BOILERS INSPECTION ACTS.

At the Executive Council Chamber, Melbourne, the twenty-second day of July, 1947.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Governor of Victoria.

Mr. Clarey

Mr. Hayes.

REGULATIONS UNDER THE BOILERS INSPECTION ACTS.

IN pursuance of the powers conferred upon him by the Boilers Inspection Acts and of all other powers thereunto enabling, His Excellency the Governor of Victoria, by and with the advice of the Executive Council thereof, doth hereby make the following Regulations, that is to say:—

CITATION AND COMMENCEMENT.

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Boilers Inspection Regulations 1947 and shall come into operation upon the first day of August, 1947.

INTRODUCTORY.

2. All Regulations heretofore made under the Boilers Inspection Act 1928 or any corresponding previous enactment are hereby repealed.

3. In these Regulations, unless inconsistent with the context or subject-matter—

“Air Receiver” or “Gas Receiver” means any closed vessel in which air or gas (as the case may be) is held under pressure greater than thirty pounds to the square inch above atmospheric pressure.

“British Board of Trade rules relating to the design construction and survey of marine boilers” means the rules of the Board of Trade England relating to the design construction and survey of marine boilers as contained in the Instructions as to the Survey of Passenger Steamships Volume One issued by the Ministry of War Transport and published by His Majesty's Stationery Office in 1946.

“Boiler” includes steam boiler, air receiver and gas receiver.

“Hiller's Rules” means the rules as to the material construction and design of unfired pressure vessels contained in Steam Boiler Construction by Edward G. Hiller, Chief Engineer of The National Boiler and General Insurance Company Limited, third edition, published at Manchester, England, by Charlton and Knowles in 1931.

“Lloyd's Rules for Welded Pressure Vessels” means the rules contained in Rules for Welded Pressure Vessels printed and published by Lloyd's Register of Shipping of London, England, in 1946, with the additions and amendments thereto contained in Notice No. 1847 issued by the said Register of Shipping in November, 1946.

“Steam boiler” means any closed vessel used for generating or holding steam under pressure greater than atmospheric pressure and includes a digester.

“Welded boiler” means any boiler the joints of which are welded.

CALCULATION OF PRESSURE AND HORSE-POWER OF BOILERS.

4. Subject to the next two succeeding Regulations, the mode in which the pressure which any boiler is calculated to sustain shall be ascertained as follows:—

(a) In the case of a boiler other than a welded boiler—

(i) by applying the British Board of Trade rules relating to the design, construction and survey of marine boilers, where such is practicable;

(ii) when it is not practicable to apply such last-mentioned rules, by such mode as is approved by the Chief Inspector of Boilers; and

(b) In the case of a welded boiler—

by applying Lloyd's Rules for Welded Pressure Vessels.

5. Where the total gross area of surface occupied by the tubes of a boiler in any one plate, being the sum of one or more areas enclosed within lines touching the outsides of the outer rows of tubes, does not exceed 7 square feet, the mode in which the pressure which any tube plate of such boiler is calculated to sustain shall be in accordance with the following rules:—

- (1) (a) The parts of tube plates which lie outside the nests of tubes shall be stayed or supported wherever the size of the area of plate subject to steam pressure necessitates staying or support, either by marginal stay tubes or other means.
- (b) Where stay tubes are required they shall be strong enough to support the load due to the steam pressure on the plate without taking account of any aid from the plain tubes contained in the areas.
- (c) The stiffness of the tubes, plates, and pitch of stays within the nests of tubes where stay tubes are required, and where marginal stay tubes are required in support of blank spaces adjacent to or between the nests, shall be determined by flat plate rules under the British Board of Trade rules relating to the design, construction and survey of marine boilers.
The requirements for stay tubes shall be as specified in the British Board of Trade rules relating to the design, construction and survey of marine boilers.
- (d) Tube plates within the nests of tubes, whether fitted with stay tubes or not, shall comply with requirements of paragraph (2) in regard to thickness and cross section between tubes.

- (2) Minimum Thickness and Cross Section.—To provide a secure attachment for plain tubes in the tube plates, the thickness and cross section of the plate between the tube holes shall not be less than—

Steel tube plate—

$.125D + .2$  = minimum thickness in inches.

$.17D + .025$  = minimum cross section in square inches.

Copper tube plate—

$.2D + .4$  = minimum thickness in inches.

$.527D - .263$  = minimum cross section in square inches.

D is the diameter in inches of the tube at the part of attachment to tube plate.

- (3) Holding Power of Plain Tubes.—(a) Where tube plates are not specially stayed in nests of tubes, the working pressure, based on the holding power of the tubes, shall not exceed that found by the following formula:—

$$W.P. = \frac{C \times D}{A}$$

D is the diameter of tube at the part of attachment to tube plate in inches.

A is the area in square inches of tube plate supported by each tube, which generally may be taken as the product of the horizontal and vertical pitches of the tubes less the area of the tube itself.

C = 470 for tubes expanded into parallel holes in steel or iron tube plates.

C = 530 for tubes expanded into taper holes in steel or iron tube plates.

For copper tube plates or copper or brass tubes the appropriate co-efficient should be reduced 20 per cent.

Where the thickness and cross section of the tube plates are less than the minimum prescribed in paragraph (2), the appropriate co-efficient shall be reduced in proportion to the deficit.

