d) So arranged that the course of every conductor may, where necessary, be readily traced;
- (e) So arranged as to prevent the access of acid fumes from batteries to the board.

65. Main switchboard circuits must be labelled for identification.

66. No fuses may be placed at the back of the switchboards.

67. The cases of instruments, if metallic, must be insulated from the circuits, but they may be earthed if desired.

68. Every voltmeter or pilot lamp with its connecting wires must be protected by a fuse on each pole.

69. Combination switch and fuse boxes must be so arranged that it is not possible to operate the switch with the fuses uncovered.

70. Where fuses are grouped together, the case of the distribution board—

- (a) will, if glass fronted, be a sufficient protection, provided that the distance from cover to fuse exceeds 1 inch;
- (b) must, if made of wood, be lined with fire-resisting material, and a minimum clearance of $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches must be provided.

SWITCHES AND CIRCUIT BREAKERS.

71. Switches and circuit-breakers, whether fixed separately or combined with lamp-holders or fittings, must comply with the following requirements:—

- (a) The conductivity and contacts must be such that overheating cannot take place at the point of contact or elsewhere when the full current flows continuously.
- (b) They must be so constructed and arranged that the contacts cannot accidentally close if left open.
- (c) They must be incapable of forming a permanent arc when breaking circuit, and they must be tested with pressures and with currents 50 per cent. in excess of those which will be used on the circuits for which they are intended.
- (d) The bases must be of incombustible, non-conducting, and moisture-proof material.
- (e) Circuit-breakers must be so arranged and placed that no combustible material is endangered by their action. When fixed to switchboards it is advisable that circuit-breakers should be as near the top thereof as possible.
- (f) Unless placed in an engine-room or in a compartment specially arranged for the purpose, they must have their live parts covered. The covers must be of incombustible material, and must be either non-conducting or of rigid metal, and clear of all internal mechanism. For more than 6 amperes, at pressure exceeding 125 volts, metal covers must be lined with insulating material, which must be securely attached.
- (g) In positions where they are liable to injury, or to come into contact with goods, they must be further protected by an open-fronted box or other suitable guard.
- (h) Handles must be insulated and so arranged that the hand cannot touch live metal or be injured through an adjacent fuse blowing.
- (i) Switches having a handle projecting through an open slot in the cover may be used, provided a suitable shield is fitted to the satisfaction of the inspector.
- (j) Multi-pole switches having opposite polarities under one cover shall not be installed unless of a type approved by the Inspector.
- (k) Key sockets on flexible pendants shall not be fixed or installed.
- (l) On main and distribution board switches must be connected on the live side of the fuse.

72. Maximum automatic circuit-breakers must be so constructed and arranged as to close the circuit without risk to the operator and to effectively interrupt the current before it so exceeds the working rate as to involve danger.

FUSES.

73. Fuses must comply with the following requirements:—

- (a) Overheating must not take place when the full current flows continuously.
- (b) They must effectually interrupt the current when a short-circuit occurs, and they must be so proportioned to the current to be carried that no conductor protected by them can be raised in temperature above that specified in Regulation 31. When the current-carrying capacity of the conductors as referred to in Table 2, column 4, does not exceed 10 amperes, the fuses must be proportioned to interrupt the current before or when the current through the conductors rises to three times such capacity; when the current-carrying capacity of the conductors as referred to in Table 2, column 4, exceeds 10 amperes the fuses must be proportioned to interrupt the circuit before or when the current through the conductor rises to twice such capacity. The use of fuses of the enclosed type is recommended, and in any case fuse wires must be individually protected. No fuse smaller than one having a working capacity of three amperes to fuse at nine amperes need be inserted for final sub-circuits.
- (c) The terminals of fuses must be so spaced apart or screened that an arc cannot be maintained when the fuse is blown.
- (d) The bases of fuses must be of incombustible non-conducting and moisture-proof material.
- (e) Unless placed in a compartment specially arranged for the purpose or in engine-rooms, in positions where no danger is likely to arise when a fuse operates, fuses must be provided with covers to retain the fused metal. These covers must be of incombustible material, and must either be non-conducting or of rigid metal, lined with insulating, incombustible material, and clear of all live parts. Small close-fitting covers must be suitably ventilated.
- (f) Fuses must not be placed in wall plugs and sockets, ceiling roses, or lamp-holders.

74. Branch fuses must be grouped together in accessible positions in sight, and they should be symmetrically placed and labelled for each circuit. After a date to be proclaimed by the Governor in Council, by notice in the Government Gazette, but not sooner than the first day of January, 1926, the further installation will not be permitted of anchor, bow, chamber, or other types of fuses, which require the connecting of the fuse wire to terminals mounted on the base-block. Fuses of all sizes thereafter installed must be of the removable and safe-replacement type of an approved design.

WALL PLUGS AND SOCKETS.

