REGULATIONS REGARDING THE TESTING BY AIR OR GAS PRESSURE, IN FACTORIES, OF ENCLOSED METAL VESSELS.

WHEREAS by section 64 of the Factories and Shops Act 1928, it is enacted that, if the Minister has certified that any manufacture, plant, process, or labour used in factories is dangerous to life or limb generally, the Governor in Council may make such Regulations as may be deemed necessary and reasonably practicable to decrease or prevent danger from such manufacture, plant, process or labour: And whereas the Honorable Edwin Joseph Mackrell, His Majesty's Minister of Labour for the State of Victoria, has certified that the process of testing in factories closed metal vessels by means of air or gas compressed above atmospheric pressure, other than the process of testing closed metal vessels which are—

- (1) vessels constructed primarily for the purpose of holding or storing air or gas under pressure greater than 30 lb. to the square inch above atmospheric pressure, or
- (2) boilers within the meaning of the Boilers Inspection Act 1928,

Now therefore His Excellency the Governor of the State of Victoria, by and with the advice of the Executive Council thereof, under the powers hereinbefore recited doth make the following Regulations relating to such dangerous process, that is to say:—

“receiver” means any closed vessel constructed primarily for the purpose of holding air under pressure greater than 30 lb. to the square inch above atmospheric pressure.

3. Except for the purpose of discovering porosity in a closed vessel or leaks in the seams thereof, and then only in the manner and subject to the conditions hereinafter stated, no person shall in any factory use air pressure for the purpose of testing any closed vessel.

4. The manner in which and the conditions subject to which air pressure may be used for the purpose of testing any closed vessel are as follows:—

(1) The compressed air shall be delivered to the closed vessel from a receiver (hereinafter in these Regulations called the “auxiliary receiver”), which shall receive its air pressure from a receiver (hereinafter in these Regulations called the “main receiver”) only by means of piping and a reducing valve so adjusted that the air pressure in the auxiliary receiver shall not at any time exceed 30 lb. to the square inch above atmospheric pressure.

(2) The main receiver and the auxiliary receiver shall each be constructed to withstand the same pressure and shall each be provided with—

- (i) a proper safety valve;
- (ii) a drain cock;
- (iii) a stop valve; and
- (iv) a proper pressure gauge which, in the case of that fitted to the auxiliary receiver, shall be graduated to show the pressure in pounds per square inch.

(3) The safety valve on the auxiliary receiver shall at all times be set to carry a pressure not exceeding 30 lb. to the square inch above atmospheric pressure.

5. If any person uses in any factory air pressure for the purpose of testing any closed vessel in contravention of these Regulations, such person and the occupier of the factory shall be severally guilty of an offence against these Regulations.

6. Nothing in these Regulations shall apply to the testing by means of air pressure of—

- (a) refrigerating machinery;