Where no stay tubes are fitted the tubes at the fire-box end shall be beaded over or bell-mouthed.

(b) In the unstayed tube plates of loco-type boilers and in other tube plates in which stay tubes are not required, the support afforded by the plain tubes shall not be taken to extend beyond the lines enclosing the outer edges of the tubes. Parts of flat plate outside this line shall either lie in the plate margin or be separately supported. No account need be taken of the stiffness of tube plate in the nests of tubes when the above conditions are fulfilled.

The requirements of this clause are applicable only to expanded smoke and water tubes in flat continuous tube plates containing more than one row of tubes.

- (4) Tube Plates, other than Ends, of Vertical Boilers Forming Parts of Outer Shell.—(a) When vertical boilers have a nest or nests of horizontal tubes so that there is a direct tension on the tube plates due to the vertical load on the boiler ends, or to their acting as horizontal ties across the shell, the thickness of the tube plates and the spacing of the tubes shall be such that the section of metal taking the load is sufficient to keep the stress within that allowed on the shell plates.

(b) Each alternate tube in the outer vertical rows of tubes shall be a stay tube. The tube plates between the stay tube shall be in accordance with the rules for tube plates, and in addition, considered as part of shell, the maximum working pressures—

$$W.P. = \frac{17 \cdot 24 (T - 2) \times (P - D) \times S}{R \times P}$$

T is the thickness of the tube plate in 32nds of an inch.

P is the vertical pitch of the tubes in inches.

D is the diameter of the tube holes in inches.

S is the minimum tensile breaking strength of the tube plate in tons per square inch, or whatever is allowed for them.

R is the radial distance of the centre of the outer row of tube holes from the axis of the shell in inches.

- (5) Copper Tubes.—Copper tubes up to 1 inch in external diameter may be used for small boilers; such tubes shall not be less than 12 S.W.G. (.104 inch) thick.
- (6) Brass and Copper Tubes.—The thickness of tapered brass and copper smoke tubes for locomotive boilers shall, in the case of tubes of an external diameter of 1½ to 1¾ inches inclusive, be not less than 12 S.W.G. (.104 inch) at the smoke-box end and 10 S.W.G. (.128 inch) at the other; and in the case of tubes of an external diameter of 2 to 2½ inches inclusive, the thickness at the smoke-box end shall not be less than 11 S.W.G. (.116 inch), and at the other end not less than 9 S.W.G. (.144 inch).

6. Where the total gross area of surface occupied by the tubes of a boiler in any one plate, being the sum of one or more areas enclosed within lines touching the outsides of the outer rows of tubes, exceeds 7 square feet, the mode in which the pressure which any tube of such boiler is calculated to sustain shall be in accordance with Hiller's Rules.

7. The method of reckoning the horse-power of a steam boiler shall be on the basis that every 10 square feet of heating surface is equivalent to one horse-power.

FITTINGS TO BE PROVIDED ON BOILERS.

8. (1) Every steam boiler shall be provided with—
- (a) a proper steam gauge;
  - (b) two water gauges, or one water gauge and three test cocks;
  - (c) two proper safety valves of a design approved by the Chief Inspector of Boilers, one such safety valve to be covered over and locked and the key kept in the possession of the manager or owner; and
  - (d) other proper appurtenances fittings and connections.

(2) Every water gauge shall be fitted with strong metal guards around the glass.

(3) If the working pressure of any steam boiler exceeds ten pounds a square inch, every water gauge, blow-down cock, and check cock fitted to such steam boiler shall be of the packed gland type.

9. (1) Every air receiver and every gas receiver shall be provided with—

- (a) a proper safety valve of a design approved by the Chief Inspector of Boilers and not less than three-quarters of an inch in diameter;
- (b) a proper pressure gauge, with a face not less than 4 inches in diameter;
- (c) one drain cock not less than  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch in diameter, such cock to be fitted to the lowest part of the receiver; and
- (d) one Y piece, fitted with two cocks to enable the screwing on of an Inspector's test-gauge.

(2) Every air receiver and every gas receiver—

- (a) the diameter of which exceeds 30 inches, shall be fitted with a manhole door measuring not less than 15 inches by 11 inches and so placed as to enable the interior of such receiver to be conveniently inspected;
- (b) the diameter of which exceeds 18 inches but does not exceed 30 inches, shall be fitted with two inspection doors each of which shall measure not less than 7 inches by  $5\frac{1}{2}$  inches; and
- (c) the diameter of which does not exceed 18 inches shall be fitted with two inspection doors each of which shall measure not less than 4 inches by 3 inches.

(3) Where, by this Regulation two inspection doors are required to be fitted to any air receiver or any gas receiver, such doors shall be fitted on opposite sides of and near the ends of the receiver and shall be so placed as to enable to be obtained a view of each end of the receiver and, if the receiver is welded, a view of the weld.

10. (1) Where any boiler is fitted with a lever safety valve which is adjusted by means of a weight attached or hung (whether loosely or otherwise) from the arm of the lever, the owner of the boiler shall not permit any part of the lever to project beyond the point at which such weight is so attached or hung.

(2) Every owner of a boiler who permits any contravention of this Regulation shall be guilty of an offence against these Regulations.