75. Wall plugs and sockets shall conform to the following requirements:—

- (a) They shall be capable of withstanding a test with pressures and with current 50 per cent. in excess of that for which they are intended. They must be constructed so that they cannot readily be short-circuited. The clearances must be such that an arc cannot be started if the plug is pulled out while the current is flowing.
- (b) They shall be arranged that the live end of the coupling is not exposed to accidental short-circuiting or injury. A hand shield should preferably be provided on the plug portion, and the entry of the flexible should be at the side. Wall plug and sockets, where the latter are fixed, must have incombustible bases, and in damp places they must be water-tight. Where the socket is attached to a floor it must be provided with a cover and be so arranged that no dust or water can accumulate, that all contacts are well below the floor level, and that any possibility of danger from contact of live metal with carpets is avoided. Provision should be made to facilitate inspection.
- (c) They shall be so arranged that the terminals are relieved of the direct pull of the conductor.
- (d) When used for medium and low pressures, every wall plug and socket must be independently controlled by a fixed switch on the live side of the plug and adjacent to it. A wall plug and socket combined with a switch for low pressures complies with this rule. To avoid leaving the flexible conductors alive, it is preferable that the portable fittings themselves be not provided with switches, but where such switches are used, at least one lamp of a group must be controlled only by the fixed switch on the live side of the socket. Portable appliances, using pressure exceeding 250 volts must be controlled only by wall switches. Woven contact mats and electric table cloths must be controlled from wall switches, and have red pilot lamps or other approved indicators in circuit.
- (e) The use of bayonet lamp-holder adaptors is permitted, provided that the current consumed by the apparatus connected thereto does not exceed $1\frac{1}{2}$ amperes.

CEILING ROSES.

76. Ceiling roses must be used for low pressures only, and—

- (a) The bases must be of incombustible, non-conducting, and moisture-proof material.
- (b) The covers must be of incombustible material, and must be either non-conducting or of rigid metal, clear of all live parts.
- (c) The terminals must be relieved of the direct pull of the attached conductor and fitting, and be so arranged that no short-circuit can take place.

FITTINGS FOR SUPPORTING LAMPS.

77. Wherever brackets, electroliers, or standards require to have the conductors threaded through tubes or channels formed in the metal work, such tubes or channels must be of ample size and have no sharp angles or projecting edges which would be liable to damage the insulating material, and the open ends should, where possible, be bushed. In cases where lamps or fittings are suspended by means of flexible conductors, suitable cord-grips must be used, which will not tend to chafe the insulation of the conductor or to press the cores of the conductor into contact with one another through the insulation. When the weight of a fitting, lamp, and shade exceeds 2 lb., additional support must be provided, independent of the flexible conductor.

Where possible the conductors should preferably be carried without joints through the fittings to the lamps, but where connexions at the fittings are unavoidable, special care must be taken to make the joints equal in conductivity and insulation to the rest of the work.

Fittings for gas-filled lamps of 200-watts capacity and over must be ventilated.

LAMP HOLDERS.

78. Lampholders must—

- (a) be incombustible;
- (b) not be hung from flexible conductors exposed to the weather;

- (c) be fitted with cord grips unless attached to a fitting. For large lamps the conductors near the lamp terminals must be spaced apart;
- (d) be of approved design for lamps taking more than 1½ amperes.

The use of switch-holders or key-sockets is not permitted.

A portable hand-lamp must be provided with a guard, which must not be in metallic contact with the lampholder.

After a date to be announced by the Governor in Council in the Government Gazette, but not sooner than the 1st day of January, 1926, holders intended to be used with adaptors, with gas-filled lamps of 150 watts and upwards and with radiator lamps, will be required to be of such pattern and construction as can be approved as adequate and suitable for sustained service and protracted use.

ARC LAMPS.

79. Arc lamps must be—

- (a) Guarded by lanterns or globes arranged to intercept falling particles of carbon, excepting that lanterns or globes may be dispensed with where an open arc is essential, as in photography, and where no combustible material is present, as in a foundry; but the flooring immediately under the lamp, if of a combustible nature, must be protected from falling particles of carbon. Open arc lamps, in the presence of combustible matter, must have metal reflectors rigidly attached beneath the arc, which at all times must be below the level of the upper edge of the reflector. The reflector must project at least 15 inches, and in hazardous risks 21 inches, measured horizontally beyond the arc on all sides.
- (b) Insulated from their support.
- (c) Fixed so that their cases cannot come into contact with any metallic object.
- (d) Controlled by double-pole switches and protected by a fuse on each pole.
- (e) When arc lamps are suspended from pulleys and are lowered for the purpose of cleaning and re-carboning, standard conductors must be used for the leads if such leads go direct to the lamp.

INCANDESCENT LAMPS.

80. Incandescent lamps must be—

- (a) Placed apart from combustible materials unless specially protected. Shades made of combustible materials must be kept free from contact with the lamps and their holders by suitable guards or supports. The use of celluloid or similar material for shades or candle tubes is strictly prohibited.
- (b) Fitted with guards if placed in positions where goods are liable to be stacked in contact with them.
- (c) Enclosed with their holders in air-tight fittings of thick glass, if placed in positions where they are likely to be exposed to—
 - (i) Inflammable vapour or gas, such as may be found in stores containing volatile spirits (benzine, petrol, &c.), cleaning pits of motor garages, &c.
 - (ii) Excessive dust or flyings, such as may be found in dust rooms and raising rooms.

81. The use of cord-grips on portable appliances is necessary, and especially for large lamps it is required that the conductors near the lamp terminals be spaced apart.

82. Lamp caps of which the insulating material is hydroscopic must not be used.

83. The connexions to the terminals of the lamp tube of mercury vapour lamps must be so constructed that loose contact or overheating cannot occur. The resistance and solenoid must be completely enclosed in a metal case, and any apertures in the case for ventilating purposes shall be on the sides only and must be covered with fine wire gauze.

In the case of gas-filled lamps of 300-watts capacity and over, the insulation of the conductors within a distance of at least 12 inches of the holder shall be additionally protected by a fire-resisting covering. Such lamps shall be placed well clear of all inflammable material.

HEATERS AND COOKING DEVICES

84. When heaters or cooking devices are to be used, the following requirements shall be observed:—

- (a) Heaters shall be so constructed and mounted that their supports and connexions cannot become overheated, precautions being taken with regard to their surroundings, as in the case of non-electrical heating appliances. They must not be placed in close proximity to combustible material unless suitably protected.
- (b) In private residences the capacity of mains, main switches, and main fuses and sub-mains controlling groups of final circuits of heating points shall be so determined as not to exceed the following rating:—

5 amperes for the first power point,
2 amperes for each additional point,

provided that the minimum size cable under the above diversity factor rating is 7/029 and the minimum size switch and fuse control is 18 amperes. This rating does not apply to the capacity of the wire required for final circuits whereon each power point must be allowed for at a minimum of 1,000 watts with a maximum of 15 amperes on any final circuit.

- (c) Conductors to all heating and cooking devices using more than 3 amperes must not be of smaller section than that of 40/36 S.W.G.

- (d) Electric irons and all other portable appliances with unearthed frames must not be installed where the operator is in contact with a conducting floor, or the appliance is used within touching distance of earthed metal, unless the frame is effectively earthed through a third wire.

- (e) As regards ranges, stoves, and ovens—

I. Supply to these may be two-wire, three-wire, or three-phase four-wire, and of such maximum unbalanced limitation only as the Supply Authority may, subject to Regulation 9, stipulate.

II. The supply when brought into consumer's premises must be taken from separate pairs of terminals, arranged to minimize danger of shock, and the wiring from these terminals, including that behind the distribution boards, must be kept distinct. Where more than one pair of conductors is required, the separate circuits, each consisting of one outer and one neutral conductor, may be run in one conduit, but each circuit must be switched and fused in pairs at the main board or distribution board before entering the conduit. All "outers" must be coloured red, and all wires be easily identified at each end.

III. The manner of connecting the circuits with the stove, &c., may either be—

- (i) by terminating the wires (run in conduit) at wall switches and three-pin plugs situated adjacent to the stove. Connexion therefrom to stove shall be made by means of flexible, protected by wire braiding. The braiding shall be used for earthing, and shall be mechanically connected to the stove and to the plug in such a manner as to obviate the conductors and insulation being stressed. The three-pin plug shall be of such design as to prevent the possibility of wrong insertion, and the third pin shall be used as an earthing connexion. The earthing shall be positively done by means of a continuous ground wire as set out in Regulation 118 (1) in regard to motor frames, &c.;

- (ii) alternatively, that conductors and conduit are brought directly to the terminal enclosure of the stove. In all such case the conduit must be securely attached to the stove, which must not be capable of movement or change of position.

IV. Except where the design of the switches upon the oven makes adequate provision otherwise, metal covers and metal switch-knobs must be effectively earthed in such way as will prevent their being removed unless the earthing wire is first disconnected.

V. Each element shall be controlled by a single-pole quick-break switch of an approved form. Types in which the handle can be readily unscrewed and the cover fall off, or which otherwise, in the opinion of the Commission, are dangerous, shall not be allowed. It must be ensured that all switches shall be on the active conductor.

VI. All current-carrying parts of elements must be efficiently protected so as to prevent liability of contact therewith, or of short circuiting of same. The protecting guards, if of metal, must be fixed in position and make efficient contact with the earthed frame-work of the stove. This is regarded as the more necessary in that occasion arises in some stoves for having more than one outer conductor within the oven.

VII. Fuses, if provided on stoves, must be conveniently located and must be of the safe-replacement hand-grip type, having no bare metal exposed.

- (f) Except as otherwise expressly provided, where the surroundings are such that it will be possible for personal contact to be made between any part of the device and earth, the following precaution shall be observed:—

- I. Metal-covered switches, if used, must have the cover and also the handles (if of metal) earthed.
- II. Fuses shall be of the cartridge, plug or other similar replacement type, and of such design that they can be replaced readily without risk of shock.
- III. Devices shall have all metal work, which does not form part of the electrical circuit, permanently connected to earth.
- IV. All metal work forming part of the electrical circuit shall be so protected that it is impossible to touch it whilst current is switched on.

85. Portable heaters using low pressures must have at least one section controlled solely on the live side of the connector, and, if using medium pressures, must be controlled solely by wall switches. These switches must be on the live side of the connector. It must be assumed that each heating point may be loaded to at least 1,000 watts.

86. Electric iron and similar non-luminous electrical appliances should be protected by some form of automatic cut-off approved by the Inspector, which will operate in the event of the appliance exceeding the maximum safe temperature. Where not so protected, some indicating device, such as a red pilot lamp or audible indicator, approved by the Inspector, must be connected in circuit therewith.

RESISTANCES, CHOKING COILS, AND ALTERNATING CURRENT TRANSFORMERS.

87. (a) The live parts of resistances, choking coils, and alternating current transformers must be—

- (i) carried on frames or supports, and unless otherwise guarded from approach, enclosed in cases. These frames, supports, and cases must be of incombustible material, efficiently insulated from conductors;
- (ii) amply ventilated or oil-cooled. Where there is any danger of inflammable dust or flyings entering, apertures in the cases must be protected by fine-mesh wire gauzes, or by finely-perforated sheet metal;
- (iii) so proportioned that their cases cannot attain a temperature exceeding 176 degrees Fahrenheit (80 degrees centigrade);
- (iv) so fixed that no unprotected combustible material is within 6 inches of the frames or cases containing them, or within 24 inches, measured vertically, above them.

(b) Auto-transformers for lighting purposes are not permitted on circuits operating at more than 250 volts.

(c) Double-wound transformers with a secondary voltage not exceeding 12 volts may be used in connexion with ordinary bell installations, provided such transformers are capable of withstanding a short circuit of the secondary coils through 10 feet of No. 20 copper wire for one hour without overheating. Such transformers must be protected by a fuse on each pole.

MOTORS.

88. Motors rated at more than one-third horse-power must comply with the following requirements:—

- (a) They must be protected from damp, dust, and mechanical injury.
- (b) They must be so placed that no unprotected woodwork or combustible material is within a distance of 12 inches from them, measured horizontally, or within 4 feet, measured vertically above them, unless they are of the totally enclosed type.
- (c) Where mounted upon wood flooring, they must have a sheet of metal inserted between them and such flooring. If elevated over wood flooring they must either rest upon a metal plate or have a metal tray suspended immediately below them.
- (d) In positions exposed to inflammable dust or flyings, or where inflammable materials are manipulated or stored, they must be totally enclosed, pipe ventilated, or semi-enclosed. Any ventilating openings in the cases of continuous current machines must be protected by fine mesh wire gauze or by finely perforated sheet metal, and all slip rings, commutators, and brushes must be totally enclosed. Inspection openings fitted with plate-glass or fine mesh wire gauze are allowed. Induction motors may be protected machines, but slip rings or brushes or any sliding contacts must be completely enclosed in metal cases.

(e) Motors must be controlled by a multi-pole switch and protected by a fuse or automatic overload circuit-breaker on each pole. All motors on lifts, hoists, and conveyors exceeding 5 horse-power must be protected by automatic circuit-breaker on each conductor; such circuit-breakers must be mechanically linked when connected, as referred to in Regulation 11.

(f) Every direct current motor over half horse-power must be fitted with a starting switch with a no-volt release and a series starting resistance.

(g) The shunt circuit of every direct-current motor above half horse-power must be so connected that the field is excited not later than the first step of the armature starting resistance.

(h) Every alternating-current motor must be provided with a suitable starting switch. Every installation having motors of a total capacity exceeding three horse-power must be provided with a main no-volt circuit breaker which will ensure the opening of all phases simultaneously in the event of the failure to supply, or alternatively, each motor starter must be provided with a no-volt release operating in a similar manner.

(i) Motors and starters must have their frames connected to earth. In no case must the conduit be used as the earth conductor.

(j) Motors must be provided with suitable terminal blocks, which must be protected.

DYNAMOS.

89. Dynamos must—

- (a) not be placed in positions exposed to inflammable dust or flyings nor where combustible materials are manipulated or stored;
- (b) be protected from damp, dust, and mechanical injury;
- (c) be so placed that no unprotected woodwork or other combustible material is within a distance of 12 inches from them, measured horizontally, or within 4 feet, measured vertically, above them;
- (d) have a sheet of metal inserted between them and such flooring, where mounted upon or above wood flooring;
- (e) be controlled by a double-pole switch and protected by a fuse or circuit-breaker on each pole, except with earthed concentric wiring;
- (f) be provided with a suitable terminal block attached to the dynamo. All terminals must be covered.

ACCUMULATORS AND OTHER BATTERIES.

90. The room in which the accumulators or primary batteries are placed must be well ventilated.

91. The case of each cell must stand on insulators. Glass cells having a base measuring more than 18 inches in length or breadth must have intermediate supports.

92. Bare conductors must be used for end and regulating cell connexions.

93. The method of control must be as described in Regulation 88 (c).

94. Portable accumulators with celluloid cases must be so arranged and placed during recharging that if they become ignited the fire cannot spread.

TESTING.

95. The current must not be switched on until the finished work has passed the following tests, which are to be made with not less than twice the working pressure:—

The insulation resistance between conductors and between conductors and earth of the whole or any part of the wiring must not be less than 30 in megohms divided by the number of points under test.

Separate tests must be taken of the insulation of the sub-circuits, and these tests must be made on the installation as a whole and on its individual sub-circuits.

Any motor heating appliance, are lamp, &c., together with its control gear or other accessory apparatus, must have an insulation resistance on the live parts of not less than 1 megohm from the frame or case.

In the case of lighting circuits, the whole of the lamps having been connected to the conductors, and all switches being on and fuses in circuit, the insulation resistance of the whole or any part of the installation must not be less in megohms than 25 divided by the number of lamps.

96. Before making any repairs or alterations, the circuits which are to be handled must be entirely disconnected from the supply. All dead and disused wire and fittings which do not conform to these rules must be removed from the buildings wherever possible.

TEMPORARY WIRING.

The following Regulations, 97 to 106 inclusive, shall apply solely to temporary installations:—

97. Temporary wiring will not be allowed without a permit. The Supply Authority may give a permit for a temporary installation to be connected for a period of not more than one month. In the event of any such installation being required for a period exceeding one month, a fresh permit must be obtained.

98. On the expiration of one month or the period extended as aforesaid, the temporary installation must be entirely removed.

99. Each circuit shall be protected by fuses, and the entire installation controlled by a multiple switch. Such switches and fuses shall be mounted on incombustible material, protected from weather and moisture securely fixed.

100. Temporary installations which involve an increase of the loading of any existing installation by more than 25 per cent. shall be entirely controlled by separate main fuses and switches.

101. All temporary fuses and switches must be readily accessible and under the control of a responsible person.

102. All wire used shall be of 600 megohm grade.

103. Where suspended, the wires must be separated by approved insulators placed not more than 40 feet apart.

104. No single circuit shall serve more than 60 lamps, nor shall the maximum loading of any circuit exceed 2,400 watts.

105. If the leads are looped into the lampholders, they shall be securely bound together for a distance of at least one inch above the lampholder.

106. All joints shall be soldered and insulated.

INSTALLATIONS SUPPLIED FROM PRIVATELY-OWNED GENERATING PLANTS AT PRESSURES NOT EXCEEDING 50 VOLTS.

107. Every installation supplied with electricity from privately-owned generating plants at pressures not exceeding 50 volts must be protected by a double-pole main switch and a main fuse on each pole.

108. All apparatus must be adequately protected by switches and fuses, which must be fixed in accessible positions, free from possibility of mechanical damage. The bases and covers of fuses must be of incombustible, non-conducting, and moisture-proof material.

109. Conductors in dry places may be fixed with metal staples, provided the insulation on such conductor under the staple is additionally protected by some insulating material. Conductors must be fixed at least half an inch clear of all brick, cement, or iron work, and all damp surfaces. Wiring which may be subjected to mechanical damage must be provided with additional protection.

110. All wiring must be fixed clear of gas-pipes and fittings.

111. The carrying capacity of wires and cables must not exceed that allowed under Regulations 28 to 32.

112. Conductors must be of tinned copper, and must be insulated with at least one coat of cotton, one coat of pure india-rubber, one coat of felt tape, then braided and compounded.

113. In special cases additional protection, both as regards insulation protection and fixing of conductors, may be required by the Inspector.

114. The insulation resistance to earth or between conductors of any installation shall not be allowed to fall below 0.25 megohm when tested at a pressure of 100 volts.

115. No conductor of less sectional area than .0015 (No. 18 S.W.G.) wire shall be used.

116. All conductors must radiate from distributing centres. No final sub-circuit for incandescent lighting may carry more than 8 amperes. A single-pole switch and fuse, both fitted in the positive conductor, is considered suitable protection for sub-circuits.

AERIAL OR OUTDOOR CONDUCTORS.

117. All conductors used outside of buildings must be stranded. The "neutral" service wire to a consumer's premises may be uninsulated, but the "outer" conductor or conductors must be insulated for a distance of not less than 7 feet in any direction from the building. All other aerial or outdoor wiring upon a consumer's premises shall be continuously insulated, and shall be erected in conformity with the following:—

- (a) An aerial conductor for a span not exceeding 75 feet between supports shall be of not less than 7/.036 cable, and for greater spans shall not be of less than 7/.044 cable. The maximum distance between points of support shall in no case exceed 135 feet. In no case shall the height from the ground be less than 10 feet.

- (b) Every support for an aerial line must be of durable material and properly stayed against forces due to wind pressure and change of direction of the line, and all conductors must be so spaced that they cannot touch each other.

- (c) Any aerial line must be at least 7 feet above any roof which is accessible for traffic or resort and at least 2 feet above the highest point of all other roofs over which it passes. It must be efficiently supported on porcelain insulators; button insulators will not be allowed for this purpose.

- (d) At point of entry to a building the connexion of an aerial line must be drop-looped outside, the holes through wall being bushed with incombustible non-absorbent tubes slanting upward towards the inside of the building.

- (e) For spans not exceeding 75 feet, 600 megohm cable insulated in accordance with Regulation 32 may be employed. For spans exceeding 75 feet, hard-drawn cable, insulated with three braidings, each of which is impregnated with a dense moisture-resisting compound, must be employed.

- (f) All joints must be mechanically strong, and must be efficiently soldered. They must be well insulated with rubber tape and with adhesive tape. When erected continuation joints in spans must, so far as possible, be inaccessible.

Aerial or outdoor wires must be fastened off at terminal insulators, and joints with leading-in wires, if used, must be made to the "tail" of the aerial wire. The erection and installation of aerial or outdoor wiring must be governed by considerations of permanent safety in all respects.

REGULATIONS IN REFERENCE TO SUPPLY OF ELECTRICITY AT PRESSURES IN EXCESS OF 250 VOLTS.

118. The pressure of supply to any consumer shall not exceed 250 volts except for special purposes, for which a medium-pressure supply may be given upon the consumer undertaking to comply with the conditions hereinafter prescribed and upon the Supply Authority forwarding to the Commission written notice of its intention to give such supply, and the Supply Authority shall not give any such supply unless it has found that the consumers installation complies with the following conditions, viz.:—

Where energy is to be supplied for power purposes, the supply to every installation under these Regulations shall be arranged and controlled as follows:—

- (a) From the Supply Authority's terminals or meter, connexion must be made either to an approved type of combined automatic overload and no-volt circuit breaker, having a trip on each pole, or to an efficient hand-operated main switch and to main fuses of the safe-replacement type on each pole. Where the full-load supply exceeds 250 amperes, an automatic overload switch or circuit-breaker must be used.
- (b) Isolating links must be inserted between oil switches or oil circuit-breakers and the supply terminals.
- (c) Bus-bar connexions must be provided from the circuit-breaker or main switch, together with fuses or other automatic cut-off devices for protection of circuits leading therefrom.
- (d) Where the switchboard appliances are not back-connected, the space between the wall and the back of the board need not exceed 2½ inches. Where switchboard appliances are back-connected a minimum spacing of 4 inches must be provided between any live metal and a wall.
- (e) Where the size of switchboard exceeds 24 inches x 24 inches or 4 square feet, the distance from wall must be increased to 12 inches. Boards exceeding 10 square feet in area must be mounted on standards supported by the floor, and must have a clear space of 2 ft. 6 in. between the wall and any live metal. All stays and conductors must be so arranged as to allow of head room of not less than 6 feet.
- (f) The spacing between live parts of opposite polarity of switches or of fuses, unless effectively screened, must be not less than 3½ inches.
- (g) Every installation exceeding 3 H.P. must be provided either with a main no-volt release attachment, which will ensure the simultaneous opening of all poles on the supply, or, alternatively, each motor must be provided with a no-volt attachment operating in a similar manner.
- (h) Each individual motor circuit must originate at a distribution board which is either incorporated with the main switchboard or is connected thereto by means of sub-main circuits.
- (i) The size of the conductors forming the connexions to motors or otherwise in connexion with the supply on the consumer's premises shall be in accordance with Tables 2 and 3; but the sectional area of any conductor shall be not less than that of a single wire of 1.044-in. diameter. When conductors are equal to .00455 square inch (7.22) or larger the connexions to motors, switches, and other apparatus shall be made by means of lugs. Where the type of terminal renders it impracticable to use a lug the strands must be soldered together for connexion. Where there is any possibility of stress on the lugs the conductors must be secured, in addition to the soldering, by some mechanical device, such as one or more set screws. Alternatively, approved solderless terminations or tags may be used.

- (j) The consumer's wires and any service lines upon the consumer's premises must be completely enclosed in strong metal tubing, united by some form of screwed or grip joint, giving ample and permanent electrical conductivity and mechanical rigidity throughout, and all free ends of such tubing shall be provided with suitable bushes firmly fixed therein, or shall have equivalent approved protection. Where conduit is run at the floor level, or where protecting conductors carrying 50 amperes or over, seamless conduit, Class B, must be used. In butchers' chopping rooms, dairies, breweries, stables, and places liable to be damp, Class B conduit must also be used.
- (k) All moving contacts and bare conductors in connexion with electrically-driven cranes and similar appliances must be so placed and guarded as to prevent danger so far as is reasonably practicable to the satisfaction of the Inspector.
- (l) In special circumstances, and after application to and consent by the Supervising Officer of the Commission, conductors may be run on insulators inside premises.
- (m) Every sub-main circuit or motor circuit must be protected at its origin by an efficient fuse or other automatic cut-off on each pole, but where the rated full-load current of any motor exceed 60 amperes, automatic maximum current circuit-breakers must be used. All circuit-breakers must be provided with an overload trip coil on each pole.
- (n) The design of any fuse must be such that the replacement of it will not involve the touching of any charged metal parts.
- (o) Motors, switches, starting devices, automatic circuit-breakers and fuses must be enclosed and protected so that there will be no danger of shock being received in the ordinary handling thereof, or of a fire being caused by their normal or abnormal action. Where only one motor is installed it shall not be necessary to provide a separate switch for the motor if the switch controlling the installation be readily accessible by the person in charge of the motor.
- (p) Every motor shall be controlled by means of an efficient switch placed in such a position as to be easily handled by the person in charge of the motor, and connected so that by its means all pressure can be cut off from any regulating switch, resistance, or other device in connexion therewith.
- (q) All motors in which the full-load current does not exceed 100 amperes must be provided with suitable terminal blocks, which must be protected.
- (r) The frame of every electric motor, all metal tubing, and any metal forming the cover of, or enclosing any portion of an electric line, if such cover be without an efficient insulating lining, must be effectively connected with earth in such manner as not to allow of difference of potential between the earthing connexions and the general mass of the earth being set up. All earth connexions must be in sight and easily accessible. The earthing cable must be stranded, continuous from motor and starting frames to earthing point, securely fastened to supports, and enclosed in metal tubing where liable to mechanical injury. The carrying capacity of the earthing conductor must be not less than one-half of the rated size of the conductor to be protected. The minimum size of any earthing conductor shall be 7/.029.
- (s) A notice must be fixed in a conspicuous position at every motor and switchboard in connexion with the supply forbidding unauthorized persons to touch the motor or apparatus, and stating that the maintenance of the consumer's lines and apparatus in a safe condition in accordance with the Regulations under the Electric Light and Power Act is a condition under which the supply of electricity is given and continued.

119. Unless special permission is given in writing by the authorities concerned prior to the commencement of work, the circuits of any electric traction system employing an earthed return must under no circumstances be taken into, on, or through any building for light or power purposes, save in the case of the power and car houses or other buildings forming part of the system.

129. Compliance with these Regulations shall not excuse any person from any liability for nuisance or for negligence under any law or contract of insurance, or any other contract, nor would such compliance be adequate to ensure a reasonable degree of safety in an installation for receiving electricity at a pressure exceeding 650 volts or in any unusual circumstances.

130. Where medium pressures are used adequate precautions must be taken, either by earthing or by other suitable means, to prevent any metal other than the conductor (such as the cases of switches, fuses, starters, and the frames of dynamos and motors) from becoming electrically charged.

APPENDIX I.

CONDUIT TABLE.

Extracts from British Standard Specification, No. 31, for Steel Conduits for Electrical Wiring (Rule 63).

1. Steel conduits for electrical wiring shall be either close joint, brazed, welded, or solid drawn. They shall be of mild steel, free from burrs, flaws, or other defects. They and their accessories, when these are made of steel or iron, shall be stove-enamelled or galvanized inside and out by an approved process.

2. Two classes of steel conduit for electrical wiring are recognized as standard—

- (a) PLAIN.
- (b) SCREWED.

Class (a) consists of light-gauge conduit of the thickness and dimensions given in the annexed Table. The socket joining the lengths of tubing is a sleeve, and neither the ends of the conduit nor the socket are screwed.

Class (b) consists of a heavy-gauge conduit of the thickness and dimensions given in the annexed Table. Both ends of the conduit are screwed with the Whitworth form of thread.

The couplers are also screwed inside throughout their entire length with a right-handed thread of Whitworth form, but having the number of threads per inch given in the annexed Table. The screwed portions of both conduits and couplers are not enamelled.

3. Both classes of conduits shall be manufactured to the respective outside diameters given in the annexed Table, Appendix I.

NOTES.

The external diameter is that by which the size of the conduit is known.

For wires having radial dielectric thickness of 62 mils. take one size larger up to and including 7/052.

In each case the nearest old standard gauge of wire is named.

* In these cases two additional conductors may be inserted, provided the external diameter of same does not exceed one-half the diameter of the conductors mentioned in table.

TENDERS FOR GRAZING LANDS.

FOR THE PERIOD 1ST DECEMBER, 1925, TO 30TH SEPTEMBER, 1926, EXCEPT WHERE OTHERWISE STATED.

Tender Forms can be obtained on application to the Lands Department, Melbourne, or any of the Land Offices in the country.

Tenders should be placed in the Crown Lands Office Tender-box on or before Noon on Monday, 30th November, 1925.

NOTE.—No tender will be accepted unless the fee for the full period and fee of Five shillings for licence are forwarded.

TENDERS will be received on or before Noon on Monday, 30th November, 1925, for the right to depasture stock on the following unappropriated portions of land subject to the Regulations approved by the Governor in Council and also the subjoined Special Conditions.

Every licence granted under section 121 of the Land Act 1915 shall be subject to the conditions set forth in the Schedule hereto and to such special conditions and payment in advance of such fee as the Minister may determine, and shall be issued by an officer of the Department of Lands and Survey duly authorized in that behalf.

CONDITIONS.

1. The issue of this licence shall not prevent the land comprised therein, or any part or parts thereof, being sold, leased, licensed, alienated, or dealt with under any of the provisions of the Land Acts, except under the 121st section of the Land Act 1915, or being resumed by order of the Governor or Administrator of the Government of Victoria, with the advice of the Executive Council.

2. In case the said land, or any part thereof, should be sold, leased, licensed, alienated, dealt with, or resumed as aforesaid, the licensee shall not be entitled to any compensation other than that which the responsible Minister of the Crown for the time being administering the Land Acts may think fit.

3. This licence is subject to the rights of the holders of miners' rights or of mining leases now issued or hereafter to be issued to enter upon the allotment hereby licensed, and to search for gold, and to mine thereon, and to erect and occupy mining plant and machinery, without making any compensation to the licensee, his executors, administrators, or assigns, for surface or other damage.

4. Subject to these conditions the licensee shall be entitled to use the land for the purpose for which this licence has been granted until such land, or any part thereof, has been sold, leased, licensed, alienated, dealt with, or resumed as aforesaid, and thereupon all the interest of the licensee therein shall cease and be determined.

5. No land comprised in roads from time to time surveyed and marked out within the boundaries of the land comprised in this licence shall be deemed within its operation.

6. This licence shall entitle the holder thereof, during the period for which it is granted, to use the land therein comprised for depasturing purposes only, but shall not confer any right to build thereon, or to cultivate or, without the permission of the Minister, fence any portion thereof, or construct a dam or tank.

7. The taking in of stock for agistment or otherwise allowing the use of the land, or part thereof, without the authority in writing by the Minister, is forbidden.

8. That in the event of the Minister granting permission to fence the whole or any part of this area, the licensee shall provide gates or slip-panels in suitable places for the convenience of the public. No compensation will be allowed for fencing erected on boundaries of allotments alienated or in course of alienation.

9. That where improvements are authorized under section 123 of the Land Act 1915 the licensee shall notify, on completion, that such improvements have been made, otherwise the work will not be recognized.

10. The interest in this licence shall not be transferred without the consent of the Minister, and the payment of a fee of Ten shillings.

11. The licensee shall be liable to forfeiture if the licensee commit a breach of or neglect to comply with these conditions.

12. The publication of a notice in the Government Gazette, purporting to declare that the Governor or Administrator, with the advice aforesaid, has forfeited this licence, shall be conclusive evidence that the licence is forfeited.

13. The ring-barking of the timber upon the land by the licensee is forbidden, and he shall not be entitled to destroy or cut and take away any such timber.

14. Free access to water shall be kept open at all times for travelling or other stock and for persons desiring to take water for domestic purposes.

15. The licensee shall destroy all noxious weeds on the land, and on the half-width of the adjoining roads, and shall be responsible for the destruction of noxious weeds under the Vermin and Noxious Weeds Act 1922 in like manner as holders of freehold lands.

16. The licensee shall keep the land free from vermin, and, should he fail to do so, the licence shall be liable to forfeiture.

17. This licence is issued subject to the right of saw-millers, to graze on this area such horses and bullocks as are actually used in connexion with their licensed operations on this land.

18. The licensee shall thoroughly and effectively protect the land within the boundaries of his licensed area from fire, and shall extinguish any fire which may break out on such area or may spread to it. In the event of the area being damaged by fire, the licence may be forfeited, unless the licensee satisfy the Minister that neither he, directly or indirectly, nor his workmen or servants, were in any way responsible for such fire.

19. The licensee shall not interfere in any way with any survey marks on the land hereby licensed.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS.

1. The period of occupation will, except where otherwise specified, be for ten (10) months from 1st December, 1925, to 30th September, 1926.

2. The fee for the full period—for which the licence will be issued, and the fee for licence—must accompany the tender, otherwise the offer of the next highest tenderer who complies with this condition may be accepted.

3. Separate tenders must be lodged for each block.

4. Tenders to be addressed to the Secretary for Lands (Tender-box), Melbourne.

5. The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

6. Tenderers must give their full name, occupation, and ordinary postal address.

7. The areas are given as more or less, and all appropriated, alienated, or licensed lands (if any) within the boundaries are excluded.

8. The outgoing tenant has the option to remove any existing fencing owned by him within one month, or to require the incoming tenant to pay for it in accordance with the provisions of section 124, Land Act 1915.

This does not apply to cases where the land was the subject of an expired Grazing Area Lease. In all such cases, the incoming tenant will be held responsible for the care and maintenance of any improvements.

Plans can be seen and information may be obtained in this office.

Section 121, Land Act 1915, provides—

1. Where a licensee under section 121 of the Land Act 1915 has, with the consent of the Minister, enclosed with a substantial fence the land which is the subject of his licence, he may impound any cattle, sheep, or other animals found trespassing thereon.

2. Where the licensee holds land under the said section which is unfenced, he may, in any Court of competent jurisdiction, sue the owner of any cattle, sheep, or other animals for damages arising from trespass by such cattle, sheep, or other animals.
